STOCKS RIDE WILD AGAIN

Sales Run Close to Record

Dizzy Pace Continues With 5,426,800-Share Total Reported for Day

Thirty Issues Skyrocket in Wall Street's Latest Frenzied Fling

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—Wall street experienced its third consecutive 5,000,000-share day today in a series of bewildering price movements which reflected the battle of opposing speculative forces. The "bulls" again maintained the advantage, lifting more than thirty issues to new high records on gains that ran to nearly $15 a share, but final quotations also disclosed a long list of declines ranging from $1 to $6.50 a share.

Total sales of 5,426,800 shares have been exceeded only by Monday's record-breaking total of 5,670,800 shares. The stock ticker again proved unequal to the task of keeping up with the trading, printing the final quotation one hour and twenty minutes after the market closed.

STEEL LEADS

United States Steel common again was brought forward as a leader by the "bull" forces, but after being pushed up to a new high record at $170.37½, it dropped back to last night's closing price of $163.75. Early buying of this issue helped to revive the flagging spirits of small speculators.

New leaders again were developed in the merchandising, oil, copper and public-utility divisions. National Bellas Hess, which has been selling out of line with the other leading mail-order issues, was whirled up nearly $15 a share to a new high record at $168, or more than four times the year's low. Sears, Roebuck ran up $8 a share to a new top at $197.50 and then lost all its gain. Montgomery Ward lost $3.50 a share, Radio $6 and International Nickel $5.50.

CAUSE OF SELLING

Predictions of another huge increase in brokers' loans in the Federal Reserve statement, to be released after the close of the market tomorrow, accounted for much of the day's selling. With call money freely available at 6 per cent and further imports of gold from Great Britain likely, pool operators apparently show little concern over the credit situation.

The record-breaking volume of trading this week has not only taxed the facilities of the exchange, but of many of the brokerage houses and banks as well. Weary clerks have been toiling long hours daily for the past week or more, with no relief in sight unless Stock Exchange officials again shorten the trading hours or declare extra holidays in order to give them a chance to catch up.

AID RUSHED IN CHICAGO EPIDEMIC

Increase in Diphtheria for Seventh Consecutive Week Alarms Officials

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. (Exclusive) Aid to fight an alarming diphtheria epidemic reached Chicago today when the State Department of Health presented the city health department with 300,000 doses of diphtheria antitoxin, Health Commissioner Kegel announced today.

The epidemic of diphtheria is not confined to Chicago alone, according to health department reports, but has also manifested itself in Oak Park, and the Calumet region.

"The epidemic here is daily becoming more serious," said Dr. Kegel. "Our last weekly report showed an increase in deaths for the seventh consecutive week.

"This morning thirty-five new cases were reported, the highest of any number this season. There were fifteen deaths for the week ending the 14th inst."

VESTRIS DOOM DEPICTED AS VISTA OF HORROR

Writer Tells Fate of Vessel and Own Rescue in Which Brave Los Angeles Woman Aided

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (Exclusive) To the accompaniment of awful and unforgettable scenes, the Lamport & Holt liner Vestris, after more than twenty-four hours at a dangerous list, turned completely on its back and swept 108 people to their doom. This happened at exactly 2:31 Monday afternoon, according to my watch, which I have before me now, and the face of which is discolored with rust from the small hand. Boats were smashed as the Vestris suddenly went down and the waiting people in one boat were overturned into the water. While the fate of the Vestris had obviously been sealed for hours the end really came with startling suddenness. The list had been increasing steadily hour by hour and as a wave would strike the uptilted port side there would be an ominous quiver and one wondered when the end would come. I remember trying to figure out in my mind how much higher the rail on the top-port deck could go without the boat sinking, but each time it would settle back into position again and remain afloat.

There were many members of the crew aboard when the boat went down and perhaps a dozen or more passengers grouped along the port rail, hanging on because of its definite list.

Then all of a sudden at 2:30, as a wave hit the side, the port rail went up and up until the boat was completely on its side.

It was only a matter of moments after this until it settled into the water. Such passengers who were left aboard and crew were engulfed when the boat went down accompanied by terrifying appalling sounds. Never in my life have I heard such a frightful combination of crashes and explosion. The deck piano which broke away from its bolted position and with deck chairs and all other impedimenta rattled down the perpendicular decks.

Then there were explosions, and one queer gulping sound as if some gigantic animal had swallowed too much water. A few moments later the Vestris itself was out of sight

Will Rogers Remarks:

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. [To the Editor of The Times:] Ambassador Fletcher from Rome on his way to join Hoover's party was by to see me today. You know I told you politicians that if Hoover was elected that he would just about fool you all by surrounding himself with a lot of able men. Well he did it. This fellow knows all about South America.

I would like to have gone on that trip and believe I could have been pretty useful and taken a lot of unnecessary work off Mr. Hoover's shoulders. I could have spoken at all the unimportant events, that is, I would have been the luncheon club speaker. It don't take very good speaking for that. That's the training table for after-dinner speakers. Then he could have gone on at nights.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

MAELSTROM SEALS FATE OF CHILDREN

Member of Vestris Crew Tells of Death Struggle as Lifeboat Breaks Up

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—The story of how many of the women and children aboard the Vestris perished when she sank was brought to New York today by Frederick Gill, negro seaman, who was rescued.

Gill was on duty in lifeboat No. 6, one of the first that the crew of the Vestris attempted to launch. There were almost thirty women and children in that lifeboat, he said.

"They crawled down the side of the ship to get into the lifeboat. We had orders not to cut the falls of the boat until she was in the water, because if we did, we'd all drown.

"Finally a big wave washed us overboard and flooded us. We cut the falls then and drifted away from the ship. We were flooded with every wave. Finally two of the air tanks broke away and the boat capsized.

"Before that two small children had been killed and another had been washed overboard. One woman was drowned in the boat.

"The boat turned over and over. I saw a raft floating 100 feet away. Pearman, one of the greasers, and I swam over to it. We told three women who were clinging to the edge of our lifeboat to hang on, that we would try to swim back to them with the raft. We couldn't do it, though. The craft kept drifting away from us. When we finally got to the raft we couldn't see the boat any more.

"We floated around for four hours and a half with a steward who joined us. Finally we were picked up by lifeboat No. 3."

DEADLY TOLL IN DISASTER LAID TO SHIP'S OFFICERS

Rescued Reaching New York Score Bungling and Delay in Aid Plea; Skipper Leaps to His Death

Additional news and pictures in connection with the Vestris disaster will be found on Pages 2, 3, 6, 10 and 11, Part I of this edition of the Times.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—Three shiploads of survivors of the Lamport & Holt liner Vestris arrived today to unfold details of one of the most horrible of maritime disasters.

An official inquiry has been ordered, based on their almost unanimous charges of inefficiency, indecision and delay against Capt. William J. Carey and his crew.

Interspersed in narratives of heroism—and of brutality—of narrow escape and of suffering, invariably appeared assertions that if proper steps had been taken by the ship's executives and crew, most, if not all, of the 108 now dead would be alive. Even with the SOS call too long delayed, efficient handling of the Vestris' life saving equipment by those responsible would have brought most of the 108 out of danger, declared survivors today—forty-eight full hours—after the Vestris plunged off Virginia.

These are charges which United States Attorney Tuttle announced today that he will begin to investigate tomorrow, but Capt. Carey himself will never be called to answer them.

CAPTAIN LEAPS IN SEA

For, after seeing the women and children under his care dumped into a boiling sea from shattered lifeboats, his passengers and crew leaping into the waves from the foundering ship, and feeling the bridge on which he stood sinking beneath his feet, Capt. Carey, one of his stewards said, jumped into the water without a life belt, though there were plenty to be had.

Of the 125 survivors brought in on the American Shipper, forty-one were passengers and eighty-four crew; of the twenty-three on the Berlin, which docked at almost the same time, eighteen were crew and only five passengers.

The French tanker Myriam arriving late tonight brought fifty-seven survivors, eight of them being passengers, and forty-nine members of the crew, six of them staff officers.

From these fifty-four passengers from the sunken steamer there came a story of hardship and heroism, of bravery and bungling, of good intentions and incompetence which altogether comprised probably as breathless a tale of the sea as has been heard in all the history of seamanship.

COMPOSITE STORY

The composite story of the passengers, reduced to its essentials, is as follows:

On Saturday last the Vestris, sixteen-year-old craft on which Capt. Carey was making his last trip before assuming command of the newer Voltaire as commodore of the Lamport & Holt Line, sailed for the Barbadoes and South American ports with 129 passengers and a crew of 199. There were thirty-seven women on board and thirteen children.

That very night the ship ran into a blow that steadily increased to gale force. The ship had a general cargo of 6000 tons, cloth and automobiles and fruit and machinery and oil and bulk lead, and it rolled sluggishly in the gathering swells.

During the night a definite list to starboard developed and when the passengers awoke on Sunday they found the ship hove to and tipping in a way that seemed to them to indicate serious danger.

There was no panic, but they asked what was wrong, and asked again as the list of the ship increased. Officers and stewards passed among them saying that there was no immediate danger and fears temporarily were quieted. But during Sunday the ship tipped so much that the waves were running along the rail of the promenade deck.

That was the time, passengers insisted today, that the distress call should have been sent out, and not in the middle of Monday morning, as it was. The captain seemed calm, they said, until the very end, but he was like a man who couldn't make up his mind. There was little sleep Sunday night, and early Monday morning all passengers were called on deck. The storm that on Saturday beat over the ship and washed the furniture right out of the dining saloon had abated, but a high sea was running and the ship seemed almost on its side.

At 10 o'clock Capt. Carey ordered the SOS, a call to ships none of which was nearer than 100 miles, and soon after gave the order to abandon the ship.

And then there came a scene of

CARGO SHIFT TO BLAME

Official Issues Statement

Crated Autos Dislodged by Violent Seas Believed to Have Sunk Vestris

Captain's Conduct Defended; Known Dead Reported to be Only Fourteen

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—David Cook, vice-president of Sanderson & Son, Inc., agents for the Lamport & Holt Steamship Company, said today he believes the shifting of crated automobiles and other cargo started the list which caused the steamer Vestris to sink off the Virginia Capes.

The automobiles and other cargo, dislodged by the violent pitching of the ship, went crashing through a steel bulkhead separating a freight hold from the forecastle and caused a heavy list to starboard, he said.

Mr. Cook's formal statement, issued after a conference with legal advisers for the Lamport & Holt Line, follows in part:

"At 3:45 p.m. last Saturday the Vestris left her pier at Hoboken, bound for South America, via the Barbadoes. She carried a full cargo which had been loaded by T. Hogan & Son, stevedores of the highest repute, who have stowed all our cargoes for years.

"Early Sunday morning the ship encountered a heavy northwest wind which rapidly rose to a gale. The ship continued on her course, but the storm was so severe that she was forced to heave to. Seas broke over the forward deck. Ventilators were smashed and carried away. Windows on the main deck were broken. One of the lifeboats was stove in. The pumps were worked continuously and the water made no substantial gain till 1 a.m., Monday.

"The violent pitching of the vessel caused automobiles and other cargo in No. 1 compartment above the water line on the sheltered deck to break through the bulkhead separating that compartment from the forecastle, and fetching up on the starboard side, causing a list to starboard. The officers say that never in their whole experience have they seen such gigantic seas.

"In the course of the morning, it became evident that the ship would have to be abandoned and preparations to this end were begun. The ship carried fourteen lifeboats, with a total capacity of 700. The lifeboat gear was of the most modern type and made it possible to launch the boats readily. All passengers were embarked first. The crew followed.

"Capt. Carey did not himself enter a boat and was last seen jumping into the water from the rail alone. of the death of fourteen persons,

VESTRIS VICTIM RAPS CREW

Seamen on Lifeboat Refused to Aid Struggling Persons, Menaced by Sharks, Says Mrs. Devore

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (Exclusive)—Mrs. Earl P. Devore of Los Angeles, wife of the automobile racer who was among those lost, bitterly criticised the action of the negro crew of one of the lifeboats. She said they refused to go to the aid of her husband and others aboard lifeboat No. 8 when it sank. She also condemned officers of the Vestris for refusing to let passengers know of the seriousness of the situation. She said that when she told the negroes they were cowards not to go back to No. 8 they commanded her to sit down. Later she said they picked up numerous negroes from the water.

Still shaken from her harrowing experience and overcome with grief at the loss of her husband, Mrs. Devore managed nevertheless to give a dramatic and coherent account of the sinking and its aftermath. Sitting in her lap, proud as Punch himself, was one of the few dogs that have ever come alive out of such a situation. This was Mrs. Devore's wire-haired fox terrier Speed Lady.

"On Saturday," Mrs. Devore said, "the weather was fine, but on Sunday it was rough. There was a swaying and listing of the ship. On Monday morning my husband examined the register in our cabin and said he had never been on a ship with such a list. He said it looked to him like serious trouble.

"We dressed quietly and with difficulty found an officer, who assured us everything was all right. By noon the officer said everything would be fine and dandy and we would be under way. The ship's officers went around explaining this to the other passengers. They had hardly done this when we got the order to take to the lifeboats.

"I was put in lifeboat No. 8 with my husband and Mr. and Mrs. Norman K. Batten of Los Angeles. Norman is an automobile race driver and was on his way to Buenos Aires to do some racing. This boat had a hole in it and five minutes before it was loaded it was patched horror that the survivors will not forget in all their lives. The order was women and children first, the law of the sea, and two boats were filled with them. But survivors said that the crew seemed inexpert in getting the boats lowered. For two hours the women and children swung from the davits as the boats were lowered inch by inch, swinging with the sluggish lurch of the ship.

FALL INTO SEA

Suddenly the ship wallowed in a trough deeper than any before and the two life boats were cracked like egg shells against the ship's side. The boats broke open about fifteen feet above the water and poured their human contents into the sea. In the list of survivors there are the names of but ten of the thirty-seven women who sailed on the Vestris, and the name of not a single child.

By that time the Vestris was sinking rapidly. Two boats were successfully launched but a hole was stove in one and it put off patched with a piece of tin, to sink before it had gone 100 feet. These two boats carried about eighty persons. About fifty had been dumped from the broken boats. The rest began leaping from the rails and swimming for their lives lest suction drag them to their deaths when the vessel sank.

Neal O'Laughlin, chief radio operator, remained in his cabin trying to get one last appeal out of his exhausted set. Capt. Carey stood on the bridge and ordered two stewards who went to him to save themselves. They jumped and looking back saw him step quietly, without bothering to strap a life belt about him, into the sea. Then the ship sank and he was not seen again.

HOURS OF HORROR

It was after the Vestris sank that the worst hours of all began. For even with several boats that broke away from the ship as it went down there were insufficient accommodations for all who still were alive. Many of them told today of swimming for hours, sometimes following lifeboats that rowed away lest the added weight of one more person might cast all the occupants into the water.

There was a steward, Alfred Duncan who had been noticeable before the ship sank for his calm and the assistance he gave in distributing rations of food to the passengers and reassuring them. He and an associate, T. Griffin, stayed with Capt. Carey until he ordered them overboard. Then Duncan continued his ministrations to the passengers, swimming from one lifeboat to another, ordering the strongest out of overcrowded craft and helping the weak in the water to get aboard wherever there was room.

Duncan and Griffin both were saved, and today they had high praise for Capt. Carey and the manner of his death though, like most of the survivors among the crew, they had little comment to make concerning the charges of neglect and inefficiency.

All Monday afternoon and all that night the living rowed and swam among the steadily increasing dead, waiting for the rescue they knew would come if they could but stay alive. During the night the searchlights of the rescue ships were seen and flares were taken from the lifeboats' lockers to guide the rescuers. But the flares failed to work, old or wet or improperly handled.

CHILDREN GONE

One lifeboat rowed as close as its occupants dared to two of the rescue ships, but the cries of the castaways were scattered by the wind. The night had to be ridden out on the angry waves.

With daylight came rescue, but for 108 of those who so recently had been gay with life, including twenty-seven women and all the thirteen children, there could be no rescue.

The survivors today were asked what had caused the ship to list and sink, and there were many answers. Some said the cargo had shifted in the storm and opened improperly fastened hatches, bulkheads and ports. Others are doubtful about the shifting of the cargo, but think the whole trouble was caused by waves beating down poorly secured freight openings in the hold and so flooding the engine-room, leaving the ship helpless in the waves, to be slowly battered to pieces.

REPORT OF SIGNAL DELAY HELD INCREDIBLE

LONDON, Nov. 14. (AP)—When shown the comment of Carlos Quiros, Chancellor of the Argentine Consulate in New York and a passenger on the Vestris, that the distress signal of the liner had been delayed through optimism or lack of experience by the crew, the London office of Lamport & Holt said today:

"The story is absolutely incredible. We do not know the composition of the whole crew, but responsibility for sending out the signal for relief undoubtedly would rest with the captain, whose record as an experienced officer is well known."

CREW ACCUSED OF REFUSING AID

with a piece of tin. Several of us called to the captain and asked him if it wasn't dangerous to send people out in a boat in that shape. He turned away and said nothing.

"We had nothing else to do but to take the boat. It was overcrowded and as soon as it got into the water it began leaking. No. 1 lifeboat with four negro seamen in it came by. We called to them to come near us and take some of us aboard. They drew near and my husband urged me to jump. I did so and had no sooner gotten aboard No. 1 than they pulled away. A sea rose between us and when I could again see No. 8 it was capsized and everybody was in the water. I begged the men to go back and save my husband and friends but they refused to do it.

"We saw at once that in this fairly warm water—the water was warm because we were in the Gulf Stream, though the air was cold enough—there were sharks. I saw them swimming and snatching at the legs and arms of living and dead. Don't think this is any exaggeration. Plenty of people saw what I saw and will tell you the same. Nevertheless some of the boats were so leaky and dangerous that I saw men and even women taking to the sea without thought of the sharks, so that they could swim to a boat which was in better condition.

LIFEBOATS "UNSAFE"

"One of the most terrible aspects of this disaster was the condition of the lifeboats. Some of the boats had water and some had not. The only food they contained was biscuits and into some of them even biscuits had not been stored. The flares with which they were provided were weak and made a poor light. Officers and men of the steamship which picked us up, the American Shipper, said that they had great difficulty making out the glow of these flares. But the worst, of course, was the holes in the boats. Apparently they had not been inspected, for more than one of the boats was leaking shortly after being lowered.

"Our boat was constantly passing people struggling in the water but the two white men and two negroes at the oars stubbornly refused to stop and pick up anybody even though we women appealed to them. They said it was their job to get away from the ship and that other boats would pick up these people. Somehow we endured it until we were picked up, but I cannot help but feel that my husband was cruelly abandoned and that the whole disaster was due to incompetence and worse."

SKIPPER LAST ONE TO LEAP

"Hell, No! You Jump," Capt. Carey Says to One of Stewards Who Urges Him to Leave

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—The last words of Capt. W. J. Carey on the Vestris were:

"Hell, no! You jump!"

They were brought to New York today by Alfred Duncan of Liverpool, one of the Vestris stewards, who was on the Berlin.

He and the captain, he said, were the last to leave the ship.

"We stood by the railing," he said, "and all the lifeboats had gone. We were the last to jump.

"'Jump,' he said.

"'You'd better jump, sir,' I said.

"'Hell, no! You jump!' he said.

"I jumped then, and I think he jumped after me. But I never saw him again."

Carey, master of the ill-fated Vestris, was senior captain of the Lamport & Holt Co. He had been with the company more than thirty years, rising from the ranks. He was about 55 years of age.

Capt. Carey returned from a vacation spent with his family in England last Friday, the day before the Vestris sailed. At Buenos Aires he was to leave the Vestris, which he had commanded for several years, to take the bridge of the Voltaire, the crack liner of the Lamport & Holt fleet.

It was the Voltaire, coming north over the course the Vestris was following south, which reported by wireless today: "It appears Capt. Carey and Radio Operator O'Loughlin went down with their ship."

Agents of the Lamport & Holt line here made a vain effort to communicate with Capt. Carey after it was reported he had been picked up by the French tanker Myriam.

CAPTAIN'S WIFE KEEPS ON HOPING FOR SAFETY

LONDON, Nov. 14. (AP)—Mrs. William Carey, wife of Capt. Carey of the steamer Vestris, clung to hope for her husband's safety until the last.

Last night she managed to get in a little sleep buoyed up by hope that had been aroused by reports, later denied, that Capt. Carey was aboard the French tanker Myriam. This morning, however, she anxiously waited at the telephone for news.

THREE RESCUE SHIPS ON WATCH

Coast Guard Destroyers Still Comb Seas

Returning Vessels Bring Vestris Victims

Battleship Wyoming Will Return to Base

NORFOLK (Va.) Nov. 14. (AP)—Only three sturdy Coast Guard destroyers remained tonight out of the fleet of rescue craft which had kept watch off the Virginia Capes in the hope of finding survivors or bodies from the foundered steamer Vestris.

They are the Manning, Mascoutin and Modoc. The Coast Guard headquarters ordered them to keep up their vigil until every hope of further rescue efforts had been abandoned.

Because of boiler damage from the heavy seas the destroyer Shaw was ordered to return to New York tonight by Coast Guard headquarters and she bore to that port the bodies of five victims, including one identified as that of Maj. Yoshio Inouye, who was en route to Buenos Aires to assume the Japanese Consulate. Maj. Inouye's wife had been saved by the battleship Wyoming.

One of the four other bodies, the message said, had been identified from German passports, as that of Carl Franke. The unidentified victims are a negro woman, a negro girl and a white man.

Maj. Inouye's body was picked up by the Shaw, while the destroyer Davis found the four other victims and transferred them to the Shaw. The Davis also had engine trouble.

The Wyoming, with Vice-Admiral Taylor, commander of the scouting fleet, on board, had been ordered by the Navy Department to suspend its search at nightfall, although the admiral was instructed to continue the efforts to find more victims if it was deemed wise.

The departure of the Wyoming from the scene of the disaster will bring her back to her home naval base at Hampton Roads, Va., about 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. She will bring back three members of the crew and six passengers from the stricken steamer. In issuing the order for the battleship's return Admiral Hughes, chief of naval operations, expressed the opinion that there is little possibility of any unaccounted-for persons from the Vestris still being alive.

Four other Coast Guard destroyers which were on the scene—the Davis, Wilkes, Tucker and Acushnet—were ordered today back to their home bases.

The destroyers Acushnet and Tucker are bringing the bodies of eight victims.

Four have been identified. They are:

Ralph P. Whitehead of Woodstock, N. Y., and Tom Jones, barman on the Vestris, both aboard the Acushnet.

Jose Gonsalvez Rua of New Bedford, Mass., and Raymond Garcia Pelal of New York, both on the Tucker.

Each destroyer has two other bodies unidentified.

besides the missing. We hope the missing will be heard from as other vessels arrive. The Merritt-Chapman and Scott companies boats, Relief and Resolute, which we sent out at noon Monday, have been instructed to stand by and cruise about in search of any survivors or to rescue the bodies of those who perished.

"I take this opportunity to express the deep appreciation which the directors of the Lamport & Holt Line feel for the generous and effective service of the vessels which went to the aid of the Vestris and the rescue of her passengers and crew . . ."

Mr. Cook denied that the ship had departed "limping" from the harbor and that a distress signal had been received four hours after she left port only to be canceled later.

CORPORATION DENIED RIGHT TO SELL STOCK

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14. (AP)—Right to sell stock today was denied the Tulare Securities Corporation, a $200,000 Tulare concern dealing in automobile mortgages, by the State Corporation Commission. The company is asserted to have filed an improper financial statement with the commission.

HOOVER JUNKET INCLUDES WIFE

Coming First Lady Also to Visit South America

Party Will Leave Palo Alto Next Sunday Evening

No Stop Planned on Way to Los Angeles Harbor

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Nov. 14. (AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover will accompany the President-elect on his good-will mission to South America.

This was disclosed today as Mr. Hoover went into a consideration of the variety of the details connected with the itinerary of his trip in a luncheon conference with Capt. Victor A. Kimberly, commanding officer of the battleship Maryland, upon which he will leave San Pedro next Monday for the continent to the southward.

Although considerable thought had been given to the possibility of Mrs. Hoover making the journey with her husband, definite decision had been delayed. With her, the wife of the President-elect will take Miss Ruth Fessler, her personal secretary.

DEPARTS ON SUNDAY

Present plans call for the departure of Mr. Hoover and his party from Palo Alto on a special train Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The train will go direct to Los Angeles Harbor and immediately after his arrival there Mr. Hoover plans to board his ship and leave as speedily as possible.

Under the tentative schedule, which, it was pointed out, is susceptible to many changes, the first port of call will be Corinto, on the west coast of Nicaragua, where he probably will be welcomed by the President of that republic.

From Corinto he will move down the coast to Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, where a brief stop will be made to enable Mr. Hoover to inspect the Panama Canal. Callao, Peru, will be the next port to which the present flexible schedule will take him, and from that point he can go to Lima, the capital of that republic.

FLETCHER AWAITED

Valparaiso will be touched next, from which place the general plan has been to move across the Andes to the eastern side of the continent. Invitations to visit Ecuador and Bolivia are under consideration, but no decision yet has been reached regarding the inclusion of these countries in the itinerary for his journey.

Certain details of his itinerary necessarily await the arrival of Henry P. Fletcher, Ambassador to Italy, who is to accompany him on the trip as a representative of the State Department. The Ambassador is expected to reach Palo Alto Sunday from Washington, and will travel on the special train of the President-elect to Los Angeles Harbor.

In addition to Ambassador Fletcher and George Akerson, secretary to the President-elect, the official party will include George Barr Baker of New York, a personal friend of Mr. Hoover, who had charge of the foreign language section of the Republican National Committee during the Presidential campaign. Nicaragua is the only Central American republic which is even tentatively on the good-will itinerary.

SILENT ON APPOINTMENTS

Continued publications concerning possible selections for the Hoover administration Cabinet brought a statement today on behalf of the President-elect that he has not discussed Cabinet appointments with any one, and that he will not do so until after his return from his Latin-American tour early in January.

Information also is obtained that Mr. Hoover does not contemplate returning to Washington until the day before his inauguration on March 4. It is fairly well certain now that he will establish his headquarters at some point in Florida, yet to be selected, and will summon there party leaders and others with whom he will discuss affairs of his administration.

APPRECIATION VOICED FOR HEAVY VOTE IN SOUTH

BALTIMORE, Nov. 14. (AP)—An expression of appreciation for the vote given the Republican Presidential ticket in the South is made in a letter written for this week's issue of the Manufacturer's Record by Herbert Hoover, President-elect. The letter is in response to one by R. H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturer's Record, asking for Mr. Hoover's views on the South.

"I am profoundly appreciative of the extremely heavy vote throughout the South for Mr. Curtis and myself," Mr. Hoover says.

"I accept this vote, not as a personal tribute, but as an expression of a developing sentiment throughout the South in behalf of the things for which the Republican party has stood in this campaign."

TIME FOR CHANGE

Mr. Hoover says that he is not unmindful of conditions which had brought about the political solidarity of the South, but added: "I firmly believe, however, that the time has come when in all sections men and women should vote from their convictions as to conditions at the present time, and not based on things of former generations."

The President-elect declares that he is aware of the potentialities of the South.

"With one-third of the nation's land area," he declares, "with about three-fifths of its sea frontage, with vast resources in soil, climate and minerals, no limit can be set to the continued progress and ever-increasing prosperity of the whole South."

AID PROMISED

He promises co-operation in flood control and in the development of an intercoastal canal system and hydroelectric power.

"I can assure the people of the South, as well as those of the entire country," he says, "that in my administration I shall know no difference between North, South, East and West, but shall seek to deal with absolute fairness and justice to every section of our common country."

PORTO RICO INVITES HOOVER TO PAY VISIT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. (AP)—Porto Rico has invited President-elect Hoover to visit that island during his Latin-American good-will tour.

Gov. Towner of the island sent Mr. Hoover a cablegram through the War Department saying "even a short visit of a day or two would be greatly appreciated by 1,500,000 American citizens" in Porto Rico.

LAKE HOME BLASTED IN UNION WAR

Kenosha Union Clashes Bring Twenty-first Bomb; Fire Completes Ruin

LAKE GENEVA (Wis.) Nov. 14. (AP)—Total destruction of the summer home of Roger W. Kimball, general manager of the Allen A Hosiery Company, Kenosha, Wis., located on the west shore of Lake Geneva, three miles from here, by fire following a terrific explosion early tonight, is believed to mark the twenty-first bombing in connection with the union-labor war at Kenosha.

Kimball's home, in the most fashionable section at the lake, adjoined those of Sidney Smith, cartoonist, and Charles H. Wacker, both of Chicago.

Inspection of the wreckage revealed that the bomb had been placed in the pump room of the house. The explosion was felt in the city of Lake Geneva, three miles away.

Mexico Defeats Note to Hoover

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14. (AP)—A motion offered by Deputy Botelo of the State of Morelos that the National Chamber send felicitations to Herbert Hoover on his election as President was rejected today at a caucus of the majority bloc.

Although about forty Deputies supported the proposal, the opponents objected that such an action would set an unwarranted precedent.

COLLEGE COURSE TO SHOW PARISIAN SEDATE, NOT WILD

[Copyright, 1928, by New York Times]

PARIS, Nov. 14. (Exclusive)—The Sorbonne, that distinguished seat of Latin learning, has taken upon itself the rather onerous task of disproving to the world at large the illusion which thousands of foreigners carry away with them when they leave Paris; namely, that the larger part of the Parisian population passes the time in amusing itself. A recognized college course in true "vie Parisienne" will become a part of the Sorbonne University regime beginning next January.

It is hoped that Americans and other foreigners will avail themselves of the unique opportunity to learn the charms and mysteries of true Parisian life—not the gay life of the Montmartre Latin Quarter, but the serious intellectual existence pursued by a vast majority of the Parisians.

Scholarly professors will give a series of twenty-five lectures over a period of five weeks. Political life—newspapers, artistic development, industrial, scientific and municipal activities of Paris—these and many other weighty subjects will be thoroughly gone into.

"By far too many foreigners leave our shores with the false idea that we pass most of our time in amusements," said a Sorbonne teacher today. "Most Americans and other visitors see only those aspects of Parisian life which are largely established for the diversion of tourists. They spend many weeks here totally oblivious of the real Parisian's mode of living."

"PUSSYFOOT" AT BAY CITY

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14. (AP)—Prepared to carry his campaign against liquor into the Far East, W. E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson arrived here today from Smithville Flats, N. Y., en route to Honolulu and the Orient.

SIX STUDENT FLYERS KILLED

Huge Army Plane Drops 4000 Feet as Wing Breaks; Parachute Saves Officer-Pilot

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Nov. 14. (AP)—Six enlisted men of Brooks Field, were killed and another was injured in a parachute jump when a United States Army transport plane crashed from an altitude of 4000 feet near here this afternoon. Lieut. Harvey T. Dyer, pilot of the plane saved his life by jumping.

The dead:

Private Arthur W. Hardesty, 24 years of age, son of Mrs. J. W. Howard, Lebanon Junction, Ky.

Private Nicoforo Villareal, 29, son of Mrs. Virginio Villareal, Puanta Cochabinba, Bolivia.

Private Carl W. Harris, 22, son of Mrs. Minnie Harris of Winnsboro, Tex.

Private Deaner T. McClusky, 19, son of Mrs. Martha McClusky of Placid, Tex.

Private Irvin Self, 23, son of Mrs. Lulu Self of Victer, Tex.

Staff-Sergeant Frank J. Siebenaler, who was riding in the cockpit of the plane with Lieut. Dyer, was thrown from the plane as it went into a tailspin and he saved himself from death by using his parachute. He suffered a broken rib in landing.

Lieut. Dyer said that the tailpiece of the plane had broken off while he was flying at an altitude of about 4000 feet. This threw the plane suddenly forward and the right wing broke off and swerved clear of the fuselage.

All of the victims of the accident were members of the Forty-sixth School Squadron and had volunteered to take flight in order that noncommissioned officers, who were slated to take the flight to get in flying time, might attend a football game at the field.

The plane landed nose-first in the field and threw the six men into the forward hold, striking their heads against the front end of the cabin of the ship.

FULL HONORS FOR HOOVER

Arrival and Departure at San Pedro on South American Trip Will be Notable Naval Occasion

Full Presidential honors, greater than have ever been extended to a notable entering or departing a Pacific port, will be accorded President-elect Hoover when he sails from San Pedro at 10:30 a.m. next Monday aboard the U.S.S. Maryland for a good-will tour of South America, it was announced yesterday by Admiral William V. Pratt, commander-in-chief of the battle fleet.

Mr. Hoover and his party will arrive at the harbor by special train shortly after 9 o'clock Monday morning, where he will be met by Admiral Pratt, Vice-Admiral Louis McN. Nulton, commanding the dreadnaught squadron, and their aides.

Going immediately to the Maryland in Admiral Pratt's barge, when the President-elect steps on the quarterback the great battleship will roar forth a twenty-one-gun national salute to the future commander-in-chief, which will be followed immediately by every man-of-war in port, with a similar twenty-one-gun salute. During this honorary bedlam, Mr. Hoover will be greeted by a full guard and band as he walks aft on the Maryland's quarterdeck, with the drums according him four ruffles and the bugles four flourishes while the band plays the "Admiral's March." Assembled aft, in full dress, will be all of the Maryland's officers, together with other ranking officers of the fleet.

The Maryland, which will arrive from San Francisco tomorrow afternoon, will berth directly inside Breakwater Light in Berth A-3 and immediately after Mr. Hoover and his party are aboard she will get under way. She has been loading stores at San Francisco for the long cruise and upon anchoring at San Pedro will take aboard 30,000 barrels of fuel oil for the trip. It was announced on the flagship California yesterday that she has been stripped of all possible officers in order to make room for the Hoover party, which will exceed thirty persons, including secretaries, linguists and newspaper men.

The Maryland will proceed direct from San Pedro to Balboa, arriving at the canal port about the 28th inst., it was announced. Yesterday at Palo Alto, Capt. Victor A. Kimberly, commanding the dreadnaught, held a luncheon conference with Mr. Hoover, regarding itinerary of the cruise. Only two officers have been assigned to the Maryland as official representatives of the Navy Department, Commander Augustin T. Beauregard, the Navy's foremost linguist and authority on South American affairs, and Commander Harry H. Lane, chief surgeon of the U.S.S. Idaho, who will be Mr. Hoover's personal physician.

COOPER SLATED FOR HIGH POST

State School Head May Go to Federal Office

Educational Commission Job Expected to be Offered

Shortridge Declared to Hold Appointment in Hand

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. (Exclusive) — William John Cooper, Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State of California, is likely to be drafted for Federal service. For some time President Coolidge has been seeking to fill the place of Commissioner of Education in the Interior Department, made vacant by the resignation of John J. Tigert, who had held this place for several years. It is considered a highly important position and later may be developed to even larger proportions by Congressional action.

It is indicated now that the California Superintendent of Public Instruction is in the lead for the place. He is certain to accept if it is tendered to him and Senator Johnson of California has indicated that he will recommend Cooper. According to those best informed in the Interior Department today, the appointment is as good as made as soon as Senator Shortridge of California indicates his approval. It is known that the President is anxious to fill the place at once and is ready to act now, but is waiting out of courtesy to Senator Shortridge.

One phase of the proposed appointment of Mr. Cooper is an echo of the election in California last Tuesday when the voters of California rejected the proposal to make the office now held by Cooper appointive instead of elective. It was the expressed hope of Gov. Young that such a law would remove the educational work of the State from politics. After the defeat of this measure Mr. Cooper indicated that he would not desire to remain in the place after the meeting of the next Legislature and perhaps that is one of the reasons why he will be glad to transfer his activities to the educational work of the Federal government.

De la Aprehensión de dos Maestras Resulta la de un Rebelde

CIUDAD DE MEJICO, Noviembre 14.—La aprehensión de dos maestras de escuela, practicada ayer en una población suburbana de Méjico, dio luz para apresar hoy al cabecilla rebelde José Gómez Garduño.

Las maestras de escuela Elena Hernández Gallegos y María Bland Calderón fueron detenidas al llevar a cabo la policía un registro en una escuela de Tacubaya.

Dieron parte los guardias de que habían encontrado allí una carta que les permitió dar con Garduño y echarle el guante. Ocuparon asimismo una caja con municiones destinadas, según se asegura, a los insurrectos. También hallaron gran cantidad de propaganda sediciosa.

Los "Sin Trabajo" de Moscú Engañados por las Autoridades

RIGA, Noviembre 14.—Las autoridades soviéticas están recurriendo a medidas extremas para limpiar Moscú de desocupados, según revelación del diario "Trud", que censura la manera como quieren resolver el problema las oficinas de empleos del Estado.

Dice "Trud" que dos ocasiones, en el curso del mes pasado, pusieron avisos dichas oficinas diciendo que las minas hulleras de Donets necesitaban 5000 operarios. Dando preferencia a los casados, enviáronse a los solicitantes por trenes especiales hasta la región minera, donde se les informó de que no había trabajo disponible, y de que las minas no habían pedido obreros a Moscú. Esto dio por resultado que en el distrito minero citado quedaran reforzados los "sin trabajo" con 10,000 moscovitas desocupados y enfurecidos.

Hubo graves motines este último sábado, y una batalla con la policía apoyada por tropas de la Cheka. Arrestóse a mil doscientas personas, que fueron mandadas a campos de concentración. Avisan de Kharkov que ha habido allí otros motines de gente sin trabajo.

Smith se Marcha de Vacaciones

NUEVA YORK, Noviembre 14.—El gobernador Smith, que ha salido de Nueva York para Biloxi (Misurí), ha anunciado hoy que iba a jugar golf y a olvidarse enteramente de la política.

Acompañan al gobernador John J. Raskob, presidente del comité democrático nacional, y dos amigos íntimos, William F. Kenny y James J. Riordan.

Individuo que Mata a su Hija y Hiere a su Esposa

SAN JOSE, Noviembre 14.—Disparando contra la puerta de un armario, tras de la cual se habían refugiado su esposa y su hija Anzie para escapar a su furia, Stephen Sparacino, de 45 años de edad, mató hoy a la muchacha e hirió a la madre.

Los disparos vinieron después de que Sparacino había colocado cuatro bombas de dinamita debajo de su casa y de las casas de dos vecinos, una de las cuales hizo explosión y se llevó el frente del edificio.

Sparcino huyó abandonando un automóvil en el que la policía encontró más de cien barras de dinamita. Su hija murió en un hospital.

Tartamudo que Echa a Perder un Atraco

CHICAGO, Noviembre 14.—No le resulta a un tartamudo eso de atracar a la gente. Que lo diga, si no, Edward Lang.

Ayer se encaró Lang con Gilbert Selders en la esquina de las calles de Crawford y de Madison. Le puso al pecho un revólver, y tartamudeó: "A-a-arri-rriba las manos!"

A Selders le hizo gracia la cosa y se soltó riendo. El atracador tartamudo se encolerizó, tiró el revólver a la acera, y se lanzó a puñetazos sobre Selder.

Por desgracia para Lang, Selders es profesor de gimnasia. Cuando, por fin, se dejó oir el grito de "¡policía!" fue Lang quien lo pegó.

Ayer Penetró la Policía en una Fábrica de Licor

Los guardias de la brigada del vicio practicaron ayer mañana un raid en un almacén de botellas sito en el 6203 del bulevar de Santa Mónica, y otro en el restaurante que se halla en el bulevar de Sunset, 330. Detuvieron a dos hombres.

En la parte de atrás del almacén de botellas, el sargento Hudson y los miembros de la brigada del vicio de Hollywood encontraron, según parte que rinden, una original fábrica de licor cerrada por una puerta que funciona eléctricamente.

Dice Hudson que notó dos clavos que salían de la pared posterior del establecimiento. Al formar contacto entre esos dos clavos por medio de una lima de que echó mano, se abrió una puerta. Entró por ella, y se encontró en una fábrica de bebidas alcohólicas, donde ocuparon él y sus hombres 217 "quarts" de vino, un frasco de diez galones de licor, y cuarenta y dos pintas más de licor. Fue detenido Guy Digiuro, supuesto proprietario del almacén, por el delito de poseer bebidas alcohólicas.

En el café antes mencionado, el sargento Rogers, de la brigada central del vicio, dice haber hallado un aviso pegado con engrudo contra una alacena de manteles y servilletas. Decía el tal anuncio: "Está descompuesta esta alacena". La abrió el policía, a pesar de todo, y se encontró con una pinta de whisky. Aprehendió a David Herrera, de 36 años, presunto propietario del restaurante.

NEW GAS TAXES DEAL DEMANDED

Farm Federation Opposes Present Distribution

Bureau Closes Convention at Sacramento

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 14. (AP)—With the passage of resolutions, chief among them a recommendation for a change in the apportionment of gas tax revenues, the tenth annual convention of the California Farm Bureau Federation closed today.

Other resolutions advocated legislation to bring Canadian farm products under the standardization act and urged the adoption of better facilities for the marketing of perishable farm products.

The resolution regarding gas tax revenues favored the reversion of tax money to the community where the gasoline is sold, instead of distribution of the State's gross revenue to counties in proportion to their motor registration.

Cold storage facilities on the San Francisco water front were advocated in the resolution dealing with the marketing of perishable fruits and vegetables.

Passengers Tell Details of Crisis

MANY CRITICISE DELAY OF SOS

Conduct of Captain Results in Unfavorable Words

Picture of Terror Disclosed in Accounts of Survivors

Men Swim Long Distances to Save Themselves

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—Survivors of the Vestris reaching here today told the story of what is probably the greatest tragedy of the sea since the sinking of the Lusitania. The varied perspectives of those who were saved presents in itself a dramatic and nearly complete account of the events preceding, and the actual sinking of the liner off the Virginia coast. Criticism and praise for the officers and men of the crew are mingled with harrowing accounts of suffering and fear on the part of the survivors. Some of the stories told today immediately after the landing of the steamers American Shipper and Berlin are presented herewith.

BATTERED BADLY

T. E. Mack, an electrical construction superintendent in Brazil whose home is in Teckla, Wyo., who with his co-worker, O. L. Maxey of Richmond, Va., was rescued by the steamer Berlin, said that the Vestris was battered by such a storm soon after she left New York Saturday that she soon began to list and last Sunday the waves washed the furniture in the dining saloon overboard. All that night the storm continued to rage.

"In the morning," Mack said, "the sea was calmer, but the ship continued listing more and more until by 10 o'clock the starboard rail of the promenade deck was under water. Then the captain ordered everybody up and the boats lowered away on the port side. It took two hours to lower four boats to within ten or fifteen feet of the water.

"The boats lowered were Nos. 4, 6, 8 and 10. No. 8 had its side stove in. Attempts were made to patch it up and while the work was going on it was filled with passengers and lowered away."

Women and children were lowered first, Mack said, and all the passengers were very calm. He said the first mate and the second steward showed the greatest bravery.

CAPTAIN UNDECIDED

"The captain seemed calm enough," Mack said, "but very undecided as to what procedure to take. Boats Nos. 4 and 6 capsized while being lowered. The ship was lying completely on its side by this time. Only two boats with about eighty people in them were successfully lowered, No. 10 and the stove-in No. 8.

All the rest of the passengers and crew jumped from the side of the ship, everyone swimming as hard as possible to get away from the side of the ship before she finally went down two minutes later. I swam only fifty feet before the ship went down."

"Many passengers were swimming with life belts on all around me, making for the boats. Those which were launched safely were greatly overcrowded. I swam to one which had so many people in it I turned away so as not to increase the risk. Mr. Maxey and myself swam around until we located each other. Then we swam for about two and a half hours until we located boat No. 13, which had broken loose from the Vestris and had been caught by some of the crew in the water."

TERRIBLE TIMES

"There were two days and nights so terrible I can hardly think," said Gaetano Abbadini, third-class passenger. "Trouble began before daylight Monday morning. By 3 o'clock we were awakened by the pitching of the boat. We ran up on deck because we couldn't sleep any longer.

"The sea was very rough and the boat listed terribly on one side. Everybody was afraid. All morning we waited and at noon they told us that rescue was coming and that there was no real danger. Then they said we would have to take to the boats.

"When they finally decided to lower the boats they couldn't lower all of them because the ship was at such an angle. Women and children were crying while they crowded them into the boats. There was no place for me so I jumped over the side and swam for hours."

OTHER STORIES

Capt. Frederick Sorenson, a passenger of the Vestris who holds a master's license, was particularly bitter in his criticism of what he called the "criminal neglect" which he said marked the disaster.

"I know about ships," he said. "The reason the vessel foundered is criminal neglect. The captain did everything wrong. He should have had ships standing by us long before he did. Not a passenger should have been sent overboard before other vessels were standing by."

Alfredos Ramos, an Argentine student who was returning home on the Vestris after a vacation here and in Europe, told of the horror of passengers placed in lifeboats which could not be lowered to the water.

He was in one of four such craft, he said, swung out over the waves on the davits and then left hanging there. He, with some of the others, took to the water, trusting to their lifebelts. He never saw the others again and had no knowledge whether they had been saved like him or had been lost.

AID ASKED TOO LATE

E. J. Marvin of Mountclair, N. J., a representative of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, said the responsibility must rest with Capt. Carey. Mr. Marvin said the skipper had been at fault in not summoning aid twenty-four hours earlier.

Marvin also declared that had the lifeboats been sound and properly launched there would have been no loss of life, since the water, though rough from the recent storm, was warm. However, he said the sea was at no time so turbulent that the boats could not have been navigated.

Marvin indicated that many of the crew, still unaccounted for, might have gone down with the ship. She dropped suddenly, the oil man said, and only a few of the boats were what he would call filled.

Marvin said the Vestris had run into a heavy gale, with wind at sixty to seventy-five miles an hour.

"It was obvious," he asserted, "that the steamer was disabled on Sunday. She carried a moderate list all day Sunday and it is our understanding that water was rapidly filling the bunkers.

WATER RUSHING IN

"One of the doors to the coal bunkers on the starboard side, or the side that went under water when she began to list so heavily, was in defective condition. It is the consensus that the S.O.S. should have been sent on Sunday, for if it had been sent then steamers would have been alongside on Monday morning.

"It was also the opinion of some of us—and I have talked with most of our group—that not one life boat would have been lost if the S.O.S. had been sent at the proper time, and if the lowering of the life boats had not been left to the last minute. As a matter of fact, one life boat went down with the ship. It was No. 6, and she didn't get a chance even to clear."

TELLS OF CAREY

George Santanna of New York told the story of Capt. Carey's disappearance.

Santanna asserted he tried to reach three lifeboats but each denied him entrance. He put on a lifebelt before the ship sank.

"I found myself on the topside," he continued, "alone, save for Capt. Carey. He was wearing a heavy top coat but no lifebelt. The ship began sinking fast. You could feel her going down beneath you.

"Then we went down, it seemed a huge wave was pouring over us and the captain and myself were both in the water. We were drawn down by the suction. I came up and reached for a floating box. I didn't see the captain again. I don't know how long I floated, but finally was picked up by lifeboat No. 5.

"I had been swimming after the boat for some time, but the negro members of the crew rowed away.

"Other people were begging to get aboard, too, but the negroes ddn't seem to want any more aboard. But Chief Engineer Adams made them stop and we swam to the boat and were taken in."

CHARGES DENIED

Joseph Alexi, able seaman, denied that he and other negro members of the crew rowed lifeboat No. 13, which they got into after it broke away from the Vestris, away from passengers struggling in the water.

He said the boat was rowed away from the ship to keep it from being demolished by a swinging spar and that this action probably saved the lifeboats, in which twenty-two men were saved.

G. Gladianos, pantryman of the Vestris, had a station in a lifeboat to which twenty women and children were assigned. He had a baby in his arms. Just as the craft settled on the water another boat crashed down upon it, smashing the little one's head, cracing Gladianos's boat in two and hurling all its occupants into the water. What happened to them then, he couldn't say.

S. Sabowski, a Los Angeles seaman, declared every porthole on the Vestris was defective, that the scuppers were plugged and that the bulkhead doors had not been water tight.

Frank Johnson, chief officer of the Vestris, was asked whether he could say definitely what had caused the disaster.

"I have nothing to say," he replied.

TRAGEDY WEARS COURAGE HALO

Incidents of Human Intrepidity Brighten Harrowing Side of Vestris Disaster, While Sharks and Raging Tempest Add to Horrors

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—Here and there in the stories told by the Vestris' survivors were little human incidents that sparkled brightly against the background of terror, distress and death. For instance, Alfred Ramos, an Argentine student on his way home to Buenos Aires, was thrown into the water when his lifeboat was smashed. The immersion didn't trouble him, because the water was warm, but he was bothered by the fact that the dye from his bright necktie insisted on running and discoloring his shirt. Ramos, wearing a lifebelt, floated ten hours before he was picked up.

The young student doesn't intend to let a shipwreck interfere with his return home from a New York vacation. Walking into the Lamport & Holt offices this noon he told the booking clerk: "I want to engage passage over again."

The ocean is an austere host, especially to men and women suddenly introduced to it after enjoying cozy quarters aboard ship. But it might have treated the Vestris' survivors more severely than it did. The steamer sank in the Gulf stream, and passengers and crew were unanimous in saying that the water in which many spent long hours of waiting was really warm. Some even preferred to hang over the sides of lifeboats, for the ocean was warmer than the air.

There was one horrible drawback to that—sharks. Schools of these vicious creatures of the deep seemed to come from nowhere—as they always do—and many were the bodies they mutilated.

No man or woman who went through the ordeal will forget last Monday night. Thunder, lightning and rain added to the terrors of these human beings' plight. And then there were the searchlights of the rescue fleet which the Vestris' radio had summoned. Long, slender white fingers groped through the darkness—friendly hands seeking to extend aid, but missing those who needed succor so sorely. Many passengers testified that the realization of aid tantalizingly near, yet never quite finding the little boats and human forms bobbing among the waves, brought despair.

Of course it was "women and children first" when Capt. Carey gave the order to abandon ship. The Vestris carried thirty-seven women and thirteen youngsters, some of them babies, but the two boats into which they were loaded crashed against the side of the ship as they were being lowered into the sea, spilling and crushing the occupants. How many lives were lost in this disaster within a disaster is not known, but some placed the number at thirty.

Capt. Schuyler Cummings of the American Shipper gave high praise to the pluck of P. A. Dana, South American representative of the Radio Corporation of America, and Mrs. Clara Ball of Pleasantville, N. Y., a stewardess on the Vestris. They clung to fragments of wreckage from 1:30 p.m. Monday to Tuesday noon and were finally picked up by the American Shipper. Mrs. Ball was so exhausted that she couldn't talk. Dana, his eyes red from seawater, told the story of their plight and courage.

There were many kind words for Wireless Operator O'Laughlin, of the Vestris. He stuck to his key to the last, sending his last frantic "Help! Help!" as the boats were lowered. He died in line of duty.

And then there was Lionel Licorice, the little quartermaster who hails from Barbados. Some said Lionel saved twenty lives. Anyway, he was in charge of boat No. 14 and not only kept his precious cargo from the deep, but occasionally jumped into the sea to save a helpless passenger buoyed up by a lifebelt. The youth with the candy name was quite unconcerned about it all when he came in on the American Shipper. Reporters found him perched on the rail, kicking his legs carelessly over the side. But no story did they coax from Lionel Licorice. That had to come from passengers and many were eager to tell it.

Mrs. Laurenda Moore of Jersey City, an elderly stewardess, had sought to comfort a woman passenger who had seen her husband tossed into the ocean from one of the lifeboats.

"He will be picked up," Mrs. Moore assured, "keep a good heart."

Just then she saw a frail woman with a baby trying to clamber into a lifeboat.

Mrs. Moore took the infant, to help the mother, and was getting into a lifeboat with it when the guy line broke or slipped from a seaman's hands. The child was catapulted into the water and Mrs. Moore followed. The baby was not found.

Mrs. Moore was picked up by a lifeboat in which were five persons. They had some hardtack to nibble, some water, a lantern and some wet flares.

What happened after that Mrs. Moore doesn't know, for she lay in a coma in the bottom of the boat.

INQUIRY DUE BY FEDERAL AUTHORITIES

U. S. Atty. Tuttle Reveals Investigation of Vestris Case Will Begin Today

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—United States Attorney Tuttle announced this afternoon he will commence an investigation tomorrow of the wreck of the Vestris.

Mr. Tuttle's statement follows:

"In view of the loss of life among American citizens following the sinking of the steamship Vestris, it is appropriate that there should be inquiry into the causes of the disaster, which still remain unexplained, in order that the facts may be established before the witnesses become scattered, and responsibility, if any, may be fixed, and in order that adequate preventive measures may be given in the future. The Vestris sailed from this port and the survivors are being brought here. I am informed that the ship's papers were documented in this port. Under the circumstances, this office will proceed at once before United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill to gather and perpetuate the facts."

NEGRO GETS PRAISE FOR SAVING LIFE

Survivor Says Twenty on Vestris Were Rescued by Black Quartermaster

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—A little Barbadoes negro, Lionel Licorice, a quartermaster on the Vestris, was hailed today as one of the outstanding heroes of the disaster. Alfredo Ramos, Argentine swimming star, who was rescued after swimming and floating fourteen hours, said the quartermaster saved twenty lives.

"That little negro did what the officers of the Vestris failed to do," said Ramos, who was rescued by the American Shipper.

"He took charge of boat No. 14, and not only saved the passengers, but occasionally jumped out to catch an oar or helpless passengers floating in the water. By the time the American Shipper picked up the boat, he had saved twenty lives.

"I cannot say that the officers of the Vestris could be praised for their endeavors to save us. The quartermaster was the only member of the crew who exerted himself in our behalf."

Skinny Women Don't Stand a Chance!
New YEAST and IRON builds weight quickly. Your own druggist guarantees results—or pay nothing

You don't want to be underweight, nervous and always tired—an object of pity to your friends. Start Ironized Yeast now and put pounds of good flesh on those bony arms, hollow cheeks and scraggy limbs. See ugly lines give way to graceful curves. Feel a new vitality and strength you haven't had for years.

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial.

This yeast is treated with the same kind of iron found in spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form Iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is Ironized in this way is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building values of Yeast. By this formula Ironized Yeast gives you results in half the time required by yeast and iron taken separately.

Ironized Yeast brings pounds of weight in astonishingly quick time. Letters say: "10 pounds gained in 3 weeks," "one full treatment added 7 pounds," "11 pounds and better health." The blood is toned up too, because iron adds strength and richness to the blood, clearing up the complexion and increasing your vitality. Ironized Yeast comes only in pleasant-tasting tablets. Safe for everybody. Does not upset stomach nor cause gas or bloating.

Ask the druggist now for a full course treatment. It will prove that you can gain many pounds, or your money will be refunded.—[Advertisement.

High blood pressure, stomach indigestion and gas kept this woman so weak she stayed in bed most of the time. She writes: "Shortly after I started to take Agmel, I began to gain in strength and weight." Among the numberless letters received from Agmel users is one from a man who had suffered for years from stomach indigestion and constipation. "The effects of Agmel were immediate" he says. "My vitality was greatly increased."

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS HIT

Federal Ownership Scored by Utility Heads

Principle Seen as Tending to Socialism

President and Successor Alike Quoted

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 14. (AP)—Government ownership and operation of public utilities were condemned here today by the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners.

Delegates representing every section of the United States approved a report read by Richard T. Higgins of Connecticut, chairman of the committee on public ownership and operation, which said that government in business "tends to Socialism."

PRESIDENT QUOTED

Statements attributed to President Coolidge when he was Governor of Massachusetts and to Herbert Hoover in his speech of acceptance opposing government operation were contained in the report in support of the committee's antagonism to governmental participation in business.

Lewis F. Gettle of Madison, Wis., chairman of the Wisconsin Railroad Commission, was elected president of the association and Glacier Park, Montana, was selected as the next meeting place.

Other officers elected are Charles Webster, Des Moines, first vice-president; A. J. Maswell, Raleigh, N. C., second vice-president; James B. Walker, New York City, secretary; Clyde Bailey, Washington, assistant secretary, and John F. Benton, Washington, general counsel.

HELD SOCIALISTIC

"Successful business," the report on government ownership and operation said, "requires men of broad vision and trained minds, whose talents and ambitions should not and can not be limited by the fortunes of politics or the meager pay roll of a government employee.

"The functions of government are specific and do not include the operation of business enterprises. Government in business tends to Socialism and Socialism is contrary to all the traditions of our people and to the principles of government as expressed in the Constitution of the United States."

ST-T-T-STICK-UP BACK FIRES

St-t-tutterer Tr-tries to H-H-Hold up M-Man But Victim L-Laughs

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. (AP)—Holding up people is no good business for a man who stutters. Look at Edward Lang.

Lang approached Gilbert Selders at Crawford and Madison streets yesterday. He poked a pistol at him. "St-t-t-t-st-stick 'em up!" he stammered.

It struck Selders as funny, so he laughed. The stammering "stick-up" man got mad all over. He threw his gun to the sidewalk. It wasn't loaded, anyway. He sailed into Selders with both fists.

Unfortunately for Lang, Selders is a physical instructor. When the cry "police" finally went up it was Lang who shouted it.

BRIDEGROOM KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

DEATH TAKES ON LUMINOUS LEER

Watch Dial Paint Kills Man Who Invented It

Dr. S. Von Sochocky Had Been Ill for Months

Blood Transfusions Fail to Save His Life

EAST ORANGE (N. J.) (AP)—Dr. Sabin Von Sochocky died today, a victim of the luminous paint which he had invented for the painting of watch dials in the plant of the United States Radium Corporation, formerly located in Orange. Deaths of a half dozen women who were employed in the plant to paint watch dials have been attributed to the assimilation of radio active substances.

Aplastic anemia was given as the cause of the inventor's death. He had been ill for several months and eleven blood transfusions had been resorted to in an effort to save his life.

Last May the United States Radium Corporation allowed five women, asserted to be suffering from the same poisoning, the sum of $10,000 each, annuities of $600 each and the cost of legal expenses and medical treatment. The allowances were made in settlement of suits for $1,250,000.

Physicians said today that deposits of radio-active matter in the bones of the victim had stilled the action of the blood supply agencies of the body and caused death.

Dr. Von Sochocky was technical director of the United States Radium Corporation. He had been associated for many years with institutions using radium in the treatment of disease. He was 45 years of age and a native of Austria. He came to the United States twelve years ago and invented his formula for luminous paint in 1920.

WIFE KILLS HUSBAND

TOURISTS ENCHANTED BY RIO

Beauty of Brazilian Capital and Populace Charm Make Departure for Trinidad Unwelcome

BY FRED HOGUE
"Times" Staff Representative

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 14. (Exclusive)—The most sincere compliment to the beauty of Rio and the charm of its people is the fact that the husbands on board the S.S. City of Los Angeles, making the west-to-east tour around the Horn, remain entranced with the city in spite of the fact that the wives have been indulging in an orgy of buying in Rio's ultra-fashionable shops. The women acclaim the city as a fashion center supreme, and have been making inroads on the family exchequers in accordance with this belief.

The several hundred passengers on the Lassco liner were received with friendly formality today by the Brazilian Chamber of Commerce, and were the recipients of many sincere expressions of good will, which were replied to in kind by our party with equal sincerity.

RECEPTION TENDERED

The reception was accorded the visitors at the National Opera, and, aside from the mutual pleasure of the participants, should result in the stimulation of commerce between the two nations.

Armistice Day was celebrated at sea on the way to Rio de Janeiro, a banquet and special services being the chief feature of a program that paid tribute to the war dead.

We sail tonight for Trinidad and face our nine days at sea with regret, not for the fact that we will be at sea, for the trip is perfect in every detail, but for the necessity of leaving Rio with its beauty, charm and hospitality.

HIGH TREASON

The younger men on the cruise—and a number of the older ones—remark that even Hollywood's famed beauties cannot compare with the raven-haired Rio belles.

And, as a parting thought concerning the friendship between the great Brazilian republic and our own, we are all taking with us the memory of the compliment paid our nation when the building in which the National Senate meets was named the Monroe Building.

PORTLAND BROKER CONVICTED BY JURY

PORTLAND (Or.) Nov. 14. (AP)—James P. Cooke, former president of the defunct brokerage house of Overbeck & Cooke, was convicted by a jury here today of larceny by embezzlement. His indictment follows collapse of the firm last January.

Do You Want More Money?
Opportunity Is Knocking at Your Door Today
This Message May Make You Rich

The way to wealth is not via the savings bank alone. Look at the names that spell riches to you. Almost every one of them got rich from a small start by investing in good real estate.

All Los Angeles real estate will increase in value, but the big increase happens where communities build up. Hetty Green amassed her millions by anticipating the trend. You can follow her method.

For 18 years, Bundy & Albright have been building communities in Los Angeles. They have made fortunes for their clients. Now they are building a new community—Sherman Oaks on Ventura boulevard—ten minutes from Hollywood and adjoining Beverly Hills.

This will be their ideal achievement. They have installed and paid for the finest of permanent improvements, wide concrete streets, and all utilities under ground. You cannot equal these improvements in any Beverly Hills millionaire's property.

They have priced lots at a fraction of what you'd expect to pay and they are selling fast. You certainly will want to share in the profits that buyers should make, so drive out today or phone Fitzroy 4181 and a private automobile will take you out to the property. If it doesn't suit you—don't buy!

MIKADO ENACTS ALL-NIGHT VIGIL

Rite of Great Thanksgiving Formally Observed

Japanese Emperor Prays to Shinto Pantheon

Press for First Time Allowed to Approach

KYOTO (Japan) Nov. 15. (Thursday) (AP)—The all-night vigil of the Daijo Sai, the "great thanksgiving" of the enthronement ceremonies, ended for Emperor Hirohito shortly before dawn today. From his mat in the primitive reed-and-thatch hut known as the Suki sanctuary, in which for the second time last night he had made food offerings and prayed to the gods of his people, he rose and returned to the hall of ablution near-by, having completed the most solemn observances incumbent on him as high priest of the nation.

In a double ritual of exactly identical parts, except that the scene of the second was a sanctuary a few feet to the west of its twin, the newly enthroned sovereign of Japan offered to the gods of the Shinto pantheon the first fruits of the first untainted harvest of his reign, untainted in the sense that it was the first crop sown after the blight of the year of mourning for the late Emperor Taisho was lifted.

BACK TO ANCESTORS

While his court, including the Empress, kept watch on the veranda of the sanctuary or in more distant pavilions and halls of attendance, the Emperor, alone, unseen, unheard, communed with the spirits of Japan's mythical, legendary and historical past. In a setting that reproduced the court of his predecessors of 2000 or more years ago, the youthful sovereign re-enacted a ritual that has crystallized the material and spiritual life of prehistorical Japan, a survival of such antiquity as can be matched in no other land of this modern world.

The atmosphere within the sanctuary inclosure was thoroughly primitive but that of the surroundings was modern enough. Just outside there were drawn up picked details of the empire's soldiers and sailors. At the climaxes of the ceremonies, these 700 chosen men presented arms with fixed bayonets on modern rifles.

PRESS NEAR AT HAND

Another modern touch was the fact that for the first time in history, newspaper men were permitted to approach the place of this most sacred rite. A few selected Japanese reporters and two American correspondents, including the representative of the Associated Press, were allowed to take posts a few yards outside the Sukaiden. There the rites themselves were invisible, but the accompanying music could be heard.

Within the inclosure itself there were no foreigners. Only 300 Japanese actually participated in the observances, but 700 others were in attendance in outer halls from which, however, nothing of what was going on within the sanctuaries was visible.

There was a tremendous quiet about the whole affair. A careless observer fifty yards distant could not have guessed that a great state ceremony, with 1000 persons in attendance, was in progress less than 200 feet from him.

WEIRD MUSIC

From time to time the stillness was broken by weird ritualistic music. The voice of thin soft pipes rose plaintively and supplicatingly. Then it died away. The intervals between this pipe music were interspersed with the deeper harmony of other reeds. There were, too, occasional chants as the songs of the ancient rice farmers were intoned.

One could hear also the crackling of primitive watch fires and the chirpings of night birds and crickets. Once in a while there would be a tramp of marching feet or the subdued rattle of equipment as the guards were changed.

The city's deep overtone was audible. Efforts to deaden this had been made by stopping ordinary traffic on surrounding streets, but it could not be wiped out entirely.

NO LIGHTS SHOWN

No lights were visible within the sacred inclosure, but the reflection of the glow of the city was on the clouds which hung over the pine grove like a great awning.

What remains of the enthronement program is anticlimax celebratory banquets, visits to the great shrine at Ise and to the tombs of certain of his ancestors, military and naval reviews and popular celebrations.

The restoration of primitive Japan in which the "great thanksgiving" was enacted now must be demolished, but its huts of unhewn logs, thatch roofs and reed-screen walls are too sacred to be defiled by use for any other purpose than the august one they have just served.

DAWES BURIES BOYHOOD PAL

Vice-President Pays Tribute to Bowery Waiter Who Chummed With Him in Ohio School Days

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. (AP)—Charles G. Dawes, Vice-President of the United States, returned today from New York where, during his crowded hours, he took time to lay a carnation on the casket of a boyhood pal—Brad Hulbert, a waiter they called "The Gentleman of the Bowery."

It was a fine casket (the Vice-President had seen to that) in which Hulbert's body, clad in a dress suit, lay in state in the Globe Lodging-houses. Gen. Dawes had given certain orders, provided certain funds.

BOYHOOD FRIENDS

"He was my friend," the Vice-President said.

Back in Marietta, O., when Gen. Dawes and Brad Hulbert were boys, they were pals. Hulbert's father was a successful engineer, and they lived in one of the finest houses in town. Later the young Dawes was to go away, become an engineer himself, become prosperous. Brad Hulbert was to go away, too, but not to the high professional, financial and political peaks of his friend.

The paths of Charles G. Dawes and Brad Hulbert, which separated when Hulbert left home at the age of 20, crossed many years later in the old Rector's cafe here. The one had risen to power in the nation; the other was a waiter.

They saw each other frequently in those Rector days. Then Brad drifted. New York saw him. He continued as a waiter until the '60's crept upon him. Thus it came about that in the days when Gen. Dawes was presiding over the Senate of the United States, Brad Hulbert was earning the sobriquet, "The Gentleman of the Bowery."

HULBERT DIES

Brad had a manner. Though adversity pushed closely. Hulbert always had a way with him. Trousers were always pressed, shoes shined, nails manicured, and frayed linen kept immaculate. They tell of his strolling along the Bowery, giving a dime to a beggar. He would inquire one's opinion about "the administration at Washington," and this always gave him the opening to remark. "Charlie Dawes, you know, is a friend of mine."

The Bowery didn't believe him, but was too considerate to say so. Then the aging ex-waiter proved it by displaying a letter from Washington.

"It's from Charlie Dawes," he explained. "He's a friend of mine. He sent me some money."

Hulbert died last Saturday night, and the letters from Washington were found. Gen. Dawes, who was in New York, was notified.

Sunday morning a limousine drew up in front of the place where Brad Hulbert's body lay. Two men stepped out—a secret service man and the Vice-President.

"It's Charlie Dawes," some one whispered. "A friend of his."

Arizonans Set for Renewed Boulder Fight

PHOENIX, Nov. 14. (AP)—Plans for preventing the passage of the Swing-Johnson bill in the coming session of Congress, and of continuing the work of the Arizona Colorado River Commission have been launched by the members of the commission, together with Gov.-elect Phillips and Senator Hayden.

A conference, which started Monday and ended today, resulted in the commission announcing definite plans for the continuation of the fight.

Mulford Winsor, secretary of the commission, declared in a written statement that Arizona's stand on the river question is unchanged and that there will be no diminution of the effort of the commission "to bring about the development of the river on the basis of justice to Arizona as well as to all of the States of the basin."

West wired: "Met Elder Huish at boat. He thinks Burt is safe."

GRANGE URGES NEW FARM PLAN

Leaders See McNary-Haugen Measure as Dead

Farmers Advised to Accept Compromise Act

Legislative Plea in Unison Called Chief Need

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. (AP)—A declaration that the McNary-Haugen bill is dead was coupled today with a plea to farmers to unite on a legislative program in the address of Louis J. Tabor, master of the National Grange, at the opening session of that organization's convention.

The Grange master outlined an agricultural rehabilitation program which includes wider organization among farmers, tariff protection against many agricultural imports, organized marketing through the extension of co-operatives and the use of the export debenture "as a means of making the tariff effective on those staple farm crops of which we still produce a surplus."

Delegates from twenty-nine States were present at the session. They heard addresses of welcome from R. W. Dunlap, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, and Lowell J. Sherman, Tariff Commissioner, and past Master of the Grange.

Mr. Dunlap reiterated views he expressed four years ago "that the proper thing for the farmer to do is to accept from the Congress such legislation as the majority is willing to grant and the President to approve and build on this legislation from time to time as facts are discovered which make changes or amendments to the law seem necessary."

GROUP FIGHTING TO FREE PRESS

Publishers Warn Against Minnesota Action

Weekly Paper Suppressed by Injunction

Law Condemned as Setting Menacing Precedent

NORFOLK (Va.) Nov. 14. (AP)—Without comment upon the merits of the case, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, in the final session of its fall convention today, condemned the action of the Supreme Court of Minnesota in enjoining publication of the Saturday Press of Minneapolis and passed a resolution calling upon "all free and loyal Americans to demand the restoration of right to 'free speech'."

The convention declared the Minneapolis case "a menacing precedent."

The association, in a statement, said that the Saturday Press, which is not a member of its organization, has been enjoined from publication following its publishing of articles exposing racketeering, vice and gambling in Minneapolis and alleging inactivity and connivance on the part of police and public officials.

The statement condemned the Minnesota law under which the injunction was obtained. The Saturday Press has been aided by Chicago Tribune counsel, it added, in its attempt to overthrow the injunction and declare the statute unconstitutional and if necessary the case will be taken to the United States Supreme Court.

Mrs. Willebrandt on Way to Los Angeles

She Declares Hoover Will Effect Prohibition

Believes Wet Issue Decided Vote in Many States

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13. (Exclusive) — Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States Attorney-General and outstanding woman speaker of the recent Presidential campaign, stopped off here today on her way to Los Angeles from a conference with President-elect Hoover long enough to express the conviction that in Herbert Hoover the American public will have a President who will preserve the benefits of prohibition and eliminate many of its present abuses. While here she argued a corporation income tax case in the United States District Court of Appeals.

"Herbert Hoover will make his own plans for enforcement," she said. "I believe that his election will mean for this nation a clean, orderly, constructive and efficient enforcement of all laws, including prohibition. I am still convinced that prohibition can be enforced without the expenditure of a huge sum of money.

"Admitting some of the present irregularities and abuses, and bad as conditions may appear to local eyes, conditions are better throughout the country as a whole. Conditions are worse where local sympathy has broken down. This is a matter which requires time, training and patience. Prohibition, I believe, was a determining factor in the election in many States, especially those where the vote seemed surprising."

Mrs. Willebrandt refused to confirm the rumor that she contemplates quitting public life.

TRUTH COMES OUT AT LAST

Lady Astor Says Equality for Women Succeeds Superiority

LONDON, Nov. 14. (AP)—One need of the day, in the opinion of Lady Astor, is a society for the encouragement of men who fear equality with women.

"They need not be frightened," she encouraged. "We do not ask for superiority. We have always had that, we only want equality."

Counsel Asserts Northcott Will Forego Appeal

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Nov. 14. (AP) Although eight days remain within which he may appeal, Gordon Stewart Northcott, who has been committed for extradition to California on four charges of murder, will not raise any further obstacle to his return for trial, his counsel, Frank Lyons, said.

Judge Cayley formally committed Northcott for extradition on the 7th inst. The fifteen-day period, within which an appeal by way of writ of habeas corpus may be taken, will expire on the 22nd inst. In the meantime Northcott has stated that he will not appeal. In any event, Northcott cannot be removed from Oakalla jail, where he now is held, until the fifteen-day period for appeal has expired.

Italy to Build Radio Station of Great Power

ROME, Nov. 14. (AP)—Il Tevere said today that one of the most powerful broadcasting stations in Europe, capable of reaching the United States, will be constructed in the course of the coming year. It will be ready for inauguration on October 28, 1929, the anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome.

The newspaper said the decision to build the station was made at a meeting of the committee of vigilance for radio diffusion. The new plant will have a beam system of the Marconi type. It will be used for the sending of "national programs."

Armistice Speech Criticised by Birkenhead

Earl Asserts English Need No Lecturing

He Says America Entered War for Self

LONDON, Nov. 14. (AP)—The Earl of Birkenhead, until recently Secretary of State for India, was sharply critical of the Armistice Day speech of President Coolidge in an address tonight at a complimentary dinner tendered him.

"I thought there underlay in that speech a spirit of patronage and a capacity for giving advice to Europe and to England," the Earl said. "As far as England is concerned, I am not sure that we specially require it. We have not asked the United States, as far as I am aware, to do anything for us."

Asserting that America entered the war not from any desire to assist the Allies, but solely because American nationals were being murdered by German submarines, he said: "My answer to the President of the United States would be that we ask nothing from them except good will. When we discuss questions of naval construction, we do not specially invite lectures as to whether we are pacific or not in our purpose."

COMMUNIST ORGAN SEES NEW WORLD WAR

MOSCOW, Nov. 14. (AP)—Pravda, official organ of the Communist party, commenting today on President Coolidge's Armistice Day speech, expresses the opinion that it is symptomatic of a coming world war.

"American imperialism properly marked the tenth anniversary of the Armistice which ended the world slaughter," the newspaper says. "President Coolidge delivered a speech showing all people with eyes for the live truth that never since Versailles has the world been nearer a repetition of the sanguinary drama of 1914-1918."

DUCK HUNTERS RESCUED

Terror Engulfs Pair Struggling in Darkness

HIDEOUS ORDEAL IN RAGING OCEAN TOLD BY SURVIVOR

Great Black Waves Batter Man and Woman on Bit of Wreckage as Hungry Sea Gnaws Prey

(Paul A. Dana, representative of the Radio Corporation of America in South America, a passenger on the Vestris, and Mrs. Clara Ball, a stewardess on the Vestris, were called the pluckiest pair he had ever seen by Capt. Schuyler Cummings of the American Shipper, who rescued them. They had been floating in the water for twenty-two hours at the time of their rescue. Dana tells his story of the foundering and subsequent hours of terror in the following story.)

BY PAUL A. DANA

(On a sick bed, as told to Lorena A. Hickok)

[Copyright, 1928, by the Associated Press.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—"Our first night out, Saturday night, the Vestris began to hit rough weather. As the night progressed, the storm got worse, until, before the night was over, we were in the worst storm I ever saw on the sea.

"It was late that night—perhaps a little after midnight—that a thing happened which I believe started the trouble that ended in the tragic sinking of the Vestris.

"Two big waves hit her, almost simultaneously, bow and stern. The ship quivered from end to end. You could almost feel her wrenching. The next day she developed a leak, and I believe one of her plates must have been wrenched loose.

"It was rough Saturday night—and Sunday was rougher. Only four of the passengers besides myself were down for breakfast.

BEGINS TO WORRY

"The minute I stepped out of my cabin that morning, I began to feel uneasy. The Vestris was listing. I had been on steamers before that listed, but I had never seen quite such a list before. It looked bad.

"In the dining salon that morning I ran into Capt. Frederick Sorenson, and we started to talk things over. He did not like that list either. Inasmuch as he was a sailor, I decided he must know what he was talking about—that he was a good man to stay with. We spent most of the day together.

"Whether the other passengers were uneasy, I don't know. Most of them were violently seasick and spent the whole day in their bunks. As I said, there were only five down for breakfast. No more showed up for lunch or dinner.

"By the middle of the afternoon—while the storm still continued with no apparent let-up—the list had become so pronounced that all the furniture that wasn't fastened down in the dining salon and in the smoking room had slid over to the starboard side, where it was crashing around as the ship rolled.

"After dinner, Sorenson and I went into the smoking room and started for the bar. We managed to find two chairs wedged in on the starboard side of the smoking room, from which we could reach around into the bar. I had a couple of whiskys and sodas, felt a little better, and went to bed about 10 o'clock. After wedging my bed into [illegible] corner of the cabin so it couldn't [illegible] around, I got to sleep.

WATER IN CABIN

"My cabin was on the top deck, starboard side. When I woke up at [illegible] o'clock Monday morning there was the water, right on a level with my windows. There was water sloshing around on the floor of my cabin, too.

"My steward came in, groaning, with a badly wrenched shoulder. There was apparently a leak, he said, the hold was filling with water, and he had been bailing—with a bucket—all night. The cargo had shifted, too, and the ship had tipped clear over until the water was on a level with my windows on the top deck.

"I dressed as quickly as I could, ate the banana which was all my steward could get for my breakfast, and went up on the bow port deck.

"The crew was throwing the cargo overboard—all the stuff they could handle. It looked like bales of cloth and such stuff. Their derricks weren't working, so they couldn't get rid of the heavier things, like automobiles.

"A little crowd of men stood up there, leaning over the railing and watching the crew throw the stuff overboard. Some of them had come out with their life preservers on. They looked badly scared. Although I had dressed myself that morning with the idea that I'd probably have to leave the ship before the day was over, I tried not to take such a dark view of the thing. Some of us did what we could to cheer the more timid ones—told them this was just a precaution and so on.

WIND BLOWING HARD

"The sky had cleared during the night, and now the sun was shining brightly. The wind still was blowing hard, however—and those waves, great, towering black waves—they looked forty feet high.

"'Well, anyway, we've got a nice day to be wrecked on,'" one of the men remarked with a grin.

"Officers were going about, cheery but noncommital. They never told us anything. I never knew until after the Vestris had gone down that they had even sent out an SOS, although, when I went into the smoking room for a little while that morning and tried to read and divert my mind, I thought I heard the radio sort of sputtering.

"Once I went back to my cabin to try to rescue my money that I had left in a trunk. No use—the trunk was under water and wedged in under my bunk. I got my passport, stuck a pack of cigarettes in my pocket, and left—for good.

"The ship kept on tipping. It looked to me as though she had a list of 45 deg. You could hardly walk on the deck.

"At 10:30, the women and children were brought up and were told to put on life preservers. Still there was no definite information from the officers or crew.

WOMEN PROVE BRAVE

"The women were wonderful. Some of them were crying quietly—but there was no hysteria. One of them held in her arms a baby not more than 8 months old. All the children had been bundled up. They knew now that they would probably have to leave the ship.

"Isn't this fun?" I said to one little fellow with bright blue eyes, trying to cheer him up. He looked at his mother, who was crying, and nodded—solemnly.

"At 11:30 they started to launch the lifeboats, over the portside—the side that was up as she listed. Then the trouble began. It took them two hours to launch those boats, an operation that usually takes about ten minutes.

"The difficulty was that the lifeboats kept catching on the sides of the ship. The outsides of the lifeboats were covered with clapboards, like a frame house, and these would catch on the overlapping steel plates of the ship's hull. They tried to hold the lifeboats out—away from the ship—by pushing with oars. It was a slow and painful process.

"Boat No. 8, the lifeboat to which I was assigned, had a hole torn in her side as they were letting her down. They patched it up with a piece of tin before they let us in, but the tin didn't hold.

THEN SHIP SINKS

"When the boats were about twenty feet from the water, they told us to climb down the rope ladder and get in. Two boats were filled with women and children before they filled No. 8.

"In No. 8, before I got in, were ten women and two children, two youngsters about 6 or 8 years of age. One of the women was Clara Ball, with whom I subsequently floated on the piece of wreckage. Another was Mrs. Inoye, wife of the Counselor of the Japanese Embassy at Buenos Aires. The ship's bartender was aboard, and our crew consisted of four negro sailors.

"Three minutes after we pulled away the Vestris keeled over on her side and sank.

"I think one of the funniest things I saw was forty men, apparently all those left on board, racing madly down her side and diving off from her keel.

"One boat never got away at all. It was still on deck when she sank. They had tried to launch some from the starboard side, but they had had to cut them away before they could be filled. These were rowed around to where her keel had been when she went down, and they picked up a lot of the swimmers.

"She went down silently, with just a little puff of steam. Her boilers must have been cold. The engine room had not been functioning all morning.

LIFEBOAT FILLS

"Just a few minutes after we pulled away, our lifeboat began to fill with water. The tin patch tore away. She had air compartments, however, so that we could stay in her, even after she was under water.

"Still the women tried to keep calm, although the tears streamed down their cheeks. There was no screaming.

"One of the children started to whimper. His mother—hastily drying her eyes—tried to comfort him.

"It wasn't long before a big wave came along and capsized us. I got caught under the lifeboat as she turned over. I wasn't hurt, except for a little scrape on my neck. As I struggled out from under, I saw a woman's foot bob up. I grabbed it and hauled her with me. It was Mrs. Ball.

"One of the women had been drowned when the boat tipped over. Most of the occupants came up, however, including the children.

"We all got on one side, pulled, and manager to right it again. The women and children climbed in.

"But the waves were pounding it to pieces. The air compartments, stored under the seats, tore loose. She was breaking up.

"Great black waves—they looked to be 100 feet high from where we were—kept pounding down on us.

THEY DISAPPEAR

"The children disappeared, and the women—all except Mrs. Ball.

"I saw a piece of wood—wreckage—floating in the water near by, 'Come on,' I said. We swam to it.

"'Take hold of one end,' I told her, 'and I'll take the other.' Silently she did so—never a whimper out of her. We then proceeded to make ourselves as comfortable as we could—to wait for help.

"The water was warm—warmer than you find it in an indoor swimming tank. It was so warm, in fact, that you hardly gasped when you plunged in. The fact that it was warm probably helped to save our lives. But it was enervating, too.

"Mrs. Ball was fully dressed—with a coat and sweater on under her life preserver. She had on gloves, which certainly saved her hands. Mine are all cut up.

"'What in the world is that you have stuck in the front of your life preserver?' I asked her.

"She grinned and pulled up a slipper. Her feet were so narrow, she explained, that she had a hard time getting shoes to fit, and she wanted to save this pair if she could.

WOMAN PRAISED

"Through the afternoon we clung to the spar. It wasn't so bad, except for the waves. Our life preservers held us up, and having something to cling to made it easier to keep our heads out of the water. Only every now and then a great big wave would come crashing down on us, almost knocking the life out of our bodies and smothering us in foam.

"I think the hardest thing was to keep from getting excited and floundering about. We had to save our strength and not move about unnecessarily. Mrs. Ball was wonderful. She showed iron nerve. Never a whimper out of her.

"Several times during the afternoon we tried to hail the life boats, but they couldn't hear us or see us because of the waves. I don't think they passed us up deliberately. It's pretty hard to spot a swimmer in waves like those.

"Toward sunset it began to cloud up. And then a thought flashed into my mind that made me feel a little sick all over. Sharks.

"I don't know whether Mrs. Ball ever thought of them or not. If she did, she kept still about it.

"During that long night of waves and wind and rain we clung to the spar—talking intermittently. She told me that she was a stewardess. When we made for the spar and for several hours after we had attached ourselves to it, I had no idea who she was.

"I confess that we spent a good deal of time cussing out Capt. Carey for not getting those radio messages out earlier. Mrs. Ball had heard that one went out at 8 o'clock Monday morning and had been canceled.

"We agreed, though, that it was a tough break for the captain. Nobody likes to admit he's licked until he has to. Probably he thought the Vestris would ride it out.

"I'd like to know if it's true, though, that he sent out an S O S at 8 o'clock and then canceled it.

"The night wore on. Several times we saw the searchlights of ships. They were too far away to see us then, but it gave us hope. And several times fish brushed against my body in the water and I squirmed. Mrs. Ball never said a word, if she noticed them. If she was undergoing what I was, she never let on at all. I decided to hold on, anyway, and wait until a shark actually attacked me before I let go.

"At daybreak came the worst moment of all for us. As the dawn broke—not a ship was in sight. And our piece of wreckage was beginning to break up. We had to hold it together while using it for a support.

"At about 11 o'clock we sighted the Wyoming. She must have been twenty miles away. But our spar was practically gone.

"'How about it?' I asked Mrs. Ball, 'shall we swim for it?'

"Without a word she started off toward the Wyoming. I kept by her side.

"We had been swimming for an hour, when I looked back and saw the American Shipper. She was only about a mile away and coming toward us.

"I tore off the tail of my shirt and waved it wildly in the air. They saw it. A boat was lowered.

"As we got up alongside they threw a rope. I fastened it around my body under my arms and grabbed Mrs. Ball. I had an idea that when she could give in she'd go quickly. I was right.

"They hauled us into the boat and then hoisted us up in one of those rope cages they use for hoisting cargo. We never could have made it climbing a ladder. We were much too weak.

"I never was treated more wonderfully in my life than I was on the American Shipper. Th doctor ripped my clothes off, gave me a couple shots of whisky and an alcohol rub, and told me to go to sleep, which I certainly did. When I woke up the steward was ready to shave me. My clothes were all dried.

"I guess there's just one thing more. About five minutes after we were hoisted aboard the American Shipper a body floated alongside. And two sharks—"

DANA TO TRY AGAIN NEXT SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—Paul A. Dana, who gave to the Associated Press a graphic description of the sinking of the Vestris, is going to try the voyage again next Saturday, he said tonight.

Although he is in bed under doctor's orders to keep absolutely quiet, he announced that he would sail again Saturday for Rio Janeiro, where he is Brazilian representative of the Radio Corporation of America.

Mr. Dana's physical condition is good, the doctor said, but he is suffering from exhaustion. His body also is somewhat battered.

SEA CAPTAIN GIVES STORY OF TRAGEDY

Brooklyn Man on Vestris Trip for Health Places Blame on Ship's Master

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (Exclusive)—Perhaps the best qualified witness as to the cause of the sinking of the Vestris is Frederick Sorenson, himself a steamship captain, who was aboard the ill-fated liner and was rescued from a life boat by the American Shipper.

Capt. Sorenson, living in the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, left the Marine Hospital, where he had undergone an operation to sail to Barbados on the Vestris, on what was to have been a voyage of recuperation. That he survived his experience at all in his weakened condition he ascribed to little short of a miracle.

"I know all about the ships," Capt. Sorenson said. "In my opinion it was criminal neglect that the Vestris foundered.

"And as for the members of the crew who refused to pick up women on a foundering lifeboat, leaving them to drown, they were murderers.

"The captain of the Vestris did everything wrong. He had plenty of time to send out SOS calls. He knew Sunday night that the ship was in danger and had plenty of time to get rescuing vessels alongside.

"It was Sunday night that water began pouring into the hold. The weather was not particularly bad. There was a moderate gale, but the sea was not rough. I believe that the ship was in bad repair when it started from New York. I believe also that a wave broke through one of the cargo doors in the side of the ship, flooding the hold and causing the cargo to shift."

CRIPPLED SCHOONER LURCHES INTO PORT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14. (AP)—The lumber schooner Gen. Smuts, operated by W. L. Comyn & Co., of San Francisco, reached port today from Seattle. The vessel was listing badly and flew a flag at half mast. Battered by storms the schooner nearly capsized off the coast. A sailor, William Belward of West Hartlepool, Eng., died of heart disease as the ship was bar-bound outside the harbor.

William Carlos Quiros, Chancellor of the Argentine Embassy at Washington, rescued by the S. S. Berlin, wrote for The Times and North American Newspaper Alliance the following account of his experience at the sinking of the Vestris. It gives a moving and graphic picture of the disaster.

BY WILLIAM CARLOS QUIROS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (Exclusive) Common sense, alone, would have sufficed to foretell that the Vestris was doomed, as early as Sunday evening, when the ship began to list further and further as each oncoming wave battered its hull.

I had retired early not feeling particularly hungry. The Vestris seemed to dance to the rhythm of the waves and the tune of the throbbing engines. I noticed that the curtains at the porthole hung over to the right, swinging further to the right at each succeeding jolt. I wondered why. Then I realized that the ship was listing.

I was suddenly awakened by a shock. I put on my shoes and trousers and went on deck. It may have been 10 or 11 o'clock, I don't recall the exact hour. I met an officer who, when I pressed him for information concerning what was happening, told me that everything was "O. K." He advised me to go back to bed so I did.

"NO DANGER," SAYS CAPTAIN

When I got up on Monday morning I noticed that the speed of the steamer had slowed visibly. I discovered that the sea already had flooded the lower decks. Members of the crew were endeavoring to bail it out with buckets. Such futility! You might as well try to empty a river with a drinking glass!

I then went to Capt. Carey and asked him whether there was any danger.

"No danger at all," he replied. "We shall have this trouble over very soon. Then everything will be all right."

I am sure that the captain, at that time, already was aware that the Vestris was doomed. I am not trying to besmirch the memory of a man who went down with his craft, but I am overflowing with indignation that the tragedy happened—a tragedy which, in my opinion, could have been easily averted if an earlier SOS call had been sent.

Disregarding the optimism of the captain I got hold of a life-preserver and put it on underneath my overcoat. Several passengers laughed at me as I made a tour of the deck.

About 11 o'clock, the situation became critical. I shall never forget the moment when the captain finally gave orders for the lifeboats to be launched. White-faced, without cap, he stood on the hurricane deck. He seemed a broken man.

"Women and children to the right!" he shouted.

There was a rush and all women on board soon were lined up and placed in two boats—boats which never got away from the stricken liner, and sank with it plunging their human burden beneath the waves.

Utterly lacking in ability to handle the boats, members of the crew were befuddled and were unable to disentangle the ropes which made the craft fast to the sides of the steamer.

THEY LEAP INTO SEA

With William W. Davies, general representative of La Nacion, of Buenos Aires, in New York, I stood on deck to the very last. I had heard that ships sometimes remain afloat several days. I thought that by staying aboard we had a better chance to save our lives.

S. S. Koppe, a friend of ours, had already left the steamer and taken a place in boat No. 8, one of the two boats which sank with the Vestris.

Suddenly we heard something which sounded like a pistol shot.

"The captain has shot himself," I told Davies.

We turned our eyes to the hurricane deck and saw that the master of the vessel was still there, standing to his post. The "shot" had merely been an explosion of steam, probably caused by the pressure of the water filling the liner.

"Time to go," I called to Davies.

We shook hands and jumped overboard.

I swam for a boat standing near by. But it was too full. A countrywoman of mine, a young lady with golden hair, extended her hand to me. "Come on," she said. I realized there were too many on board already, and invited her to swim with me to another boat, a little farther away, which was occupied by five negroes only. She shook her head. I went on alone.

The negroes pulled me in. For awhile we drifted. Other passengers came to our boat and were lifted in.

"PLEASE MAN, DON'T SWEAR"

When night came the negroes began to get uneasy. They rowed madly in all directions, and sent rockets up in the sky. I thought it would have been better to remain still. Rowing made the boat cut the waves too sharply, and we shipped a lot of water.

There followed a procession of dreary hours. Cold, hungry and thirsty, I lay down. An Italian, a thin fellow, was shivering next to me. I went to sleep, but not for long. A kick in my shins brought me back to life. A giant negro, sitting near me, was the donor of the kick. Why he did it I do not know. I know, however, that I got angry and let slip a number of words not fit for publication. The negro began to tremble. "Now, man," he said, "don't swear just now. Please, man, don't swear."

As time went by and not a ship appeared I began to have serious fears for our safety. We had more than a foot of water in the boat and I doubted that we could keep afloat very much longer. Just as I was putting my soul in the care of my maker two steamers approached.

Terror Engulfs Pair Struggling in Darkness

Great Black Waves Batter Man and Woman on Bit of Wreckage as Hungry Sea Gnaws Prey

(Paul A. Dana, representative of the Radio Corporation of America in South America, a passenger on the Vestris, and Mrs. Clara Ball, a stewardess on the Vestris, were called the pluckiest pair he had ever seen by Capt. Schuyler Cummings of the American Shipper, who rescued them. They had been floating in the water for twenty-two hours at the time of their rescue. Dana tells his story of the foundering and subsequent hours of terror in the following story.)

BY PAUL A. DANA

(On a sick bed, as told to Lorena A. Hickok)

[Copyright, 1928, by the Associated Press.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—"Our first night out, Saturday night, the Vestris began to hit rough weather. As the night progressed, the storm got worse, until, before the night was over, we were in the worst storm I ever saw on the sea.

"It was late that night—perhaps a little after midnight—that a thing happened which I believe started the trouble that ended in the tragic sinking of the Vestris.

"Two big waves hit her, almost simultaneously, bow and stern. The ship quivered from end to end. You could almost feel her wrenching. The next day she developed a leak, and I believe one of her plates must have been wrenched loose.

"It was rough Saturday night—and Sunday was rougher. Only four of the passengers besides myself were down for breakfast.

BEGINS TO WORRY

"The minute I stepped out of my cabin that morning, I began to feel uneasy. The Vestris was listing. I had been on steamers before that listed, but I had never seen quite such a list before. It looked bad.

"In the dining salon that morning I ran into Capt. Frederick Sorenson, and we started to talk things over. He did not like that list either. Inasmuch as he was a sailor, I decided he must know what he was talking about—that he was a good man to stay with. We spent most of the day together.

"Whether the other passengers were uneasy, I don't know. Most of them were violently seasick and spent the whole day in their bunks. As I said, there were only five down for breakfast. No more showed up for lunch or dinner.

"By the middle of the afternoon—while the storm still continued with no apparent let-up—the list had become so pronounced that all the furniture that wasn't fastened down in the dining salon and in the smoking room had slid over to the starboard side, where it was crashing around as the ship rolled.

"After dinner, Sorenson and I went into the smoking room and started for the bar. We managed to find two chairs wedged in on the starboard side of the smoking room, from which we could reach around into the bar. I had a couple of whiskys and sodas, felt a little better, and went to bed about 10 o'clock. After wedging my bed into a corner of the cabin so it couldn't slide around, I got to sleep.

WATER IN CABIN

"My cabin was on the top deck, starboard side. When I woke up at 8 o'clock Monday morning there was the water, right on a level with my windows. There was water sloshing around on the floor of my cabin, too.

"My steward came in, groaning, with a badly wrenched shoulder. There was apparently a leak, he said, the hold was filling with water, and he had been bailing—with a bucket—all night. The cargo had shifted, too, and the ship had tipped clear over until the water was on a level with my windows on the top deck.

"I dressed as quickly as I could, ate the banana which was all my steward could get for my breakfast, and went up on the bow port deck.

"The crew was throwing the cargo overboard—all the stuff they could handle. It looked like bales of cloth and such stuff. Their derricks weren't working, so they couldn't get rid of the heavier things, like automobiles.

"A little crowd of men stood up there, leaning over the railing and watching the crew throw the stuff overboard. Some of them had come out with their life preservers on. They looked badly scared. Although I had dressed myself that morning with the idea that I'd probably have to leave the ship before the day was over, I tried not to take such a dark view of the thing. Some of us did what we could to cheer the more timid ones—told them this was just a precaution and so on.

WIND BLOWING HARD

"The sky had cleared during the night, and now the sun was shining brightly. The wind still was blowing hard, however—and those waves, great, towering black waves—they looked forty feet high.

"'Well, anyway, we've got a nice day to be wrecked on,'" one of the men remarked with a grin.

"Officers were going about, cheery but noncommital. They never told us anything. I never knew until after the Vestris had gone down that they had even sent out an SOS, although, when I went into the smoking room for a little while that morning and tried to read and divert my mind, I thought I heard the radio sort of sputtering.

"Once I went back to my cabin to try to rescue my money that I had left in a trunk. No use—the trunk was under water and wedged in under my bunk. I got my passport, stuck a pack of cigarettes in my pocket, and left—for good.

"The ship kept on tipping. It looked to me as though she had a list of 45 deg. You could hardly walk on the deck.

"At 10:30, the women and children were brought up and were told to put on life preservers. Still there was no definite information from the officers or crew.

WOMEN PROVE BRAVE

"The women were wonderful. Some of them were crying quietly—but there was no hysteria. One of them held in her arms a baby not more than 8 months old. All the children had been bundled up. They knew now that they would probably have to leave the ship.

"Isn't this fun?" I said to one little fellow with bright blue eyes, trying to cheer him up. He looked at his mother, who was crying, and nodded—solemnly.

"At 11:30 they started to launch the lifeboats, over the portside—the side that was up as she listed. Then the trouble began. It took them two hours to launch those boats, an operation that usually takes about ten minutes.

"The difficulty was that the lifeboats kept catching on the sides of the ship. The outsides of the lifeboats were covered with clapboards, like a frame house, and these would catch on the overlapping steel plates of the ship's hull. They tried to hold the lifeboats out—away from the ship—by pushing with oars. It was a slow and painful process.

"Boat No. 8, the lifeboat to which I was assigned, had a hole torn in her side as they were letting her down. They patched it up with a piece of tin before they let us in, but the tin didn't hold.

THEN SHIP SINKS

"When the boats were about twenty feet from the water, they told us to climb down the rope ladder and get in. Two boats were filled with women and children before they filled No. 8.

"In No. 8, before I got in, were ten women and two children, two youngsters about 6 or 8 years of age. One of the women was Clara Ball, with whom I subsequently floated on the piece of wreckage. Another was Mrs. Inoye, wife of the Counselor of the Japanese Embassy at Buenos Aires. The ship's bartender was aboard, and our crew consisted of four negro sailors.

"Three minutes after we pulled away the Vestris keeled over on her side and sank.

"I think one of the funniest things I saw was forty men, apparently all those left on board, racing madly down her side and diving off from her keel.

"One boat never got away at all. It was still on deck when she sank. They had tried to launch some from the starboard side, but they had had to cut them away before they could be filled. These were rowed around to where her keel had been when she went down, and they picked up a lot of the swimmers.

"She went down silently, with just a little puff of steam. Her boilers must have been cold. The engine room had not been functioning all morning.

LIFEBOAT FILLS

"Just a few minutes after we pulled away, our lifeboat began to fill with water. The tin patch tore away. She had air compartments, however, so that we could stay in her, even after she was under water.

"Still the women tried to keep calm, although the tears streamed down their cheeks. There was no screaming.

"One of the children started to whimper. His mother—hastily drying her eyes—tried to comfort him.

"It wasn't long before a big wave came along and capsized us. I got caught under the lifeboat as she turned over. I wasn't hurt, except for a little scrape on my neck. As I struggled out from under, I saw a woman's foot bob up. I grabbed it and hauled her with me. It was Mrs. Ball.

"One of the women had been drowned when the boat tipped over. Most of the occupants came up, however, including the children.

"We all got on one side, pulled, and manager to right it again. The women and children climbed in.

"But the waves were pounding it to pieces. The air compartments, stored under the seats, tore loose. She was breaking up.

"Great black waves—they looked to be 100 feet high from where we were—kept pounding down on us.

THEY DISAPPEAR

"The children disappeared, and the women—all except Mrs. Ball.

"I saw a piece of wood—wreckage—floating in the water near by, 'Come on,' I said. We swam to it.

"'Take hold of one end,' I told her, 'and I'll take the other.' Silently she did so—never a whimper out of her. We then proceeded to make ourselves as comfortable as we could—to wait for help.

"The water was warm—warmer than you find it in an indoor swimming tank. It was so warm, in fact, that you hardly gasped when you plunged in. The fact that it was warm probably helped to save our lives. But it was enervating, too.

"Mrs. Ball was fully dressed—with a coat and sweater on under her life preserver. She had on gloves, which certainly saved her hands. Mine are all cut up.

"'What in the world is that you have stuck in the front of your life preserver?' I asked her.

"She grinned and pulled up a slipper. Her feet were so narrow, she explained, that she had a hard time getting shoes to fit, and she wanted to save this pair if she could.

WOMAN PRAISED

"Through the afternoon we clung to the spar. It wasn't so bad, except for the waves. Our life preservers held us up, and having something to cling to made it easier to keep our heads out of the water. Only every now and then a great big wave would come crashing down on us, almost knocking the life out of our bodies and smothering us in foam.

"I think the hardest thing was to keep from getting excited and floundering about. We had to save our strength and not move about unnecessarily. Mrs. Ball was wonderful. She showed iron nerve. Never a whimper out of her.

"Several times during the afternoon we tried to hail the life boats, but they couldn't hear us or see us because of the waves. I don't think they passed us up deliberately. It's pretty hard to spot a swimmer in waves like those.

"Toward sunset it began to cloud up. And then a thought flashed into my mind that made me feel a little sick all over. Sharks.

"I don't know whether Mrs. Ball ever thought of them or not. If she did, she kept still about it.

"During that long night of waves and wind and rain we clung to the spar—talking intermittently. She told me that she was a stewardess. When we made for the spar and for several hours after we had attached ourselves to it, I had no idea who she was.

"I confess that we spent a good deal of time cussing out Capt. Carey for not getting those radio messages out earlier. Mrs. Ball had heard that one went out at 8 o'clock Monday morning and had been canceled.

"We agreed, though, that it was a tough break for the captain. Nobody likes to admit he's licked until he has to. Probably he thought the Vestris would ride it out.

"I'd like to know if it's true, though, that he sent out an S O S at 8 o'clock and then canceled it.

"The night wore on. Several times we saw the searchlights of ships. They were too far away to see us then, but it gave us hope. And several times fish brushed against my body in the water and I squirmed. Mrs. Ball never said a word, if she noticed them. If she was undergoing what I was, she never let on at all. I decided to hold on, anyway, and wait until a shark actually attacked me before I let go.

"At daybreak came the worst moment of all for us. As the dawn broke—not a ship was in sight. And our piece of wreckage was beginning to break up. We had to hold it together while using it for a support.

"At about 11 o'clock we sighted the Wyoming. She must have been twenty miles away. But our spar was practically gone.

"'How about it?' I asked Mrs. Ball, 'shall we swim for it?'

"Without a word she started off toward the Wyoming. I kept by her side.

"We had been swimming for an hour, when I looked back and saw the American Shipper. She was only about a mile away and coming toward us.

"I tore off the tail of my shirt and waved it wildly in the air. They saw it. A boat was lowered.

"As we got up alongside they threw a rope. I fastened it around my body under my arms and grabbed Mrs. Ball. I had an idea that when she could give in she'd go quickly. I was right.

"They hauled us into the boat and then hoisted us up in one of those rope cages they use for hoisting cargo. We never could have made it climbing a ladder. We were much too weak.

"I never was treated more wonderfully in my life than I was on the American Shipper. Th doctor ripped my clothes off, gave me a couple shots of whisky and an alcohol rub, and told me to go to sleep, which I certainly did. When I woke up the steward was ready to shave me. My clothes were all dried.

of adventure voyage about 4 afternoon, I was my cabin while in an op- We were remarking the boat was rolling heavy sea broke all the glass and sash clear across the cabin onto my bed, absolutely swamping the cabin. I called the steward and he gave us a cabin on the opposite side of the ship while they tried to clear up the one I formerly occupied. That was on the port side. In the starboard cabin we found the floor was sloping so badly that it was extremely difficult to walk about, and when I awoke on Monday morning and looked through the window it was like looking at the bottom of a well. The list was so great that I could not see the horizon at all. It was very difficult to stand upright in the cabin.

Even on Sunday night the list was too great to eat in the dining-room. There were a few people gathered there, but we decided it would be safer to have dinner in the cabin and the steward brought a couple of plates of cold meat. While we were eating this, the boat gave a sudden startling lurch and almost every table in the dining-room was swept from its base and thrown across the room. Food and chairs were scattered in all directions.

SKIPPER ON DUTY

We asked for information from such officers as were available but they told us that it was just a temporary list, and that everything was all right, and the list would be corrected during the morning.

However, it got worse and worse and some of the passengers who were either more seasoned travelers or nervous decided that it would be too disky to go to bed, and they did not undress on Sunday night.

I must say I did not take such a serious view of the matter, but I decided early on Monday morning that we were facing a critical state of affairs. I had been in position with Mr. Koppe at the captain's table and we were surprised that we had not seen him. He did not come to dinner on Saturday night, nor to any meals on Sunday, and the next time I saw him was about an hour or two before the end when he was directing operations from the boat deck.

BEARINGS INACCURATE

I sent a message to him early on Monday morning stating that I would like to see him, because I wanted to send a story about the condition of the boat. However, the captain sent back word that no story could be sent through. I then went to the wireless room and talked with the four operators who were there. I explained to them that I was a newspaper man, and they let me stay. I remained for nearly an hour listening to an extraordinary exchange of messages, and I knew their purport because one radio officer would repeat them to another. I sat on the precariously sloping floor of the wireless room with my feet wedged against the legs of the table. Without such an anchor I would have slid across the room. The operators themselves stood at their desks balanced on one leg and making the best they could of a very difficult situation. It was perhaps 9 o'clock when I first went to the wireless room and I remained there for about an hour. At first they sent out the messages obtaining the bearings and position of the Vestris and then one of the officers went to Capt. Carey and reported the position of boats whose aid could be called. Several vessels were called and answered. As far as I could gather some of these were as much as 300 miles away. I talked to the operators in between times and they told me that the nearest boat seemed to be the Santa Barbara, about sixty miles away. I asked him where he figured the Vestris was at that time and he said about 100 miles east of Cape May. It now seems perfectly clear that there was some mistake in giving the bearings of the Vestris as both the Japanese boat and the Santa Barbara were on the spot given in the wireless messages fairly promptly but this location was inaccurate owing to the Vestris having drifted a long way during the night.

CARGO DUMPED

Before I went to the wireless room on Monday morning I heard a lot of noise around the forward hatches, and clinging to the rail I made my way forward to see what was happening. A lot of the colored crew in charge of some officer were dumping cargo overboard. They were picking up boxes of merchandise (most of it seemed to be hardware destined for Brazil) and would tilt it down the side of the deck and slip it overboard. It seemed a very futile proceeding as they were taking the cargo from midships and were not making very much progress. I left them at their work and went to the radio office.

As the morning wore on it was clear that the passengers were becoming nervous, but they were still told by such officers as could be seen that the ship would be righted. It then was generally known that the S.O.S. messages had been sent out. The general call was made some time before 10 o'clock in the morning. At about 12 o'clock orders were given to lower the boats, but it seemed an interminable business, possibly because of the list of the ship, which I understand was then about 30 degrees.

BOAT-LAUNCHING SLOW

Even allowing for difficulties because of the list the lowering of the boats was very slow. All sorts of aggravating hitches seemed to occur. The boat would not slip down on its skid and when it did there were difficulties in keeping it level. Of course, it may be a very delicate operation to lower boats half resting on the side of a listed steamer. However that may be, the passengers were very impatient and critical. By 1:45 p.m. the four boats on the port side were ready for the water. Then came the order which I suppose has always a terrible thrill—"Women and children first." By this time the passengers were clustered around the rail and were finding it a little difficult to hold on because the backward lean of the rail.

The business of leading the women seemed very slow because they were so nervous. This was particularly the case with negro women who repeatedly held up operations by standing terrified on the ladders and not moving.

Meanwhile as the passengers were clinging to the top rail on the port side somebody came along and said that the captain had given the order to lower some of the women and children into boats from the starboard side. This really meant that they had to be sent down the midship deck which then was sloping at a horrible angle. In fact, it was quite impossible for anybody to walk down it.

The women sat on the floor and tried to make their way to the rail, but eventually they eased themselves down by means of a rope. As a matter of fact, the deck was sloping so sharply that it was impossible to slide down without catapulting over the starboard rail into the ocean. Blankets were tied together to let some of the smaller children down to the starboard side. It was pitiful to see the horrified faces of the mothers as their crying children made this perilous descent.

SERIOUS CHARGES DISCLOSED

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—Charges made by surviving passengers of the Vestris, which are to be investigated by the Federal authorities, include:

Failure to ask aid in time.

Delay in abandoning the sinking ship.

Failure to warn passengers and crew of danger.

Defective life boat equipment. Flares in life boat said to be wet. Lantern in one boat, but no oil. One boat broken to pieces when it capsized. One boat leaking.

Failure to close bulkheads tightly before liner sailed. Also charge bulkheads were weak.

Mishandling of life boats, allowing some to dangle in midair until passengers were spilled oor ship sank.

Misconduct by some members of crew in failing to assist persons struggling in water.

There was one baby in the cabin opposite mine. I watched him from my door several times during Sunday night as he sat in his perambulator. This was one of the children loaded into an ill-fated boat on the starboard side which smashed when it was being launched. It is doubtful in any case whether an infant of that age could have survived the frightful experiences of a cold, stormy night in an open boat.

Three or four boats were lowered on the starboard side. This seemed a harder task than on the port side, although I must admit I did not watch the operations very closely on the port side, because of the difficulty of climbing up again after one had made the descent. At least two of these boats were occupied largely by negroes, with, of course, some of the ship's officers in charge.

RAIL AWASH

When the boat finally sank I was one of several passengers waiting to get aboard one of the two final boats on the port side. One of them had got away and there was still one left. While women and children went first into three of those boats, one of them was occupied almost exclusively by men. Some other passengers and I had asked about what boats were available for us, and the captain replied that there were two boats on the starboard side.

We walked aft, but as the starboard rail was awash, it seemed almost impossible to board a boat there. Moreover, I got a fleeting glimpse through the sloping shaft that had been the midships deck of a boat being smashed up, so the prospects of getting aboard on that side did not seem very encouraging. We then went back to the captain and said there seemed to us to be room in the boat that was still hanging on the port side. He said all right, that he would arrange for us to get aboard that.

SHIP GOES DOWN

It was while we were planning to do this that the Vestris suddenly tilted on her side and went down. I found myself clinging to the rail and the rail, instead of being horizontal was absolutely perpendicular. My feet were dangling and it was hard to keep hold. Below I got a glimpse of a seething mass of water rushing up through the midship deck to meet me, carrying with it deck chairs and debris of all kinds.

When the water had reached within about ten feet of me I dropped and with about a dozen others went gurgling into this horrible well. I have never heard such noises. Explosions were not particularly loud. But there seemed to be an imminent threat that they would be followed by a terrific blowing up of the whole vessel. Fortunately this did not happen. At the same time I was conscious of some overpowering chemical which seemed to me something like ammonia. These fumes rose suffocatingly over the rising water.

As I dropped I remembered calculating the chances of ever getting out of the boat again and I seemed to go down a long way. I put my hands above my head as part of some rapidly-conceived subconscious plan to save myself from being thrown against the floating timber on the surface above. It seemed a long time before I came up, but I suppose it was only a matter of a few moments.

BREATH CONSERVED

At that time I felt that there was but a very faint hope of my surviving. But I had a strong feeling that death by drowning would be very difficult. I had always heard that drowning was an easy death but I found myself carefully holding my breath while below, nursing my energies. As I sank with the steamer I was so long in coming to the surface that I had a terrific feeling of suffocation but that disappeared after a breath or two of fresh air.

Around me there were deck chairs, floating wreckage and an incredible mass of woodwork. There were also dozens of people in the water, some near by and others some distance away. By that time the Vestris must have sunk, as when I reached the surface I saw nothing of her.

I found myself able to swim fairly well, especially with the support of a life belt. I supported myself by clinging first to a chair, then to part of a hatch, on which I scrambled, next to a piece of heavy timber which offered good support. In this boiling and seething mass of water and wood I caught sight of my friend Mr. Koppe, who was clinging to what looked like a small raft, but this may have been the top of a hatch. A heavy wave came along and I was hurled off the board to which I was clinging when it collided with a tightly wedged mass of heavy wreckage.

NEGRO HAS KNIFE

I last saw Mr. Koppe floating on this heavy covering or raft as the current swirled us apart. At this time I was able to look around me and I saw numbers of people swimming in the water, but most of the boats were holding off, apparently feeling that they had their full complement. I saw two boats which were cruising around in the wreckage, but they did not come very near. I found that I had time to shift from one piece of timber to another until finally I reached a broken, overturned boat. It was lying completely upside down on the water and I managed to scramble on top of it, and from this position to look around.

A curious thing happened while I was in this position. There were many negroes floating around among the wreckage. One of them was lying on top of a piece of timber that might have been a surf board used in Hawaii. He was swimming with his left hand, while in his right hand he held an open knife. The end of his board drifted quite close to my leg as it dangled from the overturned boat. I remember being very much puzzled in that moment of detachment as to why he carried that knife, whether it was to ward off the attacks of sharks or to dispute anyone else's claiming his float.

MRS. DEVORE IN BOAT

How long I remained there I do not know, but it was possibly half or three-quarters of an hour. I hailed one boat which had picked up a man near by, but the occupants made no response. Then I saw another one making in my direction and I called and waved my arm. They came to within about twenty feet and said that they could not approach any nearer because of the danger of smashing the boat on the heavy timber floating about. They told me to swim. I managed to throw off my overcoat quickly and jumped into the water. As I got near the boat they handed me the end of a boathook and lifted me aboard. I was suffering somewhat from cramps. Meanwhile, I noticed two other boats cruising among the wreckage and picking up some of the men who were floating about. The boat that picked me up was smaller than most of the others. I understand it was known as the captain's boat. There were two men aboard who were in charge, George Hansel and T. Griffin, who certainly did splendid work. There was also one woman aboard the boat, Mrs. Devore. The rest were members of the crew, three or four, possibly more, of them being negroes.

Both Hansel and Griffin worked hard at rowing and keeping the negro rowers busy and seeing that the boat was kept bailed. One or two of the negroes complained that they had been awake all night and they wanted to go to sleep and that there wasn't any sense in rowing anyway, so they spread themselves on the bottom of the boat and went to sleep.

When Griffin told them that unless they kept rowing and kept the boat bailed there would be no chance of rescue, they simply became insolent and he had to keep them in order by alternating threats and tact. Hansel, the storekeeper of the boat, worked hard at the rowing in spite of a terribly battered arm.

COLD PENETRATES

Of course we expected that at any moment the Santa Barbara would come in sight, but night fell without any sign of a rescue ship. I had found myself quite warm while in the water but once I got into the boat the penetrating wind was frightfully cold. I had no overcoat to protect me, but although wet through I found the life belt acted as some protection from the biting wind. The water was fairly calm for a while so we put out a sea anchor, huddled ourselves together for warmth and kept an eye on the horizon for signs of a relief ship. We had ten red flares and used them sparingly. The experiences of the night were awful.

The sky would be clear for half an hour and then heavy clouds would gather and rain would descend on us with a strong wind stirring up the ocean. Half a dozen times the wind would partially dry my clothes and then another heavy rainfall would wet them again.

SEARCHLIGHT SEEN

At about 3 o'clock in the morning, when the hopes of everybody were running very low, somebody espied the very definite sweep of a searchlight across the sky. I have never seen anything that looked so good. Just at that time, however, dark clouds started to gather and rain fell in torrents and the sea ran high. It was through these hazardous waves of this driving storm that the searchlight was seen. It seemed like following a will of the wisp. It never appeared to get any nearer. At last, however, we picked out not only the searchlight but the lights of the boats as well. We then lighted up our last red flare and rowing fast made for the boat. As we came near we raised several shouts. Cummings told me afterward that if it had not been for our shouting he would have missed us. He said he did not see us and just as he was about to move his position we hailed him.

It was at 5 o'clock in the morning that we reached the side of the American Shipper. There were high waves and it was a hazardous job climbing up the rope ladders. Finally the crew of the American Shipper told the men to simply hold onto the ladders while they pulled them aboard. Once on the Shipper we were given coffee and the much-needed warm blankets. The only other passenger on board this boat was Mrs. Devore of Los Angeles.

COURAGE SHOWN

She showed rare courage under very trying conditions.

Just shortly after I was picked up we saw that one of the other boats heavily laden was settling in the water and a few minutes later we could see that some passengers were splashing about in the ocean. Mrs. Devore turned to the crew of the boat and said, "For God's sake, go after them. I'm sure my husband is in that boat."

There were two or three members of the crew who wanted to go but the negroes grumbled threateningly and said that if any more were taken on the boat would swamp.

Mrs. Devore said "You ought to be ashamed of yourselves to leave men drown like that." The negroes muttered to themselves but when she and some other members of the crew implored them to go to the rescue they didn't make any response; in fact they rowed the other way.

OFFICERS DIFFIDENT

It was a very difficult task for the men in charge of the boat, particularly as it didn't seem very clear to me who was in command. Mrs. Devore turned to me aid said: "What do you think of their leaving people to perish?" I urged the negroes to row in that direction but they took no notice. I want to make it very clear that the officers who were runinng this boat did their very best. It seemed to me, however, that they were not too certain of how far they could go in enforcing discipline among the negroes.

The officers in charge of the boat probably knew that they needed their men for rowing and had to be tactful. To me it seemed strange that places were left in the boats for such men as these negroes, while passengers who could easily have helped with the rowing found themselves without a seat. Here was clearly something wrong in the arrangements made, for manning the lifeboats and allotting the working places.

I had several talks with Mrs. Devore during the night and she tried to keep up her spirits. She said to me, "You know you're mighty lucky to be picked up. The negroes did not want to do it, but the most of us insisted. I said you wouldn't leave a man there to perish? Finally the men consented to row over until we got near enough for you to swim to us."

On top of her own harrowing experience through the long, cold, bitter night she had that terrifying fear that her husband had been lost. Yet, in spite of this, she kept up her spirits and cheered the men to keep rowing and was always speaking optimistically of rescue. I asked her this morning if she had any word of her husband, and, choking back her sobs, she told me he was among the missing.

It is almost impossible to give any idea of the helplessness of a night spent at sea under these conditions. There is no sign of anything—nothing but waves and skyline if the night had been clear it would not have been so bad, but storms and rain made conditions almost unbearable. Just before nightfall the men in boats near us suggested that we all endeavor to keep together so that if a rescue ship came along we would all be picked up. In trying this we drifted so near that there seemed to be danger of the boats colliding and after that we kept further apart.

CHEST DRIVE IN PROGRESS

SAN FERNANDO, Nov. 14.—Scores of volunteer workers were canvassing this city as the Community Chest drive got under way this week. The local quota has been set at $4000, or $500 more than last year. The local territory includes the mission district near here and workers expect to have little difficulty in raising the additional amount.

Would you take $10,000 for your feet?

Smith: "Notice that Joe seems cheerful in spite of his bad automobile accident and loss of both feet."

Brown: "Yes, he still has cause to be thankful. Fortunately Joe has a Pacific Mutual "5-way" policy. It paid him $10,000 for loss of both feet and in addition he gets $150 a month as long as he lives, and is only 37 years old. All future premiums are also waived by the Company."

Smith: "Joe would be up against it without that insurance. It certainly is his salvation."

Brown: "Joe has ordered two cork feet and in a few weeks will be back at his job as factory superintendent. His monthly disability payments will continue just the same."

Smith: "Why if Joe lives to be only 70 years of age he will have collected $10,000 for loss of feet; $61,800 in monthly disability payments; $10,000 additional at age 65 or at prior death and will have saved $11,200 in premiums waived by the company during permanent disability."

It Pays "5 Ways"

1. PAYS YOU FOR ACCIDENT $200 a month for total disability and $100 a month for partial disability. Also $10,000 for loss of hands, feet or sight.
2. PAYS YOU FOR SICKNESS $200 a month while totally disabled.
3. PAYS YOU FOR PERMANENT TOTAL DISABILITY $3900 for the first year and $150 per month thereafter during such disability for life, plus $10,000 cash at age 65. All life premiums waived during permanent disability.
4. PAYS YOU $10,000 Cash at age 65. Pays earlier if you let your dividends accumulate.
5. PAYS YOUR BENEFICIARY $10,000 Cash if you die before you are 65, or $20,000 cash if accidentally killed.

The Low Cost Will Surprise You!

In spite of caution, serious accidents are happening to thousands every year, causing permanent disability—legs amputated, arms injured, blindness. STORM TOSSES BYRD VESSEL

Supply Ship Fights Gale Off New Zealand

Expedition Hears of Heavy Ice Packs Ahead

Loud Speakers Connect Crew With Relatives

BY JOE DE GANAHL

(Copyright, 1928, by the New York Times Company and St. Louis Dispatch. All rights for publication reserved throughout the world.)

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP ELEANOR BOLLING AT SEA, Nov. 13. (Exclusive)—The Eleanor Bolling, supply ship of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, was weathering a strong gale on the run of a hurricane area 550 miles northeast of Dunedin, N. Z., this afternoon as she crossed the international date line.

This is the second severe storm through which the former North Sea trawler of 600 tons has had to pass since she started for the Antarctic continent on September 18. Two days out of New York the Bolling passed through an eighty-mile-an-hour hurricane off the Virginia Capes after it had taken a toll of many hundreds of lives in Florida. The storm through which she is now passing has not been so severe, but the vessel is rolling and pitching excessively.

At 3 o'clock this (Tuesday) afternoon the Bolling crossed the one hundred and eightieth meridian. At midnight tonight one day will be dropped from the ship's log and the crew will awaken tomorrow to find that it is Thursday, November 15.

The expedition members will get the day back when the Antarctic fleet again crosses the meridian on the way to the Bay of Whales. The Bolling is due at Dunedin on Saturday.

Radio messages from whalers in the Antarctic state that the ice conditions are bad this year.

Carl O. Petersen, a radio operator on the Bolling who spent a year with the Antarctic whaling fleet, received yesterday a message from the steamship Sevilla, at latitude 60 south and longitude 43 west, telling of heavy pack ice there. The whaling ship reported that one of the smaller whale boats was damaged in a collision with a large blue whale.

The short-wave radio equipment on the Bolling, through which messages have been handled, has kept the expedition ship in touch with all corners of the earth. Almost every evening the ship is in communication with Canada, Norway, Siberia and the South Shetland Islands.

As a result of the untiring attention of Radio Engineer Hanson, assisted by Operator Petersen, the efficiency of the equipment has been increasing as distance increased.

RELATIVES HEARD

On Saturday the crew listened on three loud-speakers to messages from their relatives broadcast by voice from the Canadian and American Westinghouse Company through station KDKA. The reception was exceptionally clear. Plans have been made for weekly schedules while the expedition is in the Antarctic.

A radio message last night to the New York Times gave the position of the Eleanor Bolling at noon the 13th inst., as latitude 39.13 south, longitude 179.29 west, 565 miles northeast of Dunedin, N. Z.

The position of the bark City of New York of the Byrd expedition at the same time was reported as latitude 26.14 south, longitude 170.49 west, 485 miles east northeast of the Kermadec islands.

President Accorded Praise in Formal Speeches

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. (AP)—An honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon President Coolidge late today by Catholic University of America when he attended the inauguration of Mgr. James H. Ryan as rector of the institution.

The degree was conferred upon the Chief Executive by Archbishop Curley of Baltimore, counselor of the university, in the presence of the highest Catholic prelates in America.

CARDINALS ATTEND

Cardinals O'Connell of Boston, Dougherty of Philadelphia and Hayes of New York, and Mgr. Fumasoni-Biondi, Apostolic delegate to the United States, wearing the full regalia of their positions, greeted Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge at the university hall and accompanied them in the procession to the platform where the ceremonies took place.

Numerous members of the Cabinet and of the Diplomatic Corps in addition to a large number of bishops and university professors also were in attendance on the platform. The end of the large hall was draped with American flags on a background of yellow and white stripes, the papal colors.

PRESIDENT PRAISED

Cardinal O'Connell delivered a speech of greeting to President Coolidge preceding the presentation of the degree, declaring that Catholic education had often been misunderstood, that no student of a Catholic university could ever acquire ideas subversive of American institutions or inimical to public order.

As a fellow-New Englander, Cardinal O'Connell said that he had often had occasion to observe the highest importance which the Chief Executive placed on religious influence in government and the noble example he had set in the application of Christian principles in the administration of public affairs.

Arrests Betray Mexican Rebel

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14. (AP)—Arrest of two school-teachers in a suburb of Mexico City yesterday today led to the capture of Jose Gomez Garduno, insurgent chieftain.

The school-teachers, Elena Hernandez Gallegos and Maria Bland Calderon, were arrested when police raided a schoolhouse in the suburb of Tacubaya.

Police announced that they had found a letter which led to the capture of Garduno. They also seized a box containing ammunition asserted to be intended for the insurgents, and large quantities of seditious propaganda.

GRAVITATION'S CAUSE SOLVED

Navy Man Answers Problem That Bothered Newton

Radiating Waves of Ether Make Apple Come Down

Forty-five Naughts Express Views in Figures

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14. (Exclusive)—Announcement that he has proved to a mathematical certainty that the cause of gravitation lies in ether waves, thus correlating and furthering the experiments and conclusions of physicists before and since the first treatises of Homer 3000 years ago, was made in an address here tonight by Capt. Thomas J. See, in charge of the government astronomical station at Mare Island. By virtue of the captain's former active connection with the United States Naval College at Annapolis he is known also as professor of mathematics, United States Navy.

"NEW THEORY OF ETHER"

The occasion was his reading of the tenth paper of his own preparation on "The New Theory of the Ether," which, he said, was completed June 5, last, at the end of eight years of experimentation.

Capt. See said he has connected molecular forces with gravitation for the first time and cited as additional proof of his experimental and mathematical computations the method of giving visibility to the waves proceeding from electrons established last August by Prof. Thomson of Aberdeen.

The final proof, which he said he has established beyond doubt, that universal gravitation is a wave-phenomenon, settles a point which has not previously been available to science in the 2200 years since the founding of the school of Alexandria defied the efforts of Archimedes and Hipparchus and thwarted the astuteness of Newton and Laplace.

TAKES NEW STAND

In 1920, he said, he discarded the theory that the electron is the smallest known corpuscle, and since that time his experiments in that field have been substantiated by many "other leading authorities." Since that time, also, he declared, he observed ether waves proceeding from electrons have been found to vary in length from one to 300,000,000 meters, thus establishing a gravitational spectrum wholly invisible to mortal sight, but just as existant in fact as the color spectrum.

Capt. See said he has been able to measure the forces operating in the refraction of light in comparison with the forces of universal gravitation and has found that the former exceed the latter by the following definite number of times: 2,211,837,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 (forty-five naughts.)

All of which, his audience agreed, should be very simple to a physicist.

GEN. BOOTH CONTINUING GRIM FIGHT

Salvation Army Leader, Ill in England, Attended by Wife and Children

LONDON, Nov. 14. (AP)—Attended by his wife, two sons and his daughters, Gen. William Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, is making a determined fight against acute neuritis at his summer home in Southwold, Suffolk, fifty miles from London.

In that place Gen. and Mrs. Booth for the last few years have maintained a veritable private retreat. Its existence was not known to the world and their incognito even was kept from their neighbors by wearing civilian clothes and having all mail and supplies delivered in the name of the general's secretary.

At the Salvation Army headquarters here in London the Salvationists were encouraged today by a slight improvement in their leader's condition, but bulletins warned his followers of the seriousness of his illness.

They all found encouragement in the fact that the specialists consider Gen. Booth's arteries worthy of a much younger man. Organically he is well, but the neuritis has extended throughout his body.

EVANGELINE BOOTH TO LEAVE FOR LONDON

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army in America, plans to leave Saturday for London, where her brother, Gen. William Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, is seriously ill.

Prince Starts Jaunt by Train

NAIROBI, KENYA COLONY (South Africa) Nov. 14. (AP)—The Prince of Wales left this colony today, traveling by train to Kajiado, whence he will proceed by motor car southward to Broken Hill and there entrain for Cape Town.

His motor caravan is fully equipped to meet all emergencies, such as enforced stops for camping or detours from the prearranged route. The Prince, it is expected here, will reach Broken Hill about December 5, next.

Colorado River Bridge Planned

PHOENIX, Nov. 14. (AP)—Preparations for presenting plans and specifications for a new bridge spanning the Colorado River at a point near Searchlight, Nev., north of Topoc, Ariz., with a request for funds through the next Legislature, were disclosed at the meeting of the State Highway Commission here today, when a delegation of Mohave county citizens asked the commission to make preliminary survey and estimates of the prob-

OFFICERS' TRIAL NOW UNDER WAY

Chula Vista Policemen Face Damaging Testimony

Witness Swears Mother and Self Brutally Treated

Superior Court Judge Hits Jurisdiction Change

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 14.—Saying that he saw his 77-year-old mother knocked down by a Chula Vista policeman, and that he himself was knocked unconscious when he stooped to help her, T. J. Golden testified today in Superior Court at trial of two Chula Vista traffic officers and two former members of the suburban town's police on criminal charges.

The defendants are Charles Stanley Patterson, the officer referred to directly by Golden in the testimony; Officer Merrill E. Kelley, and two former police members, Ivan Smith of the traffic squad and Mrs. Roy Hill, police matron. All are accused in indictments of having mistreated persons under arrest, the charges being designated in the indictment as "assault by means and force likely to produce great bodily injury."

MIXED JURY CHOSEN

Trial of the case opened yesterday in Judge Shelley J. Higgins's court. Eight women and four men were chosen as a jury.

Golden, one of the complainants mentioned in the indictments, was the first witness called and was again on the stand until noon today, when the court recessed. Counsel for the defense interposed objection to the testimony when Golden was sworn as a witness. The argument was made that Superior Court was without jurisdiction and the case should be tried in the Township Justice Court. Judge Higgins promptly overruled the objection, and examination of Golden by Prosecutor Oran N. Muir was allowed to proceed.

Golden testified following his arrest, he regained consciousness to find himself handcuffed and "thrown" in his car while it was driven to the police station. Someone held him to the floor by placing a "large" foot on his neck, he testified. At the jail he was thrown and held while a hypodermic injection of some narcotic was made in his arm, he said. Like testimony was to be offered by Mrs. Belle Golden, wife of the first witness, and by Mrs. Mary Golden, now 79, his mother, according to announcement of Prosecutor Muir.

MOTHER STRUCK DOWN

Golden testified that his aged mother was struck down by Patterson when she asked the officer not to lock up her son. "No interference with an officer," Golden said Patterson ejaculated as the woman was struck down. She fell on her right arm and thence on her face, breaking her glasses and cutting her face, the witness related. She weighed about ninety pounds, he said, whereas the officer must have weighed 180 pounds.

The defense brought out that Patterson did not have handcuffs in his hand when he is asserted to have struck the woman. If he struck her, defense counsel insisted, the case was one for the lower court, involving a charge of assault merely, and not with a weapon. Patterson has a separate indictment to face charging him with assault "under color of authority" on another person, Carlisle L. Cutler, which will be tried when the present case is disposed of.

At first rumored to concern the Chula Vista police case, the grand jury assembled at 10 o'clock today, but adjourned without announcement after a brief session. It was believed the grand jurors will meet again soon.

Rodriguez Said to Favor Taking Duties Off Cars

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 14.—Announcement that Gov. Rodrigues of Lower California has aligned himself with the Mexicali Chamber of Commerce in petitioning the authorities at Mexico City for a modification of the prevailing tariff regulations to the extent that American motor cars and trucks may be taken into Lower California free of duty, was made today by S. B. Reachi, manager of the foreign trade department, Chamber of Commerce.

Reachi said the arguments expounded by the Mexicali Chamber of Commerce are sound and with the aid of Gov. Rodrigues there is reason to believe that the Mexican Federal government will grant the request.

The proposed duty exemption on American trucks and pleasure cars will not apply to other sections of Mexico, the foreign trade department of the Chamber of Commerce reports.

Reachi said that autos and trucks to the value of more than $500,000 are annually purchased by Lower California merchants and residents from dealers in this city and Los Angeles.

As you may understand changes of this nature cannot be made overnight in such plans.

"We know there have been a good many rumors regarding this proposed plant at Long Beach but we do not feel called upon to confirm or deny every rumor that comes out regardnig this company. We have never had any idea of abandoning our plans for the erection of a plant at Long Beach.

HORSES SEE BUGGY AND RUN

Classy Vehicle—in Its Day—Used in Ontario's Armistice Day Parade to Haul George Washington, Proves Too Much for Modern Team

ONTARIO, Nov. 14.—It was a classy vehicle in the days when gasoline didn't have a first name, but even horses refuse to recognize the old-fashioned buggy today.

The fact of the matter is, the modern horse doesn't know that he, with a buggy behind, was once the choice and only means of locomotion, such lack of knowledge being clearly proven here.

In the Armistice Day parade a D.A.R. chapter entered a buggy—a classy looking outfit in its day. They couldn't find a horse to pull it, so they attached it to the automobile driven by Mrs. May Hart Smith, a D.A.R. worker. "George Washington and his wife, Martha" rode in the buggy. After the parade the buggy was parked near the Helen Dyer home in North Euclid avenue for a few days.

Today J. F. Wyon drove past the place with a team of horses. The steeds saw the buggy and thought it was a trap made by Satan himself. In their haste to run away they fell to the pavement, tangled themselves up in the harness, tore the leather thongs to pieces and pieces and received many and varied bruises and injuries.

The buggy was shielded from the eyes of the frightened horses and they were soothingly led past it and taken home for first-aid treatment.

STREET PLAN GOES AHEAD

Blockade of Oxnard Boulevard Improvement Now Removed by Compromise Over Theater

OXNARD, Nov. 14.—With the removal of the last legal entanglement, plans were going ahead this afternoon for what is considered the greatest single piece of improvement in Oxnard in many years, the widening of Oxnard Boulevard. After fifteen months of continuous work the special commission consisting of E. H. Agee, T. H. Carroll and S. G. Bennett, opene dthe way to actual work today when they negotiated a compromise between F. A. Smith, lessee of the Independent Theater; George Sunderman, owner of the property, and City Attorneys Blackstock and Rogers.

Negotiations were running smoothly until the commission struck a serious snag over the removal of the theater. Smith refused to vacate. The matter was taken to court and would have taken some time to settle. In the meantime the entire improvement was held up, with part of the torn-up street about to create a public nuisance as a result of rains.

As a result of the compromise, Smith is to receive $1750 for his share. Part will be paid by the boulevard commission, part by the city and part by Sunderman. The lease on the theater is to be canceled.

The resolution of intention to improve will be presented to the City Council Tuesday night. This will include widening of the boulevard twenty feet the entire length of town, from Wooly Road to the A-street extension. It also includes the installation of street electroliers for the entire length. The necessary details in connection with advertising for bids and so forth will be rushed as fast as the law will allow so that the entire job can be completed before the new Coast highway from Santa Monica is finished, which should be about July of next year.

Property owners of Oxnard Boulevard and A street are paying for the entire improvement. The new boulevard will be part of the State highway syste mand will form the main artery of through travel in this city.

Imperial Valley Pioneers Taking Hop Inaugurating New Maddux Line Service

CALEXICO, Nov. 14.—Grizzled veterans of the desert who trekked into Imperial Valley more than a score of years ago are booked as passengers on the initial trip of the Maddux Air Lines, Inc., which starts daily round-trip service between Los Angeles and valley towns tomorrow. T. D. McCall, who ranks as chief scorpion of the Old Timers' Club formed in the valley several months ago, among residents who came into the Imperial basin in buckboards and covered wagons before 1905, is sponsoring the airplane trip.

"Traveling by plane we can cover the 250 miles to Los Angeles and return in less time than it used to take us to go from old Imperial Junction to the first water hole," declared McCall today. "I am going to make the trip just to prove that there is no moss on our backs even if we are old desert rats."

The Maddux airplane is scheduled to reach its Calexico terminal at 11:15 daily and take off at 2:15 making stops at the county airport at Imperial. A special fare has been offered to pioneers making the initial trip.

OFFICERS SEEK CLEWS OF DROWNED WOMAN

VENICE, Nov. 14.—Police here were still running down all possible sources which might lead to identification of the body of a woman which floated ashore north of the Venice Pier last Sunday. An autopsy revealed that death had come from drowning, and the body is that of a woman between 20 and 25 years of age, according to information from the Sharp & Nolan undertaking establishment. Lack of identifying marks on the few articles of clothing on the body has made the work difficult, officers say. There were no signs of violence.

ROAD PROTEST EFFECTIVE

Sierra Madre Council Accepts Recommendations of Central-Avenue Property Owners

SIERRA MADRE, Nov. 14.—Persistence in the long-fought battle by property owners on Central avenue to check the proposed improving and widening of the street to eighty feet, resulted in a victory for them last night when members of the City Council adopted a resolution that the board as a whole approve three of four recommendations set forth in a written document from the Central-avenue Property Owners' Association.

Recommendation One was that Central avenue west of Baldwin to the city limits be not repaved.

Recommendation Two was that Central avenue east of Baldwin avenue be uniform in width of sixty-five feet and that, where the present width is less than that, it be widened to sixty-five feet with the necessary accompanying improvements.

Recommendation Three was that Central avenue east of Baldwin avenue be resurfaced with the proper materials to give a roadbed of similar construction to the present one; that the crown of the street be lowered where it is too high at present; and that the curbs and gutters be not disturbed except where cobblestone gutters are replaced with cement.

Recommendation Four embodied a complaint voiced by property owners at a public meeting of the association last week, and stated that in order to restore confidence of the people in the actions of the Council, that City Attorney Frederick Baker be rehired as counsel for the Central-avenue project. Baker proffered his resignation to the Council on October 30, after the board had rescinded his contract as special counsel for the project at a prevous meeting.

The Council released Baker following a stormy session over the proposed improvement, when Baker advised the board against their wishes. The board decided last night not to accept Recommendation Four until they had deliberately further and declared that they will announce their decision next week.

MARCH FIELD IN CONSOLIDATION

Capt. Harper Tells Plans Contemplated

Scheme Bringing Battle Planes Here

RIVERSIDE, Nov. 14.—Mighty aerial dreadnaughts will wing their way through the sky over March Field within the next two years, according to Capt. Earl G. Harper, commander of the forty-seventh school squadron of the local post. In an address delivered last night at a dinner at the Orange Belt Association of Engineers, Capt. Harper revealed that the primary training school here is to be consolidated with the advanced training school at Kelley Field, San Antonio, Tex.

To replace the student aviators at March Field, there will be sent here the seventh bombardment squadron, Capt. Harper disclosed. Huge fighting planes, costing not less than $50,000 each, will replace the lighter training craft used in teaching the cadets to fly. The field will thus become an important unit in the army's Pacific Coast defense resources.

Capt. Harper expressed surprise that California is not making more of an effort to obtain army flying fields.

"March Field was closed for five years after the war," he stated, "and the Rockwell Field base at San Diego is only now being revived. Would it not be an excellent plan for California to seek the reopening of Mather Field at Sacramento so as to rouse an attack group? There could be a pursuit group at Rockwell Field and an observation squadron at Crissey Field in San Francisco."

The present main object of the air corps, according to Capt. Harper, is to build up the personnel of trained flyers. The school at March Field is an important part of this program.

Pomona College Reserve on Trip to March Field

CLAREMONT, Nov. 14.—Vitalizing the service of the United States Army, in preparing college men for commissions in the Reserve Corps which will see service only in case of national need, the members of the junior class of the Pomona College unit will visit March Field, army flying school at Riverside, next Monday, in lieu of their regular drill work. Special arrangements for their entertainment and instruction have been prepared by the March Field officials and the commandant of the local unit, and it is expected that much material benefit will be derived by the students in making the trip.

In addition, according to an announcement from Capt. R. R. Bacon, a number of other Pomona College men not connected with the R.O.T.C. will make the trip to take the army flyers' medical test. If they pass this examination they will have the opportunity of becoming flying cadets in the service of the army, or, failing to pass, will have opportunity to overcome their defects before they graduate. Although the minimum educational requirement for service as an army flying cadet is two years in college, Capt. Bacon says that the army prefers a college graduate to a more poorly equipped man.

BORDER PATROLMAN'S WIFE KILLS HERSELF

EL CENTRO, Nov. 14.—Mabel K. Barnard, wife of Leland C. Barnard of the United States Border Patrol Service, was found dead in the home at 341 North Seventh street in this city late yesterday by the husband when he returned from work. She is believed to have shot herself with one of her husband's revolvers, which was found in the room. No motive for the act has been revealed, according to local officers. An inquest is to be held by County Coroner Bert Lemon late today. Mrs. Barnard came here from Santa Ana only a short time ago.

Iron grillwork over the windows, an inclosed patio and hand-pegged floors contribute to make the residence one of the most attractive in the valley.

REDLANDS RECEIPTS INCREASED

Foothill Groves Group at Annual Meeting Learn of Advance Over Last Year

REDLANDS, Nov. 14.—Grower members of the Redlands Foothill Groves received 11 per cent more in returns during the season just closed than in 1927, according to the report of C. E. Perry, secretary-manager, given last night at the fourth annual meeting of the company. One hundred and nine growers and their wives attended the turkey dinner at the First Methodist Church.

During the season, said Perry, the association shipped out 229 cars of fruit which is 93 per cent of the number for the year preceding although the crop in general was lighter. Acreage this year is 12 per cent greater than last. The Foothill Groves Company has 115 members and 1141 acres. Three-fourths of the acreage is in navels, the remainder valencias. Of this area 648 acres are equipped with frost-protective materials.

Deposits of the association during the last year were $649,924.96, Perry reported, or 22 per cent greater than the year preceding, despite a 9 per cent drop in shipments, due to a light crop throughout Southern California.

"The labor cost to the association was $40,213.37. This amount was returned to the community, because Redlands Foothill Groves employs only local help. The association issued revolving fund agreements on which during the last year there was $869 paid in interest."

J. A. Steward, sales manager for the Mutual Orange Distributors, through which the Foothill Groves does its marketing, agreed with other speakers of the evening that a large crop is in prospect for the coming season and that prices are fair toward one of the most prosperous years of citrus history.

Owing to the heavy crop in prospect the directors authorized repairs to the packing-house and machinery, that the capacity of the association might be increased.

Officers of the association are M. W. H. Williams, president; George P. Cortner, vice-president, and C. E. Perry, secretary and manager.

Religious Group Aiding Mexicans Meet in Pomona

CLAREMONT, Nov. 14.—Meeting for the three days before the annual convention of "Friends of the Mexicans," scheduled to gather on the Pomona College campus next Saturday, the Interdenominational Council on Spanish Speaking Work gathered here today, and will continue in session tomorrow and Friday. Their program is to cover a wide field of subjects, allied generally to Mexican missionary work. Dr. R. N. McLean of the Presbyterian Board of Missions in Los Angeles is in general charge of the affair.

This organization is using the Pomona College facilities for their assemblage, and it is expected that large numbers of them will remain for the annual convention of "Friends of the Mexicans," a nonreligious organization sponsored by Pomona College in an effort to strengthen relations between this country and Mexico, and to improve the lot of Mexican immigrants living in this country.

Seedless Apples Also Coreless

GLENDALE, Nov. 14.—Apples that have neither cores nor seeds have been produced on a tree in the yard of Hal A. Curtis, 428 South Verdugo Road, who gathered three apples off a young tree that were solid meat all the way through. The apples were of a dull red color, with fine flavor and grew to a large size. Curtis says they grew on a tree that he planted in his yard three or four years ago, but he cannot recall the variety of the tree, nor does he know whether it will go on bearing seedless, coreless fruit. If it does he plans to cash in on it, for he claims that pomologists are eager to secure such apples in the effort to propagate the species.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

Superior Court Judge Hits Jurisdiction Change

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 14.—Saying that he saw his 77-year-old mother knocked down by a Chula Vista policeman, and that he himself was knocked unconscious when he stooped to help her, T. J. Golden testified today in Superior Court at trial of two Chula Vista traffic officers and two former members of the suburban town's police on criminal charges.

The defendants are Charles Stanley Patterson, the officer referred to directly by Golden in the testimony; Officer Merrill E. Kelley, and two former police members, Ivan Smith of the traffic squad and Mrs. Roy Hill, police matron. All are accused in indictments of having mistreated persons under arrest, the charges being designated in the indictment as "assault by means and force likely to produce great bodily injury."

MIXED JURY CHOSEN

Trial of the case opened yesterday in Judge Shelley J. Higgins's court. Eight women and four men were chosen as a jury.

Golden, one of the complainants mentioned in the indictments, was the first witness called and was again on the stand until noon today, when the court recessed. Counsel for the defense interposed objection to the testimony when Golden was sworn as a witness. The argument was made that Superior Court was without jurisdiction and the case should be tried in the Township Justice Court. Judge Higgins promptly overruled the objection, and examination of Golden by Prosecutor Oran N. Muir was allowed to proceed.

Golden testified following his arrest, he regained consciousness to find himself handcuffed and "thrown" in his car while it was driven to the police station. Someone held him to the floor by placing a "large" foot on his neck, he testified. At the jail he was thrown and held while a hypodermic injection of some narcotic was made in his arm, he said. Like testimony was to be offered by Mrs. Belle Golden, wife of the first witness, and by Mrs. Mary Golden, now 79, his mother, according to announcement of Prosecutor Muir.

MOTHER STRUCK DOWN

Golden testified that his aged mother was struck down by Patterson when she asked the officer not to lock up her son. "No interference with an officer," Golden said Patterson ejaculated as the woman was struck down. She fell on her right arm and thence on her face, breaking her glasses and cutting her face, the witness related. She weighed about ninety pounds, he said, whereas the officer must have weighed 180 pounds.

The defense brought out that Patterson did not have handcuffs in his hand when he is asserted to have struck the woman. If he struck her, defense counsel insisted, the case was one for the lower court, involving a charge of assault merely, and not with a weapon. Patterson has a separate indictment to face charging him with assault "under color of authority" on another person, Carlisle L. Cutler, which will be tried when the present case is disposed of.

At first rumored to concern the Chula Vista police case, the grand jury assembled at 10 o'clock today, but adjourned without announcement after a brief session. It was believed the grand jurors will meet again soon.

Rodriguez Said to Favor Taking Duties Off Cars

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 14.—Announcement that Gov. Rodriguez of Lower California has aligned himself with the Mexicali Chamber of Commerce in petitioning the authorities at Mexico City for a modification of the prevailing tariff regulations to the extent that American motor cars and trucks may be taken into Lower California free of duty, was made today by S. B. Reachi, manager of the foreign trade department, Chamber of Commerce.

Reachi said the arguments expounded by the Mexicali Chamber of Commerce are sound and with the aid of Gov. Rodriguez there is reason to believe that the Mexican Federal government will grant the request.

The proposed duty exemption on American trucks and pleasure cars will not apply to other sections of Mexico, the foreign trade department of the Chamber of Commerce reports.

Reachi said that autos and trucks to the value of more than $500,000 are annually purchased by Lower California merchants and residents from dealers in this city and Los Angeles.

RAIN BLAMED FOR DEATHS

Downpour Thought to Have Blinded Two Colton Men Who Drove in Front of Electric Train

UPLAND, Nov. 14.—Blinding rain was blamed for the instant death of Chester M. Maxey, 50 years of age, and R. H. Bailey, 60, both of Colton, whose automobile was ground to pieces under the wheels of a westbound Pacific Electric train two miles west of here shortly after 9:30 this morning. Maxey and Bailey had been engaged in a real estate deal during the morning and were on their way to Los Angeles. At the Central-avenue crossing they did not see the approaching passenger train, No. 40, and drove their sedan on the tracks.

The automobile was shoved ahead of the car for 300 feet and demolished. Bodies of the men were so badly mangled identification was difficult. The bodies were taken to Richardson funeral home in Ontario. The crew of the ill-fated car was Ray Butler, motorman, and H. K. Riordan, conductor. The train left Upland station at 9:30 o'clock, bound for Los Angeles.

An inquest will probably be held tomorrow.

FORD OFFICIAL SPIKES RUMORS

Assistant to President Advises Long Beach

Proposed Plant Certain to be Constructed

Change in Car Model Made Delay Imperative

LONG BEACH, Nov. 14.—Rumors current here and in Los Angeles Harbor circles to the effect that the Ford Motor Company had decided to abandon plans for the construction of its $10,000,000 assemblying plant here were put at rest today through receipt of a letter by the local Chamber of Commerce from J. Crawford, assistant to the president of the Ford Company at Detroit.

"We have been working on this matter since we last wrote you and are at present making the necessary changes in our building plans, due to the changed conditions which presented themselves in the manufacture of the model A car. As you may understand changes of this nature cannot be made overnight in such plans.

"We know there have been a good many rumors regarding this proposed plant at Long Beach but we do not feel called upon to confirm or deny every rumor that comes out regardnig this company. We have never had any idea of abandoning our plans for the erection of a plant at Long Beach.

"We would say that our Mr. B. R. Brown, who has been superintending the erection of a new plant at Yokohama, Japan, is on his way home at present and he plans to look over the Long Beach site before he returns to Detroit," Crawford's letter stated.

The Ford Company's forty acres on the north side of Cerritos Channel, immediately east of Baliger avenue is ready for construction, it was revealed today. Railway trackage to the factory site has been laid for some time, the city of Long Beach has dredged certain channels fronting it, bulkheads have been completed and a huge slip capable of dockage for the largest ocean freighters has been finished for many months.

HORSES SEE BUGGY AND RUN

Classy Vehicle—in Its Day—Used in Ontario's Armistice Day Parade to Haul George Washington, Proves Too Much for Modern Team

ONTARIO, Nov. 14.—It was a classy vehicle in the days when gasoline didn't have a first name, but even horses refuse to recognize the old-fashioned buggy today.

The fact of the matter is, the modern horse doesn't know that he, with a buggy behind, was once the choice and only means of locomotion, such lack of knowledge being clearly proven here.

In the Armistice Day parade a D.A.R. chapter entered a buggy—a classy looking outfit in its day. They couldn't find a horse to pull it, so they attached it to the automobile driven by Mrs. May Hart Smith, a D.A.R. worker. "George Washington and his wife, Martha" rode in the buggy. After the parade the buggy was parked near the Helen Dyer home in North Euclid avenue for a few days.

Today J. P. Wyon drove past the place with a team of horses. The steeds saw the buggy and thought it was a trap made by Satan himself. In their haste to run away they fell to the pavement, tangled themselves up in the harness, tore the leather thongs to pieces and pieces and received many and varied bruises and injuries.

The buggy was shielded from the eyes of the frightened horses and they were soothingly led past it and taken home for first-aid treatment.

STREET PLAN GOES AHEAD

Blockade of Oxnard Boulevard Improvement Now Removed by Compromise Over Theater

OXNARD, Nov. 14.—With the removal of the last legal entanglement, plans were going ahead this afternoon for what is considered the greatest single piece of improvement in Oxnard in many years, the widening of Oxnard Boulevard. After fifteen months of continuous work the special commission consisting of E. H. Agee, T. H. Carroll and S. G. Bennett, opene dthe way to actual work today when they negotiated a compromise between F. A. Smith, lessee of the Independent Theater; George Sunderman, owner of the property, and City Attorneys Blackstock and Rogers.

Negotiations were running smoothly until the commission struck a serious snag over the removal of the theater. Smith refused to vacate. The matter was taken to court and would have taken some time to settle. In the meantime the entire improvement was held up, with part of the torn-up street about to create a public nuisance as a result of rains.

As a result of the compromise, Smith is to receive $1750 for his share. Part will be paid by the boulevard commission, part by the city and part by Sunderman. The lease on the theater is to be canceled.

The resolution of intention to improve will be presented to the City Council Tuesday night. This will include widening of the boulevard twenty feet the entire length of town, from Wooly Road to the A-street extension. It also includes the installation of street electroliers for the entire length. The necessary details in connection with advertising for bids and so forth will be rushed as fast as the law will allow so that the entire job can be completed before the new Coast highway from Santa Monica is finished, which should be about July of next year.

Property owners of Oxnard Boulevard and A street are paying for the entire improvement. The new boulevard will be part of the State highway syste mand will form the main artery of through travel in this city.

OLD-TIMERS OF DESERT IN AIR TRIP

Imperial Valley Pioneers Taking Hop Inaugurating New Maddux Line Service

CALEXICO, Nov. 14.—Grizzled veterans of the desert who trekked into Imperial Valley more than a score of years ago are booked as passengers on the initial trip of the Maddux Air Lines, Inc., which starts daily round-trip service between Los Angeles and valley towns tomorrow. T. D. McCall, who ranks as chief scorpion of the Old Timers' Club formed in the valley several months ago, among residents who came into the Imperial basin in buckboards and covered wagons before 1905, is sponsoring the airplane trip.

"Traveling by plane we can cover the 250 miles to Los Angeles and return in less time than it used to take us to go from old Imperial Junction to the first water hole," declared McCall today. "I am going to make the trip just to prove that there is no moss on our backs even if we are old desert rats."

The Maddux airplane is scheduled to reach its Calexico terminal at 11:15 daily and take off at 2:15 making stops at the county airport at Imperial. A special fare has been offered to pioneers making the initial trip.

OFFICERS SEEK CLEWS OF DROWNED WOMAN

VENICE, Nov. 14.—Police here were still running down all possible sources which might lead to identification of the body of a woman which floated ashore north of the Venice Pier last Sunday. An autopsy revealed that death had come from drowning, and the body is that of a woman between 20 and 25 years of age, according to information from the Sharp & Nolan undertaking establishment. Lack of identifying marks on the few articles of clothing on the body has made the work difficult, officers say. There were no signs of violence.

ROAD PROTEST EFFECTIVE

Sierra Madre Council Accepts Recommendations of Central-Avenue Property Owners

SIERRA MADRE, Nov. 14.—Persistence in the long-fought battle by property owners on Central avenue to check the proposed improving and widening of the street to eighty feet, resulted in a victory for them last night when members of the City Council adopted a resolution that the board as a whole approve three of four recommendations set forth in a written document from the Central-avenue Property Owners' Association.

Recommendation One was that Central avenue west of Baldwin to the city limits be not repaved.

Recommendation Two was that Central avenue east of Baldwin avenue be uniform in width of sixty-five feet and that, where the present width is less than that, it be widened to sixty-five feet with the necessary accompanying improvements.

Recommendation Three was that Central avenue east of Baldwin avenue be resurfaced with the proper materials to give a roadbed of similar construction to the present one; that the crown of the street be lowered where it is too high at present; and that the curbs and gutters be not disturbed except where cobblestone gutters are replaced with cement.

Recommendation Four embodied a complaint voiced by property owners at a public meeting of the association last week, and stated that in order to restore confidence of the people in the actions of the Council, that City Attorney Frederick Baker be rehired as counsel for the Central-avenue project. Baker proffered his resignation to the Council on October 30, after the board had rescinded his contract as special counsel for the project at a prevous meeting.

The Council released Baker following a stormy session over the proposed improvement, when Baker advised the board against their wishes. The board decided last night not to accept Recommendation Four until they had deliberately further and declared that they will announce their decision next week.

MARCH FIELD IN CONSOLIDATION

Capt. Harper Tells Plans Contemplated

Scheme Bringing Battle Planes Here

RIVERSIDE, Nov. 14.—Mighty aerial dreadnaughts will wing their way through the sky over March Field within the next two years, according to Capt. Earl G. Harper, commander of the forty-seventh school squadron of the local post. In an address delivered last night at a dinner at the Orange Belt Association of Engineers, Capt. Harper revealed that the primary training school here is to be consolidated with the advanced training school at Kelley Field, San Antonio, Tex.

To replace the student aviators at March Field, there will be sent here the seventh bombardment squadron, Capt. Harper disclosed. Huge fighting planes, costing not less than $50,000 each, will replace the lighter training craft used in teaching the cadets to fly. The field will thus become an important unit in the army's Pacific Coast defense resources.

Capt. Harper expressed surprise that California is not making more of an effort to obtain army flying fields.

"March Field was closed for five years after the war," he stated, "and the Rockwell Field base at San Diego is only now being revived. Would it not be an excellent plan for California to seek the reopening of Mather Field at Sacramento so as to rouse an attack group? There could be a pursuit group at Rockwell Field and an observation squadron at Crissey Field in San Francisco."

The present main object of the air corps, according to Capt. Harper, is to build up the personnel of trained flyers. The school at March Field is an important part of this program.

Pomona College Reserve on Trip to March Field

CLAREMONT, Nov. 14.—Vitalizing the service of the United States Army, in preparing college men for commissions in the Reserve Corps which will see service only in case of national need, the members of the junior class of the Pomona College unit will visit March Field, army flying school at Riverside, next Monday, in lieu of their regular drill work. Special arrangements for their entertainment and instruction have been prepared by the March Field officials and the commandant of the local unit, and it is expected that much material benefit will be derived by the students in making the trip.

In addition, according to an announcement from Capt. R. R. Bacon, a number of other Pomona College men not connected with the R.O.T.C. will make the trip to take the army flyers' medical test. If they pass this examination they will have the opportunity of becoming flying cadets in the service of the army, or, failing to pass, will have opportunity to overcome their defects before they graduate. Although the minimum educational requirement for service as an army flying cadet is two years in college, Capt. Bacon says that the army prefers a college graduate to a more poorly equipped man.

BORDER PATROLMAN'S WIFE KILLS HERSELF

EL CENTRO, Nov. 14.—Mabel K. Barnard, wife of Leland C. Barnard of the United States Border Patrol Service, was found dead in the home at 341 North Seventh street in this city late yesterday by the husband when he returned from work. She is believed to have shot herself with one of her husband's revolvers, which was found in the room. No motive for the act has been revealed, according to local officers. An inquest is to be held by County Coroner Bert Lemon late today. Mrs. Barnard came here from Santa Ana only a short time ago.

The house, which has just been completed, is of the early Californian period, as are the furnishings. Iron grillwork over the windows, an inclosed patio and hand-pegged floors contribute to make the residence one of the most attractive in the valley.

REDLANDS RECEIPTS INCREASED

Foothill Groves Group at Annual Meeting Learn of Advance Over Last Year

REDLANDS, Nov. 14.—Grower members of the Redlands Foothill Groves received 11 per cent more in returns during the season just closed than in 1927, according to the report of C. E. Perry, secretary-manager, given last night at the fourth annual meeting of the company.

One hundred and nine growers and their wives attended the turkey dinner at the First Methodist Church.

During the season, said Perry, the association shipped out 229 cars of fruit which is 92 per cent of the number for the year preceding although the crop in general was lighter. Acreage this year is 12 per cent greater than last. The Foothill Groves Company has 115 members and 1141 acres. Three-fourths of the acreage is in navels, the remainder valencias. Of this area 843 acres are equipped with frost-protective materials.

Deposits of the association during the last year were $649,924.99, Perry reported, or 22 per cent greater than the year preceding, despite a 9 per cent drop in shipments, due to a light crop throughout Southern California.

"The labor cost to the association was $40,813.27. This amount was returned to the community, because Redlands Foothill Groves employs only local help. The association issued revolving fund agreements on which during the last year there was $669 paid in interest."

J. A. Steward, sales manager for the Mutual Orange Distributors, through which the Foothill Groves does its marketing, agreed with other speakers of the evening that a large crop is in prospect for the coming season and that prices are fair toward one of the most prosperous years of citrus history.

Owing to the heavy crop in prospect the directors authorized repairs to the packing-house and machinery, that the capacity of the association might be increased.

Officers of the association are M. W. H. Williams, president; George P. Cortner, vice-president, and C. E. Perry, secretary and manager.

Religious Group Aiding Mexicans Meet in Pomona

CLAREMONT, Nov. 14.—Meeting for the three days before the annual convention of "Friends of the Mexicans," scheduled to gather on the Pomona College campus next Saturday, the Interdenominational Council on Spanish Speaking Work gathered here today, and will continue in session tomorrow and Friday. A religious organization covering the territory bordering Mexico from Texas to California, no figures were available as to the total number of people in attendance.

Their program is to cover a wide field of subjects, allied generally to Mexican missionary work. Dr. R. N. McLean of the Presbyterian Board of Missions in Los Angeles is in general charge of the affair.

This organization is using the Pomona College facilities for their assemblage, and it is expected that large numbers of them will remain for the annual convention of "Friends of the Mexicans," a nonreligious organization sponsored by Pomona College in an effort to strengthen relations between this country and Mexico, and to improve the lot of Mexican immigrants living in this country.

Seedless Apples Also Coreless

GLENDALE, Nov. 14.—Apples that have neither cores nor seeds have been produced on a tree in the yard of Hal A. Curtis, 428 South Verdugo Road, who gathered three apples off a young tree that were solid meat all the way through. The apples were of a dull red color, with fine flavor and grew to a large size. Curtis says they grew on a tree that he planted in his yard three or four years ago, but he cannot recall the variety of the tree, nor does he know whether it will go on bearing seedless, coreless fruit. If it does he plans to cash in on it, for he claims that pomologists are eager to secure such apples in the effort to propagate the species.

CELITE TRADE REPORTED

Union With Johns-Manville Expected, State Eastern Advices; Story Denied Here

BY EARLE E. CROWE

What will result in one of the largest consolidations of its kind is expected to be completed shortly by the Celite Company, owning large deposits of diatomaceous earth in Santa Barbara county, and the Johns-Manville Corporation, one of the largest asbestos companies in the United States. Information from New York yesterday indicated that the principals are virtually agreed on the terms of the trade.

In Los Angeles, however, A. K. Fitger, vice-president of Celite, while admitting that negotiations have been carried on at various times in the last few years, asserted that a trade is not under way at this time.

MORGAN INTERESTED

Union of the two companies, should it come about, would bring together a powerful combination controlling the raw material and the manufacturing facilities for the distribution of a large proportion of the insulation, filtering, roofing, flooring and kindred products sold in the world. Moreover, the proposed new company will undoubtedly have the sponsorship of the Morgan interests, as J. P. Morgan & Co. is the banker for Johns-Manville Corporation.

At Lompoc, in Santa Barbara county, the Celite Company controls 2200 acres of diatomaceous earth, reputed to have a greater degree of purity than any other known deposit. The "Chalk Hills," just south of Lompoc, are a familiar sight to travelers up the coast, but it is not generally known that these hills are the center of a thriving industry that sells to the markets of the world.

Engineers have estimated that the company could increase its output by 400 per cent, and the material in sight would last for 160 years.

Celite products, manufactured from the Lompoc deposit, are used insulation and concrete, as filler in cork, linoleum, rubber, etc., in filtration and clarification, heat treating, sound-proof and weather-proof material, and in a variety of other ways. Celite, for example, is used to filter and clarify 90 per cent of the cane sugar refined in the United States, according to the company. Oil stills, tanks and refineries of some of the largest oil companies are insulated with Celite.

ELECTION CLARIFIES FINANCIAL SITUATION

McNEEL'S SERVICE SAYS WAY PAVED FOR CONTINUATION OF PROSPERITY

McNeel's Financial Service declares that the election removes the element of uncertainty in finance, lays the foundation for business confidence, and provides the background for a continuation of prosperity.

McNeel's says in its latest issue: "The outburst of speculative enthusiasm in the stock market following the election is sufficient commentary on the sentiment of the financial and business communities toward the election of Mr. Hoover. It is accepted as giving a guarantee for another four years of sound financial and economic policies on the part of our government. While politics may or may not be an important factor in the business and financial affairs of the nation, yet the absolute knowledge that we are guaranteed sound policies on the part of the government lays the foundation for confidence on the part of business men and that psychological factor is a highly important one in determining the future of financial and business affairs.

"The country as a whole has made great strides forward. It would be almost absurd to predict that the next four years can see any such repetition. At the same time there is every reason to believe that the background is provided for a continuation of our prosperity and it is to be expected also that stocks of sound, well-managed progressive companies will continue to increase in value and that prices of such stocks will continue to work higher, though they temporarily may fluctuate widely owing to technical market conditions."

HAY PRICES STEADY

Pacific Coast Alfalfa Slightly Firmer Than Last Week

Hay markets showed very little change during the week ending the 10th inst., according to the weekly hay market review of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Country loadings were generally light and offerings were about equal to trade needs for most classes of hay.

Alfalfa markets were generally firm to slightly higher with an active demand for good quality hay suitable for dairies, and offerings of this type light. Medium grades at Kansas City were only in moderate supply and scarcely sufficient for trade needs, which held the market firm for these grades. Direct shipments of Nebraska hay were reported to points in Iowa and Illinois. Considerable Oklahoma hay was moving to Arkansas and Texas points. Demand for Colorado alfalfa continued active, but local requirements were reported to be sufficiently large to absorb all offerings. Growers appeared inclined to hold for higher prices. Very little Colorado hay was being received at Kansas City. Good quality alfalfa was in brisk demand at both Minneapolis and Omaha, but the bulk of the offerings at these markets was of the lower grades. Pacific Coast markets were slightly stronger than a week ago. No. 1 alfalfa in the Yakima Valley of Washington was quoted at $13 to growers, with a good demand from the west coast. The Los Angeles market was firm, although demand was limited.

LABOR ENTERS NEW FIELDS

Shift in Occupations of Nearly 2,000,000 Persons in Past Eight Years Traced

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR

(Copyright, 1928, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Julius Klein of the Department of Commerce stated recently that nearly 2,000,000 persons have changed occupations in the United States within the last eight years.

Increased productive capacity per worker has been largely responsible. In the automobile industry, for instance, each employee is now turning out 11.5 units a year as against 7.2 in 1913. To put this in another way, the need for labor in that industry has decreased more than 50 per cent in ratio to the output. So that during the past eight years there has been a net decrease in employees in American factories of something like 917,000. Add to this figure the 800,000 who have left the farms, and 240,000 more who have been relieved from work on railroads and the picture is fairly complete.

What happened to them? The answer: They have entered hundreds of nonmanufacturing trades and pursuits. For example, since 1920 the number of garage workers and chauffeurs has increased 760,000. Life insurance has taken another 100,000. New enterprises like electric refrigeration, light and power, and oil heating endeavors have added another 100,000 in their service employs. Construction work has taken another 100,000. There are 230,000 more teachers and professors required now than in 1919. Motion pictures have placed 125,000 additional on the pay rolls. Another 170,000 went into the barber and hairdressing trades, while the service branches of hotels and restaurants have added 525,000 in the past ten years.

Thus the work of social and industrial reorganization goes.

Norman Angell, the quiet little man who has assumed the editorship of Foreign Affairs, was recently given a dinner in London by England's greatest journalists and writers to signify his return into the field of constructive internationalism. Mr. Angell, the author of The Great Illusion," declared by many to be the ablest essayest now writing English, is well known in the United States and Canada.

It was Norman Angell, in his work before the last great war, who declared that there was no such thing as a victory in a modern war. Conditions were too complex and any nation that entered a modern war would find that its expenses demoralized its social and economic organization to a point where, no matter how the physical combat resulted, the people themselves suffered a real defeat.

Mr. Angell, a believer in democracy, takes the view that the press is growing better—not worse, that the number of problems to be solved and discussed by the press are becoming increasingly more complex each day, for they range from banking policy and guns on cruisers to Mohammedan-Hindu conflicts in India. Mr. Angell believes that it is the job of the journalists to interpret the expert to the layman. In this lies his greatest value in the future of a successful working democracy.

TURNOVER NEAR TOP ON MARKET

Sales Again Cross 5,000,000 in Feverish Trading

Old-Line Favorites Yield to Selling Pressure

Setback Offset by Vigorous Upturn of New Group

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—The mightiest stock market in history raced madly on today, piling up total sales of more than 5,000,000 shares for the third consecutive day, for the fourth day this month, and for the fifty day in the market's existence. Heavy selling in some of the old-line favorites was more than offset by a vigorous upturn in a group of new leaders, and about thirty issues broke into new high territory.

The day's sales totaled 5,426,800 shares, which has been surpassed only by the record of 5,670,600 shares established on Monday. The ticker, of course, was left hopelessly behind the transactions, and ran for an hour and twenty minutes after the close. There was more talk than ever among the more confident traders that 5,000,000-share days will soon be accepted as a matter of course. The new ticker which will be installed as soon as a sufficient number can be manufactured will be able to handle 7,000,000-share days.

The same confusion of opinion that this abnormal market has brought forth persisted, with some operators looking for a fairly sharp reaction in the near future, while others maintained that corrective movements will be only minor in character. A large increase in broker loans was generally expected in

NEW YORK CURB STOCKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—Stock prices moved forward again in today's curb market despite increased selling resistance in nearly all active groups. Total sales ran close to record high levels due to the brisk demand for the newly admitted split-up stocks of the American Smelting, Coty, International Nickel and Montgomery Ward companies.

Oils gave one of the best exhibitions of group strength with buying influenced by the recent falling off in crude production and record-breaking gasoline consumption. Standard Oil of Ohio ran up 7½ points to 111½, and Vacuum climbed more than 5 points to a new top at 95¾, but both yielded slightly on profit taking. Lion and Humble also were in good demand.

United Gas and Improvement, the executive committee of which was enlarged today by the addition of President Thomas N. McCarter of the Public Service of New Jersey, and Harold Stanley of J. P. Morgan & Co., moved up 4½ points to a new top at 159½. Electric Bond and Share, American Gas and Electric, and Southeastern Power and Light advanced a point or two, but the Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern issues which have been making new high records almost daily, ran into some selling.

Industrials presented a curious mixture of gains and losses with the former predominating. Massey, Harris and Rainbow Luminous Products each soared more than 15 points to new high records at 85¾ and 73¾ respectively. Other issues to better their previous 1928 tops included Pratt and Lambert, Butler Brothers, Canadian Industrial Alcohol, United States Foil B, Wheeling Steel, Fiat debenture rights, Gleaner Combine Harvester, Gotham Knit Back, Hazeltine Radio and Keystone Aircraft.

Boeing Airplane and Transport sank to another new low at 56¼, and Acetol Products A at 21⅛. Auburn Auto, Checker Cab, General Fireproofing and Swift & Co. fell back 2 to nearly 5 points, and Libby Owens broke 9¾ on a few sales.

The closing price is omitted when same as low, and both low and close when same as the high.

The mortgage will provide for a fixed sinking fund payable monthly to the Trustee beginning January 25, 1930, and for an additional annual sinking fund payable out of earnings, as provided in the mortgage, calculated to retire this entire issue prior to maturity.

The following is quoted from a letter from the President of the Corporation to Furlaud & Company, Inc.:

BUSINESS: Allegheny Gas Corporation has been incorporated under the laws of the State of West Virginia to acquire, own and operate natural gas properties in West Virginia now supplying gas under contract to Huntington Development & Gas Company, United Fuel Gas Company, South Penn Oil Company, and Monickel Gas Company. Gas is also sold at wholesale to the Libbey-Owens Sheet Glass Company. The Corporation's subsidiary, The Upham Gas Company, operates an extensive producing and distributing property in Ohio supplying gas to large industrial consumers, including Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, Lamb Glass Company, Hope Engineering and Supply Company, C. & G. Cooper Company and others at Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and to domestic consumers in that vicinity. The Corporation and its subsidiary will own 147 gas wells and over 100 miles of pipe line including gathering lines, and will control through lease, or own in fee, the gas rights in approximately 37,000 acres of land in the gas producing territories of Lincoln and Kanawha Counties, West Virginia, and Knox County, Ohio. The properties of the Corporation and its subsidiary produced more than 2,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas during the year 1927.

SECURITY: These bonds, to be outstanding in the amount of $1,800,000 upon completion of this financing, will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a first closed mortgage on all of the fixed physical properties and developed leases of the Corporation, subject only to outstanding contracts for the sale of gas and the usual farm mortgages. In addition thereto, these bonds will be secured by pledge with the Trustee of all of the preferred stock and of stock certificates and/or the beneficial interest in certificates representing at least 99% of the common stock of The Upham Gas Company (exclusive of treasury shares reserved for outstanding warrants, exercisable at $50 per share until January 1, 1930, the proceeds from which would accrue to the benefit of these bonds). The mortgage will provide that there shall be no outstanding funded indebtedness of The Upham Gas Company not simultaneously pledged under the mortgage.

The properties of the Corporation and its subsidiary, including working capital, have been estimated by independent engineers to have a combined value of approximately $3,465,000.

EARNINGS: Consolidated earnings of the properties*, as computed for the calendar year 1928 on the basis of earnings reported by Arthur Andersen & Co. for the eight months ended August 31, 1928, and as estimated by independent engineers for the years 1929, 1930 and 1931, are shown below:

LOS ANGELES CURB

Practically all oil issues which have recently featured the unusual activity of the Los Angeles Curb Exchange dropped to lower levels yesterday on an irregular and slower session.

Water spouting from a break in a storm drain completely flooded the curb quarters shortly before the session was to open, and all stocks were temporarily moved to the board of the Los Angeles Stock Exchange and traded there under somewhat crowded conditions. Disconnection of the phone service added to the confusion.

Mexican Seaboard led the activity with a transfer of 9500 shares and in the early part of trading jumped to a new high at 63. Liquidation during the afternoon served to lower quotations to a close at 60 3-8, off 1 1-8 net. Barnsdall A dropped 1 1-4 points to 48 3-4. The rights slumped 1⅛ points to 24⅛. MacMillan Petroleum, traded for the first time Tuesday, sold briskly to a top at 39 and finished at 38 3-8, up 7-8 net. Among the lower-priced oils, Globe gained ⅛ to 16. Bolsa Chica B added 5 cents to close at 2.40 while Universal Consolidated dropped 5 to 1.30.

Marbelite, in the industrial list, advanced 2 points to 63. Lockheed Aircraft closed firm at 64 3-8. Byron Jackson Pump gained 1½ points to 102 and Claude Neon Electrical Products moved up 1-8 to 44 1-8. Kinner Motors lost 5 cents to 1.30. Bank of America lost a point to 180. Banca D'Italia lost 3-8 to 6 1-4. Very little activity was manifested in the balance of the list.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Standard Oil Features Mixed Tone in Local Trading; Low-Priced Shares Strong

Standard Oil of California, Richfield and Rio Grande vied for leadership of the trading activity yesterday in an irregular session on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange. Standard featured the market when it advanced to another new peak, about the sixth in succession, and recorded a transfer of 5000 shares, which is unusual for this issue on the local market. All other major oils declined while the cheaper-priced shares, without exception, moved substantially upward.

Standard of California marked its new record price at 68½, up 1⅛, and closed later at 68 1-8. Rio Grande, following a 12-point drop the previous session, fell off gradually to a low and close at 172, down 3 1-8 points. Trading of this stock was in relatively light volume which marked a tendency on the part of the market to await further field developments. Richfield, which struck a new high in the previous session, traded in less volume and eased 3-8 to 54 3-4. Union of California lost 1-4 to the same price while Union Associates closed at 53 7-8, off 1-8.

Trading was particularly brisk among the lower-priced oil shares. Oceanic touched a new high and close at 1.45, up 35 cents. Bolsa Chica jumped 20 to 2.85. Mt. Diablo advanced the same amount to 3.25. Mascot gained 5 cents to 3.55. Buckeye Union preferred gained 4 to .82.

Giannini issues strengthened. Bancitaly displayed a greater activity and advanced a point to 125. Bank of Italy moved up 2 points to a high and close for the day at 216. California Bank gained ½ to 123. Merchants' National closed firm at 240, while Los Angeles-First National eased 3-4 to 112 1-4. Piggly Wiggly Western, in the miscellaneous group, advanced ½ to 33½ on heavy buying.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, Nov. 14. (AP)—Buyers are more numerous this week. Out sales are limited because of the firmness of the advanced asking prices. The strictly combing cloth of 58-60's and 56's grade are the most popular in these requests, but an increasing number of calls are being received on the domestic 64's and finer wool.

Wanted $50,000

— for a Sound and Very Profitable Investment

WE have a client with a land development proposition in a nearby state which requires $50,000 to handle.

His time is limited and also his acquaintance among men of means in Los Angeles. He has asked us to assist him in finding an investor with $50,000 available now . . . and the time to make a thorough, immediate investigation.

As an advertising agency we are taking the means we know best and have found most effective in getting what our clients want.

Our investigation has convinced us that this proposition is sound, conservative and likely to prove very profitable.

We believe the investor will be completely safeguarded, that his principal will be returned within a period of a few months and that his profit will be a minimum of two hundred per cent with probability of a larger return.

The project is one with which any man will be glad to be identified, no matter what his professional or business connections may be.

Those who respond will be introduced to our client and will deal with him direct.

the Federal Reserve compilation, to be announced after the close tomorrow, but this seemed to cause no considerable concern. The statement of President Simmons of the exchange last night that more and more we must accustom ourselves to the financing of business through the use of broker's loans rather than commercial paper, was a reassuring factor.

MONEY STEADY

Call money was in supply at 6 per cent all day, and there was no calling of loans, although the dividend and interest disbursements tomorrow will be large. There was a slight easing in commercial paper.

There was a feeling that takings of about $40,000,000 in gold in London in recent weeks had materially helped the credit situation.

The day's news was largely favorable. Iron Age reported but a slight seasonal slackening in the iron and steel industry, and the highest price for pig iron in about sixteen months. There were a few good earnings statements and extra dividend declarations, including a 15 per cent stock dividend by Otis Elevator. A further increase in copper prices to 17 cents was said to be in prospect.

BELLAS HESS SCORES

National Bellas Hess, the third largest mail-order house in the country, was the most buoyant issue in the day's trading, rising more than 14 points to a new record price. The buying was based on reports that 1928 earnings will run around $12 a share, and the belief that it has been selling far out of line with other mail-order issues. Sears-Roebuck rose about 8 points to a new peak, but canceled its gain in a wave of profit taking at the close.

There was considerable selling in the morning, which carried General Motors and General Electric off a couple of points, and Radio 6 points. U. S. Steel, which was bid up in an effort to stem the tide of selling yesterday, was again pushed up past 170, a record price, but it canceled its gain later.

The specialties, to which the bulls gave strong support, included American International, Beechnut Packing, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Commercial Credit, Commercial Solvents, Dunhill International, Johns-Manville and Victor Talking Machine, most of which rose 5 to 10 points to new peak prices. However, some gains were dismissed toward the close. Electrical Equipment shares forged ahead, including Allis Chalmers and Westinghouse. In the motors Hudson and Briggs moved up, while Chrysler dropped 3 points.

OILS IN DEMAND

Oils were again in demand, Mexican Seaboard shot up 4 points to a new peak, then fell 6. Phillips, Standards of California and New Jersey and Sun went to new tops. In the coppers, Andes extended its gain, while Greene Cananea well more than 4 points.

Some of the utilities encountered good buying, Consolidated Gas, People's Gas and Coke and General Gas and Electric B going to new high levels. In the rails, Northern Pacific touched a new top at 106, while Union Pacific lost 3 points in profit taking.

International Nickel lost about 5 points, Allied Chemical, American Smelting, A. M. Byers, Montgomery-Ward and Vanadium 2 to 4 points. Wright Aero dropped more than 6 points.

The commodity markets were generally steady, cotton developing strength on the Census Bureau's consumption report but canceling its gains in realizing. Wheat was slightly higher on a bullish Canadian crop report.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, with sterling easing slightly.

SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14. (AP)—The market opened quiet and steady and continued so during the forenoon, but in the afternoon it became bullish with the closing disclosing a long list of gains during today's session on the San Francisco Stock Exchange. Trading was moderately active.

Kolster Radio was the feature of the industrials, opening at 85 and toward noon spurting to a new high of 88¾ from where it eased at the end to close at 87½, rising 2½. Magnavox was under pressure in the early part of the session, slumping from 14⅛ to 13½, to then recover to finish up ⅛ at 13⅞. Byron Jackson was up ½ at 101½ as was John Bean at 52 from 51 and Caterpillar Tractor remained even at 80 after selling as low as 79½. California Ink commenced at 64½, touched a new peak of 65½, but reacted to a close at 63½, off ½, while Crown Zellerbach vic. sacrificed ⅛ to 24. Golden State Milk Products moved up from 59¼ to 59¾, but the net change was a loss of ¼, and Leslie California Salt sold off from 49½ to 48, declining 1½. The rights lowered 83 cents to 4.00. Pacific Gas common was active, climbing from 52 to 53⅞ and ended at 53⅞, appreciating 1⅞, with Paraffine closing at 93 for no gain.

Standard of California was the bright spot in the oils, beginning at 67⅝, easing to 67 and then shooting up to a new high at 69⅝ to close up 2 at 69. Richfield ranged from 35¼ to 36⅛ to 34⅞, losing 1, and North American rose 1⅝ to 44⅝ under heavy buying with Honolulu Oil advancing 1½ to 40⅝ after touching 41⅝. Union Associates was steady at 54 and Union of California retreated ⅛ to 54⅝ from a high of 55.

In the banking division Bank of Italy was strong, rising from 214½ to 217, higher by 2½, with Bancitaly Corporation following suit by netting 1⅛ to 125⅝ from 124½. American Company was up 1 at 146.

Total sales: Bonds, $5000; stocks, 169,649 shares of $10,779,245 market value.

Wheat Futures Up on Bullish Canada Report

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. (Exclusive)—Wheat traders here and abroad construed the Canadian crop estimate on wheat issued late Tuesday as decidedly bullish and prices were rushed up as much as 1⅝c here at the opening, with shorts free buyers on the way up. Selling against offers and profit-taking, combined with selling by houses with Winnipeg connections, brought about a reaction and the greater part of the bulge was lost, the finish being at net gains of ½@⅝c.

Corn was active with general commission house buying in evidence and March and May sold at a new high on the crop, May touching 91⅛c. Prospects for better weather and the reaction in wheat caused a recession from the best figures, with the close ⅛@1c higher. March and May oats also sold at a new high for the season, with the finish easy at gains of ⅛@⅜c, while rye was ⅛@1⅝c higher.

Outside interest in wheat is not large, and the market is easily influenced. Better weather conditions were reported in Argentina, although private cables indicated that damage had been done in parts of that country by recent storms, although it was too early to show how much grain had been lost. Liverpool closed ⅞@1⅛d higher, coming better than due, while Winnipeg showed pronounced firmness and closed ⅝@⅞c higher.

Exporters at the seaboard failed to offer wheat abroad in volume Tuesday night due to the Canadian crop report, and sales for export were limited. Highly beneficial rains have fallen in India, and apprehension of drought has been allayed. World's available supply increased 16,976,000 bushels for the week and total stocks are 274,384,000 bushels against 269,461,000 bushels last year.

Corn market was a broad affair with persistent buying by commission houses, especially in the May, but selling against offers and profit-taking caused a reaction of around ⅜c from the top. The undertone, however, was firm the greater part of the day, and many of the local operators were on the bull side.

Country offerings of corn to arrive were small, and wet weather prevailed over part of the belt, with the result that some Nebraska shippers have been forced to ask Kansas City for an extension of time to fill to-arrive sales. Little was heard regarding export demand. Local spot basis was steady to ¼c lower with receipts 293 cars.

Investment buying and support from cash interests advanced oats prices early, and the close was about the low point. The market showed more activity than of late. Canadian report was construed as bullish. Houses with seaboard connections were good buyers of rye, although there were no sales abroad claimed at the seaboard.

There was active covering of shorts in January lard featured in Wednesday's market with offerings liberal and a fairly good well distributed volume of business. Domestic trade was said to be better and there were fair deliveries on November contracts. The January and May closed 5c higher, with near months 2½@5c lower. December ribs advanced 7½c and January 25c, with just enough trading to establish prices, while bellies were 5@25c higher, the latter on December. Export on bacon was 308,250 pounds.

The Constant Factor in Changing Business

BY

LEO M. MEEKER, President

PAN AMERICAN BANK OF CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles bank clearings for October, $991,004,094.00.

Foreign shipments from Los Angeles Harbor for October, $12,469,679—a gain of 47% over October of 1927.

Annual buying power of metropolitan Los Angeles area $3,303,843,750.

These and similar reports of outstanding progress I have noted in the papers recently.

In fact, so frequently are new records established in Southern California that they are becoming commonplace—even the newspapers report them in a more or less routine fashion.

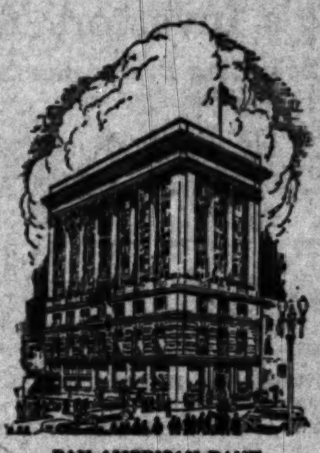
Yet there is a deep significance to me and I am sure to every thinking business man in these striking evidences of activity, industrial growth and increasing population of Los Angeles.

Business all over the country is presenting a changing complexion from day to day.

Ideas and practices that have been effective for years are being discarded in favor of newer, yet proven methods. Practically every businessman is conscious of this fact.

Los Angeles business would be affected by this changing picture even without the dramatic growth of our industries and population in Southern California.

But when to this striking evolution in business methods, there is added the factor of unparalleled civic and industrial development, as is the case here—then there is required the straightest kind of thinking, most careful planning and close co-ordination of effort on the part of every Southern California business organization if it is to take full advantage of its opportunities.



PAN AMERICAN BANK

Blazing New Trails in Business

During my ten years intimate connection with the banking picture of Southern California, I have been closely associated with a great many business men—not alone as a banker, but observing them and talking with them at their desks, at club meetings, conferences, conventions and in civic groups.

I have noted characteristics that seem definitely universal to most of these successful men—there is a seriousness of purpose about them—they possess an engaging frankness in discussing their own problems—they are willing and anxious to exchange ideas—and they discard older methods quickly, once a more efficient practice is proven to them.

Perhaps these conclusions are based upon the fact that a majority of these men whom I have known are young in spirit, aggressive, forward looking—many of them have been blazing new trails in business.

I believe they are the group that is most representative of the successfully conducted businesses of the community today. And they are the one constant factor in the changing business conditions of the present.

And if my business thinking, personally, runs parallel with the thinking of this type of business man, it is because I am tuned in on his problems, his aims, and the help he needs, to a greater extent than with any other group.

As the head of numerous banks in Southern California the past ten years I have sought particularly the banking business of these men—possessing the vision, the aggressiveness and the open mindedness that is so necessary in this era. You will better understand then—

—why here at the Pan American Bank, we particularly welcome this type of business man.

—why we specialize in personalized service.

—why we are particular to have all our officers on the main floor—easily available.

—why we have one policy of fairness to all of our customers.

You will find here the alertness—the willingness—and the understanding of bankers who are bankers of today.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—Trading activity increased and prices generally improved, although with irregularities still apparent in the bond market today. Total sales exceeded $12,000,000, the largest in some time.

Convertibles which reflected the strength of stocks, utilities and rails led the advance. Oils encountered selling pressure and recessions appeared in other groups also, but the price trend was upward. Selling apparently was caused by fear in some quarters that the continued growth of brokers' loans indicates a tightening of money rates that not even the present gold import movement can relieve.

Features of the day were International Cement 5s, Kayser & Co. 5½s, Liquid Carbonic convertible 6s, Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s, Public Service of New Jersey 4½s and Andes Copper 7s, all of which established new high prices and made net gains ranging from 2 to 8¼ points. Anaconda Copper 7s, Container Corporation 6s, P. Lorillard 5s, Adams Express 4s, Paramount Broadway 5½s, United States Rubber 5s, and a number of sugar issues made smaller gains. Buying of sugars was encouraged by announcement of extra dividend declarations. Although most oils were inclined to heaviness, California Petroleum 5s and Transcontinental 6½s made small gains.

Second-grade liens were among the more buoyant issues in the rail group. Canadian Pacific 4s, St. Paul 5s, Nickel Plate 6s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s, Katy 4s B, New York Central 6s, Virginia and Southwestern 5s, and Seaboard Air Line 6s joined the advance.

Italian industrials assumed the leadership of the irregular foreign list. Fiat 7s with warrants soaring more than 14 points to a new high price at 149½. The same issue, but ex-warrants, yielded fractionally. United States government bonds improved.

The quotations represent sales of bonds (in thousands of dollars) and the high, low and closing prices in the order given. To expedite transmission, the close is omitted when the same as the low, and both low and close when same as high.

Practically the entire resources of the Company have been derived from its profits. It has never had a bank loan, and has regularly taken advantage of trade discounts. For the past twenty years the volume of business has increased each year, excepting a slight decrease in the year 1918.

Its activities include the publication of "Moody's Manual of Investments" (five annual volumes with Monthly Supplements), universally recognized as standard authorities on security investments, both American and Foreign; the operation of Moody's Rating System, used as a guide by thousands of investors and bankers; and the rendering of various forms of investment, analytical and research service to bankers, financial institutions, corporations and individual investors.

ASSETS: A balance sheet of the Company as at September 30, 1928, after giving effect to the proposed recapitalization, exchange of capital stock, this financing, and matters incidental thereto, as certified to by Haskins & Sells, Certified Public Accountants, shows Current Assets of $1,179,810.96, including $968,528.45 in cash and marketable securities, and Current Liabilities of $185,214.75, a ratio of over 6 to 1. Certain assets, including the statistical plants in New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles, standing type used in the printing of the annual Manuals, the records and formulae for carrying on Moody's Rating System, which have been developed over a long series of years, and "Goodwill", which in a business so widely known is of large potential value, are carried in the Balance Sheet at $1.

EARNINGS: Net earnings of the Company for the periods indicated below, after all charges, and adjusted to give effect to non-recurring items (averaging $144,186.38 per annum), due to reduction of executive salaries, discontinuance of bonuses to officers and employes, effective October 1, 1928, and advances to the London subsidiary company for development purposes, and to Federal and New York State taxes at present rates, as certified to by Haskins & Sells, Certified Public Accountants, were as follows:

The Company does not execute orders or buy or sell securities for its clients, its position in relation to the security markets being exclusively that of impartial advisor. This policy will be continued. Every share of the Common Stock will be owned by active workers in the business, and provision will be made designed to perpetuate such ownership. BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

The biggest producer that has been brought in from the Buckbee zone at Santa Fe Springs was completed yesterday morning when the Associated Oil Company finished its Jordan No. 2. Coming in with a flow gauged at 3500 barrels a day, its output increased steadily during the day until last night it was said to be flowing at the rate of 8294 barrels a day. This is by more than 2000 barrels the largest of the five wells now producing from the Buckbee sand.

The new well was completed at 5747 feet. The oil tests 33.5 deg. gravity. Casing pressure is 500 pounds per square inch. It has a slight cut which is expected to clear up today. The well came in at 8 a.m. yesterday and each successive gauge during the day saw the flow increasing. It is making about 4,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

This is the fourth well on production from the Buckbee sand at Santa Fe Springs. Nearly a dozen others are due for completion this month. The Wilshire Oil Company's Buckbee No. 1, the Texas Company's Mattern No. 2-7 and the McKeon Drilling Company's York & Lockhart No. 1 are the others now producing from the Buckbee sand. In addition to these, George F. Getty's No. 17 is producing from an intermediate sand, supposedly above the Buckbee zone.

Well Is Opened

An accomplishment of much interest to the oil industry is the opening of the McKeon Drilling Company's York & Lockhart No. 1, a short distance from the burning Bell View No. 1 well at Santa Fe Springs. This was achieved by laying a pipe from the well to a point in the field half a mile to the south, and running the oil through it. The well was shut down last Friday, within a few hours after it came in, because the fire broke out just across the street from it. All woodwork was removed, a high sheet-iron fence was erected as a heat breaker and all connections were covered with earth. This is kept freely watered to prevent heating.

The well, which came in making 3010 barrels a day, is now flowing at the rate of 3120 barrels.

New Elwood Try

Lack of gas pressure at the present depth in the Barnsdall - Rio Grande combination's Elwood Community No. 1 is given as the reason the company has postponed for approximately one week an effort to place the well on production.

A production test made in the hole last Sunday convinced the drillers that it will be necessary to go deeper into the sand if the well is to get production equal to the Doty No. 1 and the two Luton-Bell wells, all of which are good producers. It is expected that the well will be ready for another test early next week.

Shell Completion

The Shell company yesterday completed its Nesa No. 9 at Signal Hill for an initial flow of thirty-five barrels per hour with considerable water cut. The well was completed at 7300 feet.

The company has three drilling projects in that vicinity at about the same depth. They are Dobyns No. 7, Martin No. 6 and Hutton No. 8, all of which are slightly deeper than 7300 feet.

Well Comes In

While the crew of the Umpire Petroleum Company's No. 41 at Los Cerritos was trying to remove thirty-one lengths of drill stem broken off in the hole yesterday morning, the well blew in, flowing at the rate of 500 barrels a day. The drillers had been cleaning the hole to move the lines, when the well unexpectedly came in. The bottom is at 6680 feet. The oil tests 31 deg. gravity.

At Santa Fe Springs

Eleven new locations have been approved at Santa Fe Springs during the past week and twenty-six rigs have been built. The field now has 208 wells drilling, with fourteen deepening jobs under way and five producers in the deeper zone.

Big Gasser In

In the face of efforts to get permission from the land owners to suspend operations on the well for a year, the Associated Oil Company's Voorhies No. 1 in the Potrero district blew in with a showing of oil late Tuesday night. The well is said to be making between 8,000,000 and 12,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day and a great deal of salt water, according to field reports.

Difficulty has been experienced in drilling this well, and the hole is said to have drifted considerably. Two weeks ago the company sought permission to suspend activities for one year.

Oil operators compare the new well to the company's Cypress No. 1 in the same vicinity, which blew in several months ago with gas and salt water and trace of high-gravity oil.

LOS ANGELES MARKET

CATTLE—A steady downpour of rain during the morning session interfered somewhat with the market; however, a good clearance was effected at generally steady to strong prices on all classes.

Steer sales included a car of medium 813-pound averages from a near-by feed lot at 12.25, half a load of plain 1111-pound averages at 10.40, and a few common light Arizonas as feeders at 8.25.

A car of good 1159-pound Idaho cows topped at 10.00. Half a load of medium 639-pound California heifers scored 9.60. Other she stock sales, mostly common and medium kinds, including dairy type cows, were noted from 7.50@9.00, including a car of 803-pound Arizona cows at 8.50. Cutters and low cutters moved freely from 3.50@6.75. About three loads of light Arizona cows went out for feeding purposes from 6.50@6.75. A few good bulls sold around 9.00, with medium kinds down to 8.00, and a few common bulls from 7.00@7.50. Two loads of range bulls were still unsold.

CALVES—Active demand cleaned up the small supply at 25@50c higher prices. A few milk vealers went over from 14.00@15.00. A part load of good and choice 247-pound calves realized 13.50, with two sizable lots of 395 and 367-pound averages at 11.00 and 11.50 respectively. Very thin calves sold down to 8.00.

HOGS—Nineteen decks of hogs were offered yesterday, two of which were held over from Tuesday. Active demand developed and an early clearance was made. Prices were fully 25c lower than Tuesday. Quality of the general run of hogs was good. The day's top, 11.00, was paid for seven loads. Twelve loads of good 180 to 205-pound butchers turned from 10.75@11.00, while six cars of desirable weight offerings but mixed cleared for 10.50 and 10.60. A car of 129-pound pigs made 10.00. Practically all of the butchers were from Utah and Idaho. A small lot of 203-pound trucked-in offerings made 9.50. Packing sows sold largely from 7.85@8.25, with a few at 8.50.

SHEEP—The two double decks of Idaho lambs, yesterday's estimated receipts, went direct to packers. Salable supply consisted of three decks of California lambs that arrived Tuesday too late for the market. These were cleaned up at generally steady prices. Half a deck of medium to good 90-pound California lambs made 11.25, with the balance of the deck averaging 91 pounds at 11.00. Two decks of 94-pound Californias turned for 10.50 straight. Strictly choice handyweight lambs were quoted up to 13.50, with medium to choice ewes from 5.50@7.50.

AL JOLSON AND WIFE REUNITED

Ruby Keeler Arrives from New York and Singer Says She Will Stay Here

Ruby Keeler, musical comedy actress, and Al Jolson were reunited yesterday when she came to Los Angeles to join her husband after a short separation which followed their honeymoon abroad. Mrs. Jolson arrived on the Santa Fe yesterday and was met by her husband and a group of friends.

When the couple returned from a trip to Europe Mrs. Jolson stayed in New York to return to the stage and Jolson came on to the Coast to resume his picture work. Then Mrs. Jolson decided her place was in Hollywood with Jolson, so gave up her stage work to join him.

Mrs. Jolson wasn't sure yesterday how long she will remain in Hollywood, but her husband vouched for the statement that they were not going to be separated again and that she would remain here "from now on." They are at the Ambassador but plan on going to Palm Springs for a few days.

PROTESTS DENIED

The City Council yesterday denied protests against the proposed improvement of La Brea avenue from Pico to Washington Boulevard. Out of 480 parcels of property to be assessed for the improvement protests were filed only by owners of eighteen parcels.

COUNCIL BOWS TO MULHOLLAND

Resolution Praises Record of Veteran

Van Norman Predicted as His Successor

Reorganization Idea Again Brought to Fore

The City Council went on record unanimously yesterday in expressing confidence in and gratitude to William Mulholland for his fifty years' service in the city water department. Mr. Mulholland resigned Tuesday as general manager and chief engineer of the water department. The Council resolution, which was presented by Councilman Hall and unanimously adopted, was as follows:

"Whereas, William Mulholland has tendered his resignation as chief engineer and general manager of the water department of the city of Los Angeles; and,

"Whereas, Mr. Mulholland for the past fifty years has served the people of the city of Los Angeles with unceasing fidelity, and with tenacious courage and vision, and has, in the face of almost overwhelming difficulties, at all times provided the population of this naturally arid country with an ample supply of pure water for all domestic purposes; and,

"Whereas, the Aqueduct water supply made possible the phenomenal growth of the city of Los Angeles both in population and in property values; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the Council of the city of Los Angeles does hereby express regret that Mr. Mulholland has seen fit to voluntarily retire as head of the water department, and hereby extends to him this expression of confidence and gratitude for his services."

VAN NORMAN FORECAST

The Board of Water and Power Commissioners at its meeting tomorrow is expected to formally appoint H. A. Van Norman as chief engineer of the water department, to succeed Mr. Mulholland.

The resignation of Mr. Mulholland revived the discussion yesterday of a possible reorganization of the water and power department by the creation of the position of one general manager to be in charge, under the direction of the Water and Power commission, of both the power bureau and the water bureau. Chief Electrical Engineer Scattergood would, if this plan is adopted, continue as chief of the power bureau, and Mr. Van Norman would be in charge of the water bureau.

POSSIBLE CHOICES

Persons whose names have been suggested as possible appointees to the new position of general manager of the department include Arthur P. Davis, former chief engineer of the United States Reclamation Service, and A. J. Wiley, consulting engineer, who was chairman of the committee appointed by Gov. Young to investigate the causes of the collapse of the St. Francis Dam.

Health Record for Scholastics Becomes Goal

A concerted effort to make Los Angeles school children stand out as the healthiest in America is being made by the Los Angeles Tuberculosis Association, according to Mrs. E. J. Benedict, member of the board of directors. This work, she declared, is being financed solely by the Christmas Seal.

"The little penny Christmas Seal has ushered in a new kind of education," declared Mrs. Benedict. "Pupils today are studying how to attain health, and keep it. Being weighed and measured, having the teeth examined, and reporting how many baths are taken during the week, have become accepted as being as essential as examinations in spelling and arithmetic."

The goal of the present Christmas Seal sale is $100,000, made necessary by the scope of the program planned the coming year.

COST HEARING DEFERRED

Consideration of the assessments to pay for the completed improvement of Gates street from Abrigo street to Minnesota avenue yesterday was postponed by the City Council until the 21st inst.

C. F. LUMMIS NEAR DEATH AT HIS HOME

Historian and Poet Grows Worse After Long Illness and Hope for Life Fades

CHARLES F. LUMMIS

Charles Fletcher Lummis, one of California's most distinguished historian, poet and archeologist, is seriously ill at his home, El Alisal, 200 East Avenue 43.

Although Mr. Lummis has been ill for the last year, his condition was not believed serious until Saturday, when he was stricken with two slight cerebral hemorrhages and lost consciousness.

Last night members of his family who are at his bedside stated his condition remains apparently the same. Little hope is held for his recovery.

Shortly before he was stricken Saturday Mr. Lummis completed and sent to his publishers his latest book, "Flowers of Our Lost Romance," his first book since his recent "A Broncho Pegasus."

Scores of books written by Mr. Lummis, who was city editor of The Times from 1885 to 1887, have been published during the last forty years and several of his first works still are selling.

Mr. Lummis is 68 years of age.

HEAVY STORM NEARS END

Raging Deluge Causes Great Damage in Burbank and Many Los Angeles Areas Flooded

The rainstorm which deluged the Southland yesterday in varying degrees from a raging flood of some consequence in parts of Burbank to flooded homes and business houses in sections of Los Angeles and other cities is expected by the Weather Bureau to come to an end with the close of today. The prediction is "Thursday partly cloudy, moderate cool weather; Friday partly cloudy.

Already the storm, which is the third of the season, has yielded 1.67 inches of water, increasing Los Angeles' total rainfall of the season to 1.96 inches, which is .69 of an inch more than the normal rainfall to date.

The precipitation for the twenty-four-hour period was 1.33 inches.

The runoff of water has been little so that the country's underground reservoirs have been greatly replenished. In addition, the high Sierra country from which the Southland receives so much of its water-generated electric power has been generously restocked with both water and snow and the fall was still in progress last night.

WALL OF WATER ROARS ON

A cloudburst in that part of the Verdugo Mountains which was denuded by the latest brush fire occasioned the Burbank flood which reached in Sunset Canyon the proportions of a roaring wall of water five feet high raging madly down the watercourse. In twenty minutes two inches of water fell in the mountains and the precipitous hills poured the water down into Sunset Canyon in terrifying proportions.

Residents in the canyon for a time were imperiled but none attempted flight as greater safety was offered in their homes along the canyon sides. The roadway in the canyon bed was a raging torrent, churned to a frenzied froth by huge boulders, trunks of trees and other debris.

So powerful was the rush of water that it swept into Olive avenue, principal residential street in the hillside district and leading into the business area of Burbank, and the street became a raging river.

FAMILY TRAPPED

The water rushed into near-by homes, flooding in some cases to the window casements. At one residence at the mouth of the canyon the family was held imprisoned by

CITRUS RETURNS GAIN MILLIONS

Total Beats Previous Year by $10,000,000

Greater Demand by Public, Says Report

Prospect Shows Records to Be Broken

Exceeding by $10,000,000 the total of the year before, the 1927-28 season showed a citrus-crop return to California of more than $130,000,000, according to E. G. Dezell, general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, in his annual report released yesterday. The California crop, Mr. Dezell revealed, had a retail value in the markets of $248,112,618. This, translated into terms per family in the United States, means that "every family spent $8.97 for California citrus fruits this year."

"The season 1927-28 developed a considerably lighter supply of oranges and grapefruit from California and Florida than in either of the last two years," said Mr. Desell. "In value, however, the season just closed has shown a greater return to California for its citrus crop than ever before.

DEMAND GREATER

"With a reduced supply and substantially comparable buying power it would be natural that unit values would rule higher, but the results obtained show clearly that citrus fruits are enjoying a very much greater public demand than formerly to account for the prices which prevailed, full consideration being given to the effect of the decreased supplies."

Total California citrus shipments for the year were 59,396 carloads, consisting of 46,922 cars of oranges and grapefruit and 12,474 cars of lemons, the report shows. Shipments through the exchange equaled 32,986 cars of oranges and grapefruit and 11,535 cars of lemons, or a total of 44,521 cars. This represented 75 per cent of the total shipments from the State, compared with 71.5 the year before.

Returns f.o.b. California to exchange shippers during the season, the value of the cars yet unsold being estimated, equaled $96,582,406.03. The delivered value to the wholesale trade was $122,432,116.

Delivered value for the entire 1927-28 crop was $165,063,190, of which $34,838,156.69 represents freight and refrigeration.

FRUIT SENT ABROAD

The total volume of exchange exports to Europe amounted to 222,114 boxes or 481 carloads. Exchange trans-Pacific sales equaled 440 standard cars.

Returns to California for the exchange lemon shipments exceeded those of any previous year by more than $2,400,000, the report says.

"The favorable position which citrus fruits occupy with consumers must be attributed in large measure to the educational publicity carried on by the exchange for the last twenty-one years, based upon research work demonstrating their beneficial attributes as a part of the daily diet for young and old," said Mr. Dezell.

More than $10,000,000 has been invested by the exchange in placing the healthful and delicious qualities of citrus fruits before the people. The Sunkist magazine campaign, for example, reached a total of 159,000,000 impressions appeared in fifteen national publications and reached 37,000,000 homes.

Every other street car in the United States and Canada, excepting California and Florida, carried a Sunkist or Red Ball orange or lemon card continuously from November to April, inclusive.

TEACHERS EDUCATED

Educational and dietetic activities were announced to teachers, nurses and dietitians by means of a series of more than 900,000 individual advertisements in nine technical food and nurses' magazines.

In the season just closed 6000 large Sunkist fruit-juice extractors were sold. There are now 47,614 in operation. An annual consumption of 6000 standard carloads of citrus fruits is represented in the operation of these machines. This represents a volume of drinks with a retail sales value at 10 cents a drink of $55,660,766.

WHAT Chicago needs is some wholesale deportations.

These are the names in the latest gang fight in which a negro was tortured with red-hot forks: John Oberta, "Polack Joe" Saltis and Walter Zwolinski.

The United States Immigration Service seems to be in a lather of activity whenever some Hollywood screen extra has overstayed her time in this country; but foreign gangsters are allowed to replant their Balkan blood feuds in this country with comparative impunity.

The deportation machinery of this country ought to be kept greased like a toboggan slide. One false step and land them kicking back where they came from.

DEFENDING LOS ANGELES

The battleship fleet tackles a tough problem when it attempts to work out the defense of Los Angeles.

This area—from Tehachapi Pass to San Diego—presents curiously difficult military problems. If an enemy invader once got a foothold here it would be almost impossible to dislodge him. The area is a natural fort with two doors—the Tehachapi Pass and the Cajon Pass.

Various plans of defense have been considered; consisting chiefly of batteries on railroad cars to prevent an enemy landing at Santa Monica, and the big guns at San Pedro to prevent an enemy using San Pedro Harbor as a reoutfitting point for transports.

One very cheerful strategist presented a military plan for the consideration of the general staff, which involved abandoning Los Angeles to the enemy in the event of war.

BEING ADORED

After all, it must be rather tedious to be a Persian sun cultist with so many devoted female adherents to be kept under hypnotic sway. Altogether without regard for the irate husbands who come around and hash one in the nose, there must be much in the process of being an adored one that irks the enthusiasms.

LICKED BY HOLLYWOOD

Another man, licked by Hollywood, has given up the ghost. Maurice Stiller, the great Swedish director, came to the American film colony filled with rosy hopes; and went back home licked and crushed. He died the other day in Stockholm. When art becomes a money-making business the result of the boiling is a mixture containing much misery.

BRIBE QUIZ SCOPE WIDENS

New Witnesses Will be Heard by Grand Jury in Dist.-Atty. Keyes Investigation Today

Several new witnesses will be heard by the grand jury today when the inquisitorial body resumes its investigation of asserted corruption in the office of Dist.-Atty. Keyes.

Grand jury investigators were busy yesterday and last night serving subpoenas and all persons were notified to be present at 10 a.m., when the jurymen convene.

No session of the grand jury was held yesterday but it is understood that individual members formed in committees and discussed the testimony that has been heard up to the present time, outlined the bribery inquiry program and submitted names of witnesses desired.

LIST KEPT SECRET

The list of witnesses was kept secret by investigators, who also declined to give information as to the nature of the evidence to be presented today or the particular cases to be taken up.

Three major cases are known to be under investigation by the jurymen, and it is believed that testimony will be heard relative to both the Keyes-Julian charges, which has already resulted in the indictment of Dist.-Atty. Keyes and seven others on bribery charges; the Grimes-Jacobson frame-up accusation, and the dismissal of the conspiracy indictments against Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, her mother, and Kenneth Ormiston.

FITTS TO PROSECUTE

District-Attorney-elect Fitts, who will prosecute the bribery charges against Keyes when the case goes to trial on December 5, next, spent yesterday in consultation with members of the grand jury and prepared to argue a demurrer filed against two of the indictments by Jack and Ed Rosenberg, brokers, Benjamin and David Getzoff, asserted "pay-off" men, and Charles Riemer, an investigator for Dist.-Atty. Keyes.

Hearing on the demurrer, with counsel arguments, will be held today at 2 p.m. before Superior Judge Edmonds.

The two Getzoffs are to face trial on another bribery indictment on

SUN SHINES IN CHEST DRIVE

High Spirits Displayed as Campaign Workers Give Reports on Progress Toward City's Quota

Despite the dampness attendant upon the second day of the Community Chest campaign there was no dampness of spirit in evidence among the several hundred workers who gathered at the Biltmore yesterday noon for the daily report of progress made thus far toward the filling of the Chest coffers with the city's quota of $2,644,185.

Reports from the thirty-one committees of the central division showed that $303,000 had been subscribed since the previous noon, bringing the division's total to date up to $708,000, or 40.45 per cent of its quota of $1,750,000. This is a gain of 11.90 per cent. J. A. H. Kerr, campaign chairman, commented on the work of the central division as very encouraging. It means, he said, that in seventeen of the committees the vice-chairmen have attained more than 75 per cent of their goal, and in fourteen committee workers have reached more than 75 per cent of the committee's goal.

A report from the business district showed a total amount subscribed to date of $44,077, or 9.57 per cent of its quota of $460,570. Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy, reporting for residential districts A, B, C and D, gave $14,527 as the amount subscribed to date, or 5 per cent of the quota of $290,500.

A summary of the total amount subscribed up to noon yesterday places the figure at $770,436, or 28.91 per cent of the entire campaign total. This leaves $1,873,604 to be raised in the remaining eight days of the drive. So far, no reports have come in from the Hollywood, Japanese, Catholic schools, Federal employees and motion-picture districts.

William Lacy, president of the Community Chest, spoke to campaign workers concerning the idea prevalent in the community that di-

SCORE INJURED IN STORM

Broken Limbs and Lacerations Result from Accidents Due to Downpour

Twenty-eight persons were treated at the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital yesterday for injuries, mainly of a minor nature, which were attributed directly or indirectly to yesterday's rainstorm. Three of the victims of storm accidents slipped on wet pavements. They are:

Mrs. Imogene Downs, 23 years of age, 900 South Westlake street, received a fracture of the left ankle when she fell on Second street, between Spring and Broadway.

EYE CUT IN FALL

Tom O'Connor, 42, of 454 East Fourth street, received a severe laceration over the right eye, when he fell at Fifth and Main streets.

Blinded by the downpour, Jack Riley, 44, of 739 South Central avenue, failed to see the approach of an automobile driven by H. W. Bailey of 1351 South Georgia street as he started to run across East Fifth street near Crocker and he ran directly into the path of the car. At the General Hospital, to which he was taken after treatment at the Georgia-street Hospital, it was said he had suffered a slight concussion of the brain and a sprained back.

WOMAN'S LEG BROKEN

Mrs. Maude Tighe, 35, of 1910 South Los Angeles street, received a fracture of the right leg, when she was struck early yesterday morning at Washington Boulevard and Los Angeles street by an automobile driven by Edwin Luce of 1010 South Gage street. She was taken to the General Hospital. Bailey said the poor visibility caused by the rain prevented him from seeing Mrs. Tighe in time to avoid hitting her.

Jack Raymond, 41, an actor residing at 704½ West Third street, stopped at Ninth and Albany streets to aid a woman in distress. Her car had been stalled by the veritable flood in the streets and he attempted to crank it. He received a compound fracture of the arm when it backfired, and was treated at Georgia-street Hospital.

STUDIO BLAST QUIZ ORDERED

Fire Department Will Fix Blame for Explosion

One Killed, Two Injured, at First National

Flying Block of Concrete Fatal to Worker

Investigation of the explosion of the First National Studio's arsenal, which caused one death and heavy property damage yesterday morning, will be started today by fire officials.

Cecil Irwin, 1903 Berkeley avenue, was killed, Ray Davies is in a serious condition at the Hollywood Hospital, and Gordon Denton is painfully but not seriously hurt as the result of the explosion, which hurled scores of workmen to the ground with its terrific concussion. Property damage is estimated at $40,000.

ONLY FLOOR REMAINS

Nothing but the floor of the arsenal, the walls and roof of which were ten inches thick, was left after the blast, which occurred at 9 o'clock.

The French village used in the filming of Colleen Moore's "Lilac Time" was partly wrecked by the blast, which spread havoc in a circle 150 feet from the arsenal.

Irwin, who was working in the near-by plaster plant, was crushed by a large block of concrete from the arsenal roof, which plunged through the roof of the plant. He died before reaching the hospital. Time for the Coroner's inquest has not been set.

Although water seeping into the building and on the explosives may have caused a chemical action resulting in the blast, officials said, fire department investigators were unable to determine the cause.

MANY ESCAPES

According to studio officials, no one was in the building at the time of the explosion, and all those injured were hit by flying debris. Many stories of miraculous escapes were related after the fire which followed was extinguished.

The arsenal was located in an isolated section of the studio lot, just to the rear of stage No. 8, but despite the distance from the major portion of the giant plant, every building in the large group was severely shaken.

The concrete structure, according to studio officials, housed black powder, smoke bombs, and other explosive paraphernalia used in filming scenes where fire and war action is necessary. No dynamite was in the building, the studio reported.

Because of the early hour few of the company's leading players were on the lot. A hard rain was falling at the time, which aided in quickly quenching the flames.

Davies resides at 812 North Hudson avenue, and Denton formerly lived at 1614 Hudson avenue.

FORMER DRY AGENT GRANTED NEW TRIAL

W. A. Brockway, former dry agent, accused of converting fifty gallons of alcohol to his own use after it had been seized in a Federal raid, was granted a new trial yesterday by United States District Judge James. The jury had failed to agree and had asked for additional instructions from the court. It was stated that one juror was missing at one stage of the deliberations of the jury.

WORK ON DAM TO START SOON

for the actual construction of the dam, including exacavation work, labor and certain materials. To the low figure will have to be added, according to Chief Engineer Eaton and Supervisor Graves, about $11,200,000. This figure will include every other cost to put the dam up complete, including costs thus far expended and costs of material, including cement, which the county is to furnish the contractor. Assuming that the low bid will be $11,250,040, the total cost will be about $22,500,000. But, it is pointed out that the bids submitted yesterday are based on the estimates of material and work set forth in the specifications. It is entirely probable, in the opinion of some of the county officials, that these estimates are low and that the cost will run up above the $22,500,000 figure before the dam is complete. The project was set forth as to cost $25,000,000 in the $35,000,000 flood-control bond issue voted April 1, 1924. About $1,200,000 of the allotted $25,000,000 has been expended already for preliminary work, procuring of rights of way, construction of a railroad to the dam and other work.

In the opinion of Supervisor Graves, the low bidder will be determined by the early part of next week and the contractor should be able to arrange his bond within a month, leaving the way clear for actual work to start by the first of the year. It will take several months for the contractor to haul in his equipment and machinery, establish his plant and get ready for work.

PLACER CLAIMS MADE

Eaton announced that plans are ready for the construction of a model construction camp, with all necessary buildings, bids for the construction of which will be called for by the county shortly. At a later date bids for the furnishing of cement and other materials also will be called for.

In connection with the proposal to obtain the aggregate from the river bed, possibility of legal difficulty looms as a result of the placer mining claims filed at the dam site and on considerable territory above and below the site where it is contemplated to procure the gravel. The claimholders insist that their claims are valid and the county or the contractor will have to pay for any gravel taken. Supervisor McClellan says "there is nothing to the claims of those people on the gravel" and that there is nothing to worry about. One of the claims rests immediately under one end of the dam site itself. Government engineers are now investigating these claims.

According to figures compiled by Eaton, the San Gabriel dam, originally planned by J. W. Reagan, former chief engineer of the district, will be the largest in the world. It will rise 432 feet above the stream bed and will measure about 2400 feet along the crest from one wall of the canyon to the other. It will be about 400 feet thick at the base. It will have a spillway tunnel, valves for regulating the storage of water, inspection galleries and other safety features. The reservoir capacity will be around 240,000 acre feet.

members of the exchange in the aggregate sum of $110,414,000 and returned to them in refunds and otherwise the sum of $4,050,413," Mr. Dezell said in his report. The 1928-29 season's business amounted to $9,658,929.

RECORD EXPECTED

Looking into the future, Mr. Dezell said preliminary estimates indicate that, together, the crops in California and Florida the coming season will exceed the production of any previous years, but it is "confidently expected that with good distribution and the large increase in demand which has been developed in recent years they can be sold at satisfactory prices, considering the lower production costs with larger production."

"This will necessitate, however," he said, "the broadest distribution and bringing back into the carlot class many small markets and dealers that, because of short supplies and high prices, have in recent months purchased in smaller quantities and not put their distributing effort behind citrus fruit."

Bad accounts charged off during the season amounted to only one hundred and fifty-seven ten-thousandths of 1 per cent of the net returns. Credit losses to exchange shippers in a period of twenty-four years amounted to fifty-nine ten-thousands of 1 per cent of the f.o.b. returns.

CHEST REPORTS INDUCE CHEER

rectors and officers of the Chest receive salaries for their services to the organization. He branded this as idle talk and hoped that campaign members will dispel this notion whenever and wherever possible.

COMPENSATION INTANGIBLE

"We do receive a compensation, however," he said, "which is the same for officers and members of the board as it is for every person who takes a part in the Chest activities. It is a compensation of satisfaction from the knowledge that we are doing something for humanity and for our city."

Bankers and business leaders of the city were the special guests of the campaign committee yesterday and several of them responded to Mr. Kerr's request to speak briefly to the workers.

Orra E. Monnette expressed absolute confidence that the drive will be put over this year without evasion or hesitation and he suggested the thought which has been emphasized before, that the support of the Chest is a definite obligation on the part of every responsible member of the community and not merely the concern of those public-spirited citizens who give of their time and effort to organize and carry on the campaign.

Don Riley, president of the Drake-Riley Company, feels that Chest consciousness is gaining momentum with each succeeding campaign and that the Chest as an institution is here to stay as a part of our fixed obligations and of our regular community spirit.

OTHERS SPEAK

Other speakers who expressed hunches, premonitions and convictions that the campaign will meet with success this year were John Burke, vice-president of the First National Bank; George I. Cochran, president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company; Herbert Ivey, vice-president of the Citizens' National Bank; Victor Rossetti, Charles Toll, vice-president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, and E. J. Nolan of the Merchants' National Bank.

Today will be retail day at the noon-day meeting and heads of merchandising houses will be the special guests.

The Quality Serenaders supplied music during the luncheon hour.

The demurrer sets out that the two counts of the indictment do not state facts sufficient to constitute a public offense, do not conform to the requirements of the Penal Code and, further, do not contain a statement of facts attempted to be charged in ordinary or concise language, or in such manner as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is intended.

NEW GAS RATE SCHEDULE SET

Railroad Commission Tells Plan to Equalize Cost

Two Instead of Three Areas Will be Designated

Minimum Charge of 80 Cents Per Month Provided

In what is described as an effort to equalize the actual cost of gas distribution in the greater Los Angeles territory by taking up the slack of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation and the Southern California Gas Company the Railroad Commission yesterday announced changes, whch it contends will benfit the heavier users of gas at the expense of the lighter, reduce the annual income of those companies by $500,000 and yet assure them a safer measure of return on their investment.

The basis means of accomplishment, the commission said, lies in the creation of two so-called rate areas and the establishment of a minimum charge of 80 cents per month for the first 300 cubic feet.

AREAS DEFINED

The first area is to consist of Los Angeles proper, Pasadena, South Pasadena, Alhambra, Vernon and Beverly Hills. Gas users within that area will pay 80 cents for the first 300 cubic feet and 72½ cents for each additional 1000 cubic feet. The object of the minimum charge, it is said, "is to require every consumer to meet the actual cost of service" and the commission avers "reductions in monthly bills will be achieved as the consumption per meter increases and the lower rates become effective." The consumers who will obtain the greatest benefits, the commission said, "will be those using greater quantities of gas, such as the house-heating group."

The second-rate area will include Santa Monica, San Gabriel, Huntington Park, Inglewood and other outlying communities. The 80-cent minimum will be in effect in that area also and the next cost will be 77 cents for each additional 1000 cubic feet.

PRINCIPLE INVOLVED

The commission points out that the three rate areas which have been in existence hitherto have had rates of 92 cents, 98 cents and $1.12 per 1000 cubic feet.

The principle involved, according to the commission, "results in a large decrease to the consumers formerly served at the higher rates and a lesser decrease within the city of Los Angeles where the rates in the past have been lowest. It is estimated that consumers within Los Angeles city proper will receive reductions totaling approximately $160,000 per year, or slightly more than 1 per cent, while consumers in the outlying areas formerly served at the higher rates will have a total reduction in excess of $350,000, or an average decrease slightly in excess of 5 per cent."

The effective date was not specified.

Wife Freed of Mate Who Took Sewing Money

For ten years after Henry G. Glover and his wife Mable were married she was not permitted to select her own wearing apparel without his advice and assistance, she told Superior Judge Bowron yesterday at the hearing on her petition for a divorce.

Mrs. Glover said she was not permitted to make the smallest purchase without his assistance and that he allowed her only 50 cents a day for food, which forced her to take in sewing to make both ends meet. When he learned she was making a little extra money Glover forced her to turn it over to him, she said.

The decree was granted.

Fire Damages Vacant Offices

Fire, which broke out early last evening in unused offices of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Drydock Corporation on the west basin of Los Angeles Harbor is estimated to have caused about $5000 damage. The blaze was discovered by a watchman on the second floor.

When the blaze had broken through to the other side of the building it became necessary to recall the apparatus, which had left when the blaze appeared slight.

ACTOR'S FATHER HERE FOR LENGTHY VISIT

PARENT TELLS HOW PLAYER RAN AWAY TO SEEK FAME ON STAGE

Clinton P. Brown, father of James Hall, screen actor, arrived in Hollywood yesterday from Dallas, Tex., for an indefinite visit. This is the first time since Hall left his home at the age of 13 years to join a theatrical troupe that he and his father have been together for any length of time.

Hall, according to his father, ran away from home to go on the stage, but was caught at Richmond, Va., and brought back home. The lure of the footlights, he said, proved too much for his son and again he ran away from home. This time they allowed him to have his way and Hall finally won recognition on the musical-comedy stage in New York. Later he started a screen career.

Hall's father plans to stay several months. He is at Hall's apartment in Hollywood until his son's home in the Hollywood hills is completed.

HOUSE BLOWN UP AS GAS IGNITES

Paperhanger Burned by Flare of Blast

One Side of Building Torn Away by Concussion

Explosion Follows When Man Lights Match

A lighted match and an open gas jet combined to cause an explosion early last night that seriously injured Francis A. Tanner and blew one side of a bungalow at 6251 out one side of a bungalow at 6251 Meridian street.

Tanner, 45 years of age, who lives at 307 Annandale street, was rushed to the Pasadena-avenue Receiving Hospital, where, it is said, he is suffering from first and second-degree burns about the head, face and neck. Although the burns are serious, he is expected to recover, hospital attaches said.

The injured man was papering the house at the Meridian-avenue address, police investigators said, and for some unknown reason struck a match.

The terrific explosion which followed rocked the neighborhood and when residents of the section arrived Tanner was found in a semiconscious condition amid the wreckage of the side wall of the house.

Every window in the dwelling was blown out by the blast. The house did not take fire.

Myrtle Frykberg, who lives next door at 6255 Meridian street, said that Tanner's wife is ill in a sanitorium in Arizona. The injured man's first thought when he was brought to the Frykberg residence was for the safety of his coat containing $50 and personal papers, according to Miss Frykberg.

The money, she said, was to provide medical aid for his wife and is all his ready resources. He suffered a nervous breakdown recently, neighbors stated, and the papering job was the first work he had done in several months.

T. L. Dudley of 4047 West Twenty-third street owns the house, according to Miss Frykberg. It had been vacant for the last few days and was being refinished by Tanner when the explosion occurred.

FRATERNITY DISCUSSES LATIN TOPICS

Three Professors Address U.C.L.A. Political Science Organization

Continuing the Latin-American week program at the University of California at Los Angeles, Pi Sigma Alpha, honorary political science organization, presented a program of talks on Latin-American subjects by three university professors at a meeting held at 4 p.m. yesterday in Berkeley Hall on the local campus.

At the Pi Sigma Alpha meeting Dr. Cesar Barja, associate professor of Spanish at U.C.L.A., spoke on "The Attitude of Latin-American Nations Toward the United States;" Dr. George M. McBride, associate professor of geography, talked on "The Present Status of the Tacna-Arica Question," and Dr. George Hammond of the University of Southern California, spoke on "The History of the Nicaraguan Situation." Charleton Chute, president of the organization, presided.

The art department of the University of Californa at Los Angeles is exhibiting many Latin-American art objects, some obtained from the Southwest Museum. The exhibits include a Tarascan Idol of Plenty, which was worshiped more than 400 years ago to obtain prosperity, a woolen serape from Mexico, and Latin-American pottery, weaving, beads and lacquer work.

At the Associated Students' assembly to be held tomorrow at 1 p.m. in Millspaugh Hall auditorium, Henry C. Niese, Consul of the Argentine Republic, will speak on the Latin-American program. Daniel Salazar, U.C.L.A. freshman, will speak on the viewpoint of the Mexican student.

Also co-operating in Latin-American week, the International Luncheon Club will be addressed by Alphonse Club on the United States and the Spanish-speaking countries at noon today at the campus Y.W.C.A. and Dr. J. Branctu, former Minister to the United States from Guatemala, will speak to the Cosmopolitan Club at its meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in the Fine Arts Building on the campus.

The term of the directors is two years and the newly elected ones take office on January 1, next. The directors chosen yesterday are:

Nathan Case, M. C. H. Clinch, W. E. Dimmick, Ayers DuBois, Harold G. Ferguson, Clem S. Glass, C. W. Grant, E. Avery McCarthy, Robert Nathan, L. W. Pollard and G. D. Robertson.

U.C.L.A. DEBATERS WILL CLASH TODAY

Interclass debate laurels are at stake today at the University of California at Los Angeles when the freshman forensics squad tackles the senior debaters on the question, "Resolved: That final examinations be abolished." The contest will decide the winner in the interclass forensics contest, the seniors having already conquered the juniors, and the freshman team having won out over the sophomore debaters.

JANITOR WINS FIRST-AID DIPLOMA

Community Center Worker Graduates

Proud Moment in Humble Caretaker's Life

Jesus Perez, janitor at the Community Chest's Santa Maria Community Center, is receiving his diploma from Mrs. Edna Karicofe, carrying the distinction of being the first man in the United States to complete the Red Cross course in home hygiene and first aid.

JESUS PEREZ may be only the Janitor at the Community Chest's Santa Maria Community Center but he also holds the distinction of being the first man in the United States to receive a diploma for graduating in the Red Cross course in home hygiene and first aid.

The Red Cross, with funds contributed by the Community Chest, conducted a class in home hygiene and first aid at the Santa Maria center under Mrs. Edna Karicofe.

Perez, blessed with four active boys who quite often need first aid, enrolled in the course as a precautionary measure.

According to Mrs. Karicofe, he proved a very apt pupil. He now treats all minor emergency cases at the center when the physician happens to be away.

German Leather Magnate Maps Business Here

Baron Ludwig Heyl, head of the Heyl Leather Works of Worms, Germany, is a guest at the Biltmore, accompanied by Curt Depker and M. L. Einstein of his organization.

"Our firm has been in business for 100 years and employs 9000 men. Business has been improving steadily in Germany, but opportunities for profit have been small, owing to the heavy taxes," he said.

Baron Heyl is the sixth member of the family to inherit the executive management of the business. "We import hides from practically every country in the world except America, and regret that this nation has so little to offer in our line. My trip is largely in the interest of ascertaining the needs of Americans, and to get acquainted with retailers. I have not been to Los Angeles for twelve years, and quite naturally am astounded at the developments that have taken place," he said.

WORK LET FOR HARBOR RAIL ROUTE

Board Awards Contract on Santa Fe Right-of-Way Grading for $23,891

Contract for the grading of the permanent right of way for the Santa Fe line from its present fixed terminus in Wilmington to the harbor, by crossing Truck Boulevard and passing under the Anaheim Boulevard viaduct, was awarded yesterday to B. W. Hicks, low bidder, at $23,891, by the Harbor Board, on recommendation of General Manager Edwards. The work is to be completed within sixty days of signing the contract.

The board also approved Harbor Engineer Nicholson's specifications for the construction of abutments for the Santa Fe railroad bridge, included in the permanent right of way program, which will cross Truck Boulevard north of the Consolidated Lumber Company's plant. The plans call for the boulevard passing beneath this bridge. Bids on the abutments will be opened by the Harbor Board at 9 a.m. December 5, next.

The board yesterday received the signed agreement of the Southern Pacific Railway permitting the Harbor Department to provide a detour on the railway property at Thenard during the construction of the Santa Fe right of way across Truck Boulevard.

MADDUX AIR LINES OPEN NEW ROUTE

Two Huge Planes to Carry Passengers to Imperial Valley Points Today

Maddux Air Lines today will inaugurate service on their third division, an extension from Los Angeles to San Bernardino, Redlands, Colton, Palm Springs, Imperial, El Centro, Brawley, Calexico and Mexicali.

This is the first air route to be opened from Southern California eastward with trimotored air liners. The Maddux caravan today will include two large Ford all-metal planes, with the possibility of a third, due to overnight reservations.

Leaving Los Angeles at 9 a.m., the air caravan will arrive at El Centro, after all the stops, at 11:30 a.m. Leaving El Centro at 2:25 p.m., the planes will return to Los Angeles at 4:45 p.m.

Ten men, all Imperial Valley pioneers who have lived there more than twenty-five years and came in by wagon, on foot with pack mules, will fill one plane on the return trip. They are coming to Los Angeles for a party tonight celebrating the advance made by their section in twenty-five years. A shipment of the finest Imperial grapefruit also will arrive on the Maddux plane.

YOUNGSTERS BEAT FATHER

Children Resent His Charges Against Mother as Court Deprives Her of Their Custody

Sobbing and with their little fists clenched, two children, Harris Flannery, 10 years of age, and Martha, 9, made a furious attack upon their father in the hall outside of the courtroom yesterday after Superior Judge Rosenkranz had entered an order taking them away from their mother and placing them in a house at 2621 Menlo avenue.

Charles Flannery, the father of the children, appeared before the court and was granted an order taking the custody of the children from their mother, Mrs. Jeffie Rae Flannery, interior decorator. He branded the mother unfit to have the boy and girl on the assertion that she smokes, drinks intoxicants and bathes in their presence.

FATHER BEATEN

Following the hearing the family left the courtroom. Outside, the children began sobbing. Then both clenched their little fists, rushed at their father and began raining blows on him as far up as they could reach on his body.

Attorney Griffith Jones, representing Mrs. Flannery, declares the case will be presented to the Appellate Court in a writ of habeas corpus. He also states that he intends to put the matter of the placing of children in certain boarding-houses that live on the fees paid by parents, on the recommendation of referees, before the grand jury.

The accusations against Mrs. Flannery were made in a report of a referee.

WOMAN DEFENDED

Following the reading of the report to Judge Rosenkranz, Attorney Jones jumped to his feet and wanted to know if smoking was a terrible offense. He heatedly declared that Mrs. Flannery is not the immoral woman that she was painted. He demanded a court hearing to prove his assertions. He declared he wanted a more modernized person than the referee to pass on the case.

Judge Rosenkranz refused to go further with the case after entering his order.

"There is a good deal more looseness today than there ever has been before," he stated.

"Perhaps you do not think that smoking among women is wrong, but the fact remains that our American civilization says it is."

Then he went on to say:

"There seems to be a breaking down of the moral code what with drinking and smoking among parents. Perhaps you may think this is old fashioned, but our civilization has not yet reached the stage where we can abandon all of our carefully built up ideas of morality and become what you call modernized."

Handle on Auto Door Kills Man

Injuries received when he stepped off the curb into the path of a passing automobile at Sixth and Main streets early yesterday morning caused the death a few minutes later of Delbert L. Stripe of 3287 Arroyo Seco Drive, according to police.

The automobile was driven by Rene Steffens of 745 Ladero street, Pasadena, who was accompanied by his wife, police stated. Stripe, it was asserted, was struck in the face by the handle on the sedan door and knocked to the pavement. He died on the way to Georgia-street Receiving Hospital. Steffens was not held responsible by police. An inquest will be conducted tomorrow at 1:30 p.m.

Today's Bible Text

He that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down, and without walls. Prov. xxv:28.

VARIANT MOODS

A woman conceals her age, but broadcasts her youth.

PASSING THE HAT

The last appearance of the brown derby is as it is being passed for contributions to meet the campaign deficit.

OVERDRAWN

The per capita income of the country is now $765, but Henry Ford is said to have had his two or three years ago.

THE WATER'S FINE

Eastern folks who waited to cast their ballots before undertaking the California trek are now on the way. It looks like a large season and a pleasant one.

THE BIG PARADE

With 36,000,000 Americans showing up at the polls on a single day it would seem that there is an augmented interest in their citizenship. It seems like the high point in balloting.

THE POOR FISH

With 1000 tons of sardines rolling into the harbor canneries on a single day the folks who do their housekeeping with a can opener won't have a thing to worry about.

USES OF PATHOS

The movie men must remember that pathos should be human and natural. It can be forced once or twice, but not as a steady diet. It must belong. Women like to cry when it is time to cry. They won't keep on shedding tears over false alarms.

EASY SAILING

Young Senator LaFollette swears that in his campaign for re-election he received no contributions and spent not a penny for his expenses. The father's name seems to be still worth something on the political counter in Wisconsin. But there is such a thing as being too thrifty.

CLOSE GUESSING

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who is a Democrat, but opposed to Smith, announced a few weeks before election that Hoover would carry North Carolina by 30,000 and also win the electoral votes of Florida, Kentucky, Tennessee and probably Texas. The North Carolina statesman was an even better guesser than the chairman of the Republican National Committee.

FALSE PROPHETS

The head of the Japanese weather bureau made a miscue and fled from his office in apprehension and disgust. In other days he might have killed himself on the front steps, but this chief merely threw up his job and quit. He had promised the citizens of Japan that a certain Sunday would be fair and warmer, but a typhoon came out of the void and raged over the island empire for two days, doing all kinds of damage. The prophet was left without honor in his own country and, therefore, he withdrew in shame. If the weather clerks here threw up their jobs every time they missed a guess there would be a continuous procession of changing forces.

OPEN-FACED JUSTICE

The assassin of Gen. Obregon received more consideration than he was entitled to, but the valuable thing is that Mexico has demonstrated the will and power to substitute the orderly processes of law for the rule of hysteria. Although the guilt and motivation of the murderer were known to all there was nevertheless a formal public trial and the defendant was given all the time and assistance necessary to present his case. The woman who seemed to have established a mental influence over the actions of the murderer was found guilty as an accomplice by a vote of eight to one, but was let off with a prison sentence. The Mexican practice simplifies justice above our own methods. It calls for a jury of but nine persons and a majority vote decides the verdict. There isn't much chance for a disagreement. Mexico is indicating a surprising degree of sanity and capacity in the treatment of her internal problems.

MULHOLLAND RETIRES

Los Angeles owes more to William Mulholland, whose retirement as chief engineer of the Water Bureau has just been announced, than to any other one individual who has ever been associated with its service. For fifty years continuously he has labored to perfect the Los Angeles water system, and for twenty-six years has been its chief engineer. He will be long remembered as the builder of the Los Angeles Aqueduct, the boldest and most spectacular engineering work ever attempted by an American city, as well as one of the most difficult.

During his term of service the Los Angeles water system from a few miles of pipes valued at most at $100,000 has grown to a system of 3200 miles of conduit worth at least $100,000,000, and supplying 285,000 homes, buildings and factories over an area of 440 square miles. The tribute paid to him by Commissioner Del Valle may well be quoted in part:

"He has ever regarded the duty of keeping the people supplied with water as sacred and inviolable. Many a time has this city been saved from actual shortage by the sleepless vigilance of this one man. Domestic use has been maintained; municipal needs have been met, and the public health, dependent at all times upon a pure and potable water supply, has been conserved.

"It may be asserted without fear of successful contradiction that no engineering achievement in this country within the past half-century has exceeded in difficulty or merit that of William Mulholland in keeping the water supply of this city, in its rapid growth and development, up to the requirements of its inhabitants.

"Despite his years and long service, he is still a vigorous and outstanding figure in the community, strong in the affection and esteem of his fellow-citizens. No ill fortune has been sufficient to shake the confidence of the people in this good and faithful servant."

Mr. Mulholland leaves office upon the eve of a still more difficult and costly achievement, the Colorado River aqueduct, but not without having laid a firm foundation upon which his successors can build. The preliminary planning of this great enterprise has been done under his watchful eye, and the city has in his probable successor, Assistant Chief Engineer Van Norman, a man of proved capacity upon whom it may rely to solve the further problems that will arise. Van Norman has had twenty years of service in the Water Department and was a division chief in the aqueduct work. Loaned to the city a few years ago to construct the outfall sewer, he built it in record time and at a saving of $5,000,000 from its estimated cost.

So that if the city suffers the loss of a tried and trusted adviser in Mr. Mulholland's retirement, at least he leaves to take up his work a man trained in his own school of rugged honesty and spirit of service to the community. The Water Department has, it is understood, a tentative plan of retaining Mr. Mulholland in an advisory capacity, and it is to be hoped that he can be persuaded to accept such a relationship.

It is difficult to imagine the Water Department without William Mulholland.

GOV. SMITH'S ADVICE

In his post-campaign radio message to the members of his party, Gov. Smith gave some advice which, if it is heeded, may drag Democracy out of the slough of despond and make it a really useful part of the government. He urged, first, that Democrats remember that Hoover has been elected President of all the people and not merely of one party, and that his efforts on behalf of the nation deserve co-operation, not obstruction; and second, that the Democracy devise a constructive program and urge its acceptance in Congress. Criticism alone, he declared, will not do; the party can never get anywhere with purely negative efforts.

Gov. Smith thus evidences rather more knowledge of statecraft than he would have been given credit for on the basis of his campaign speeches alone, and many of his hearers must have felt that for the first time they were learning what has made his administrations in New York successful. He has never presented himself to the national public in a more favorable light.

The country needs a strong, an able, an efficient minority party. It cannot be said that the Democratic party, during the past eight years, has fulfilled this function; its record in Congress has been one of scuttle and blockade. If it now turns its attention from mere hamstringing and offers the country some suggestions for the improvement of its government and its legislation, it may be sure that these will receive consideration and will be put into effect if it can convince the Republican party of their usefulness.

PERVERSE HUMAN NATURE

Seldom have the quirks and vanities of human nature been so paradoxically illustrated as in the attitude assumed by certain Sicilians toward the terrible catastrophe that has fallen on their richly endowed but deadly dangerous island. While whole towns and villages are buried under avalanches of molten lava, thousands rendered homeless, citrus groves and orchards burnt to the ground, Sicilians—whose own families and properties are well away from the danger zone—pridefully proclaim their allegiance to and admiration of Mount Etna, the biggest and most voracious volcano on the face of the earth.

Local "patriotism" could hardly go further. Visitors from the mainland are taunted about their "elegant little fire juggler," Vesuvius; the 200 craters of Etna are pointed to in comparison as proofs of its vast superiority. Sicily's "magic mountain" is the subject of loquacious panegyric. Special excursions have been run that unfortunates with no volcanoes of their own may see the Sicilian monarch at his best. One devotee risked his life to light a cigarette from the stream of fire coughed up from the lungs of the goddess. Even the devastated peasants view the destroyer with devotion mingled with awe.

Yet to boast the possession of something big and perilous and awe-inspiring is not such a rare human attribute that we should be too critical of Sicily's apparent pride in her champion volcano. Persecuted people in the past have often similarly eulogized the ruthlessness of their own particular tyrants. It was this same Sicilian spirit that has given Alexander and Caesar and Napoleon their commanding position in estimating world leaders. And for Etna at least it may be said that its tyranny is in obedience to natural laws.

And while the Sicilians magnify their despotic mountain—and are not slow to appreciate the value of such spectacular eruptions for keeping their island in the public eye—they are taking care of their afflicted and suffering and doing all that is humanly possible to repair the damage and provide for the victims. Who shall blame them if they can make the cause of their woes help to pay for the restoration?

SEVEN CONGRESSWOMEN

Eastern feminists see much significance in the fact that the recent election added three women to the number now holding seats in the House of Representatives. The seventy-first Congress will have seven feminine members, Mrs. Kahn of California, Mrs. Owen of Florida, Mrs. McCormick of Illinois, Mrs. Langley of Kentucky, Mrs. Pratt of New York, Mrs. Rogers of Massachusetts and Mrs. Norton of New Jersey. Only two of these, Mrs. Owen and Mrs. Norton, are Democrats.

The first woman to be elected to Congress was Mrs. Jeannette Rankin of Montana, who took her seat seven years ago. Since then the number has increased from one election year to another. In the coming Congress the feminine contingent will be seven times as strong as in 1920. Feminists have figured out that at the recent rate of increase there will be enough women in the House by 1950 to constitute a feminine bloc.

Of the older women members Mrs. Kahn of California and Mrs. Rogers of Massachusetts were originally elected as a sort of respect to their deceased husbands, but they have made good on their own account. The Boston Transcript says of them: 'Their constituents may well say, 'We love them for themselves alone.'"

A notable addition to the number of women Congressmen is Mrs. Ruth Pratt. She is a brilliant woman and has won distinction as a member of the New York Board of Aldermen. Her campaign was made largely on her exposure of the evils of Tammany Hall, with which she became well acquainted in her aldermanic experience.

The presence of these seven women in the next Congress will mark another forward step in the progress of woman in politics. Year by year woman is gaining power in that field. One hardly can apply the principle of arithmetical progression to the growth of their number in Congress, as enthusiastic feminists do, but there need be no surprise if that number equals that of the male members before the lapse of the next fifty years.

The LEE SIDE o' L·A·

BY Lee Shippey

WE HEAR so much about the destruction of our forests that most of us do not know systematic work of reforestation is in progress in Los Angeles county, and elsewhere in California.

In 1916 the first Los Angeles county nursery was established in Altadena, and now there are three nurseries, the others being at Tanbark Flats in the west fork of San Dimas Canyon and at Pacoima. From the three, the county forestry department sets out about 250,000 trees annually besides a great many shrubs and flowers in parks. Most of the trees are set out in watersheds in national forest reserves, especially in areas in which forest fires have marred the landscape.

The work is being done so systematically, and the young trees are growing so well, that the immediate future of Los Angeles county's forest playgrounds seems secure.

No Pampered Trees

Trees planted over vast mountain areas could not, of course, be given the same care that is given to trees planted on lawns, and the ordinary hothouse-grown trees would hardly do for reforestation. In the Los Angeles county nurseries the trees are raised from seed under natural conditions, and are irrigated only about four times a year after they are well started. The result is slower but more self-reliant growth. Then the baby trees are set out in the rainy season, and when spring comes nearly all that have not been gnawed by rabbits or deer or other animals are well rooted. Yesterday we walked a mountain trail with a man who had set out several thousand trees, and he showed us hundreds which were growing well. Only half a dozen of those on which he checked up had died, and all those had been attacked by animals. We never would have seen any of them had we not been with the man who planted them, for they looked as if they had grown from wind-blown seed. But he had chosen the spot in which each was planted for some good reason, and it was easy for him to find them.

Our Future Forests

Coulter pines, Digger pines, knobcone pines, big-cone spruce, incense cedars, live oak, cork oak and some eucalyptus are the trees principally grown in the nurseries. The trees are not sold, but many are given to persons living in watersheds who wish to set them about their places.

One On Us

Our recent frank admission that we are Scotch robbed us of an interesting visit the other evening. "We drove by your house last night," a friend writes us, "but the porch light was on—so we judged that you weren't at home."

"The Dusk of Early Eve Last Night"

Commendation is always sweet, and G. C. H. writes in: "The explicit sailors who are not satisfied with northeast and southwest but speak of nor'-nor'east and sou'-sou'west have nothing on The Times reporter who wrote: "In the dusk of early evening last night the Norwegian motorship Leikanger was making its way out to open sea from San Pedro Harbor when the battleship Maryland suddenly loomed in its path."

These Selfish Poets

What ho this fiddle we call life,
With tunes demure or sharp as knife?
Sometimes Satan draws the bow,
And sometimes it may be Pierrot;
But when the notes make simple glee
You'll find it's being tuned by me.
CLAIRE COX (Seattle, Wash.)

Seattle is a bit out of the Lee Side o' L. A., but we print this contrib by way of explanation. It shows why we have such a hard time zipping out simple glee ourself. Darn it, it seems Claire has a patent on it!

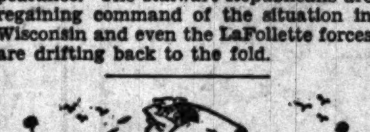
Department Store Thrills

We've always discounted stories of the dangers and excitements of the shop girl's life. But a girl who works in Magnin's tells us this true story:

The other day, at the luncheon hour, one of the girls produced a cocoanut. She showed it to two friends, and instantly they began to yearn for cocoanut. But a cocoanut is a hard nut to crack. Still, any girl used to waiting on the public is used to such, and they were not discouraged. They dug up a pair of scissors and began to wrestle with it. One tried to hold it firmly while another sabered it. The cocoanut skidded and damaged the holder's right eye, but appeared unharmed itself. After the next attack, they had to halt hostilities to bind up fingers. They retired to a telephone booth, for greater privacy, and knocked down the phone. The nut came off with scratches only. A floorwalker came in to see what the excitement was about just as another determined attack was made, and the nut bounced and hit his cocoanut. Then at last it broke but all the milk was spilled, because it shattered into a dozen fragments.

VICTOR IS LOSER

Congressman Victor Berger of Milwaukee, who has represented the Socialists of Wisconsin at Washington for many years, was wrecked in last week's landslide and will retire to private life. He and Representative LaGuardia were the only Socialists in Congress and there doesn't seem to be any need for their appearance. The stalwart Republicans are regaining command of the situation in Wisconsin and even the LaFollette forces are drifting back to the fold.



THE SCHOOL OF HUMILITY

By James J. Montague

Some idiot advises golf as a means of acquiring self-respect

Though never possessed of abundance of pelf
Nor aspiring to power or place,
Time was when I thought pretty well of myself
And could look the whole world in the face.
In my time I had had a few blows to my pride,
But they brought me but little distress,
And I thought I could do anything that I tried
With a fairish degree of success.

But now when I stand with a club in my hand,
And endeavor to wallop a pill,
When the air seven times I have futilely fanned
And the ball sits serenely there still,
My confidence rapidly oozes away,
My driver I nervously clutch
And I feel with a shuddery pang of dismay
That I cannot amount to so much.

A twelve-year-old caddy can take the same stick
With an easy and nonchalant mien,
And carelessly give an old pellet a lick
That knocks it half way to the green.
Complacent old parties of three score and ten
Can plunk every putt in the cup,
A one-legged golfer again and again
Has beaten me eighteen holes up.

For years I have thought that this maddening game
Some day I should learn how to master,
But my every endeavor I own it with shame
Has ended in utter disaster.
No more with firm step and with head held erect
For brilliant achievements I yearn.
Since I got the golf habit the old self-respect
Is gone—and it will not return.

Well Satisfied

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Prohibition was put to the test at the last Presidential election and the people of the United States demonstrated that prohibition has come to stay. It was the prohibition that elected Mr. Hoover. Religion had very little, if anything, to do with it. I have seen many old-time Democrats who voted for Hoover just for that reason. The business men and everybody have learned since we have had prohibition that the country is better off in every respect without the saloon.

I have voted at a good many Presidential elections and I have never felt so well satisfied as I do with the result of this one.

A. J. CLARK.

An Apt Expression

MONROVIA, Nov. 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Among my blessings I count the capacity for appreciating beautiful English. Such being the case I am moved to acknowledge my indebtedness to Kyle D. Palmer for the charm of his articles in the Los Angeles Times, which I have always read with pleasure. He has an incomparable gift for facile expression of what he has to say. Reading his contributions on political matters I observe how he transforms a dry-as-dust subject, that of politics, to something that reads almost like romance. So I want to thank him for the satisfaction I have experienced in the perusal of the topics that he has treated in the campaign just closed. The late B. L. Taylor once wrote in his "Line o' Type" column of the Chicago Tribune that he was about ready to declare an apt expression more important than the merit of the thing expressed. The Times is fortunate in having Mr. Palmer's services, and its readers are to be congratulated.

D. S. MARSH.

The Best Buyers

GARDENA, Nov. 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] A little 3-year-old girl came in just now, and says, "Good morning.' And without hesitation says, "Mama wants a large package of Swans Down flour, a large can of Baker's cocoa, a small bottle of vanilla, a box of Sun-Maid raisins, and a large can of pumpkin, and a lollypop for me; I'll take it now. Charge 'em and bring 'em over right away. 'Bye."

Can you beat it? Nine out of ten of the grown-ups would have to write it down, and none of 'em could place such an order in so short a space of time and not forget something. Now, if it was a man, He'd come in with a "How are ye ole top? Howdja like the way the election went," or "I jist had the ole bus painted and she shows up like a million dollars," and then he'd search in all his pockets for the order, and maybe he'd have it, and maybe he'd left it on the dining-room table and have to go back and get it, or if he did have it, it would take him five times as long to give it as the 3-year-old. Or if it was a woman, she'd come in with a haughty "Good mornin'," and rearrange a curl that had slipped out of place, and smile as cute as she could, and give her dress a little twist and pull her suspenders back up on her shoulders, and stick her foot out and look at it (that is, if she is wearing her new shoes) then lay her vanity case up on the counter and go to diggin' in it for the order, and after she'd took out a peck or so of odds and ends, she'd find it, and then pull her suspenders back in place and give her dress another yank and smile again, and say, "Have ye got any Swans Down flour and how much is it? I'll take a large package anyway, and have ye got any Baker's cocoa? I'll take a large o' that; we use a heap of it, and I wanta small bottle o' vanilla; don't use it very often, a little bottle will do, and a small box o' raisins, jist wanta make two pies, and what kinda punkin do ye carry, that'll be all right, I've used it before, and I'd like very much to have ye deliver 'em right away. I'm goin' uptown shopping and won't be back till late this afternoon, but I left the back door unhooked and you can put 'em on the drainboard, if you can find room, I left the dishes in the sink, you better put 'em on the dinin' table. I guess there's room on it, and be shore to hook the door after ye, that darn dog o' Smith's is liable to git in if ye don't. You'll send 'em right away, won'tcha, Mr. Taylor. Gee, it's gittin' late, I gotta step on 'er. How does our car look to ye? We jist had 'er painted and we've got new tires all around. You can charge the groceries to us, lil' short jist now. S'long. 'N lissen, Mr. Taylor, you better put in a 10-cent can o' sardines and a nickel's worth o' crackers, I almost forgot hubby's lunch. S'long. We jist had 'er overhauled ,too, don't she run purty? S'long." Yes, the kiddies now-a-days are sure Johnnie on the spot, they make us old models feel plumb dumb.

J. A. TAYLOR.

SUCH IS EGOTISM

H. T. Webster, the cartoonist, with nothing better to do, sent twenty telegrams to as many acquaintances selected at random. Each message contained the one word, "Congratulations." So far as Webster knew not one of the twenty had done anything in particular to be congratulated on. But every one of them had done something he regarded as worthy of a congratulatory telegram and wrote Webster a letter of thanks.

WET WEATHER

BY BAILEY MILLARD

Perhaps there are better places from which to view a rainstorm than my hill, but I do not know of them. Any hill will do, but somehow I prefer mine, looking down on the trees, gardens and scattered roofs of the extreme northeastern part of Los Angeles.

People living on plains or low levels never get the full picture of rain. To them it seems to descend as from a dripping sieve. But from a high place one gets a side view with proper perspective. The rain is seen in magnificent sparkling columns, blown and swirled by the wind, and these columns always are marching, marching, in beautifully irregular course, as vagrant and whimsical as the wind itself.

A house set on a high hill gets the full force of a storm. If you live there you come in for a lot of ill-deserved pity, because of this. People down below can't realize the joy of it. As for me, up there in the wild, wet weather, all the savage in my nature—and there's plenty of it—gloats and exults. I have no patience with the poet who makes clouds and rain stand for grief and dolour. The idea that "into each life some rain must fall" makes no appeal to me. No California poet would employ such a metaphor. Rain means joy to us of the Golden State.

There is an inspirational majesty in wild, wet weather. You get a real uplift from the tossing of the trees as they sway together, the dash of the rain and the measureless gray that is over it all.

Emerson speaks of "the tumultuous privacy of storm." It affords a heavenly isolation to those whom the world has been pecking and pawing. Best of all, in the enjoyment of what timid people know as "foul weather," is the time when you lie snugly under the blankets while the night wind is raging and the rain is beating down upon your roof. The man who wrote "Rain on the Roof" was no great poet, but he had a real relish of life.

SLEEP

By The Foothill Philosopher

"Tell me where I am when I am asleep and I will believe in the soul and its immortality," said a brother to me the other day.

If this brother waits for a full explanation of the phenomena of sleep he may wait a long time for the skylark of faith to begin singing in his heart. For the sake of my peace of mind, I cannot afford to wait so long.

However, I am convinced of one thing (which I do not attempt to prove) and that is that I am no less myself when I am asleep than when I am awake. Certainly I do not go out of existence when I sleep, or I could not come back and say "Now I am awake.'"

I believe that I am much more "of me" when asleep than when awake. The fact that I do not remember, when I awake, where I was or what I did or thought or felt when sleeping is no more strange than that I do not remember, when asleep, the experiences of my waking life. Nor does it prove that I was not fully conscious, on another plane, during my sleeping time.

Man would not so gladly resign himself to sleep if he believed that in sleep he ceased to exist. Neither would he meet the white angel of death, with a smile on his face, if he believed in the possibility of the annihilation of that which he knows as himself.

The body, composed of the elements, is incapable of sensation or thought. Whatever the soul is, it is that which feels, thinks and knows. If the soul be the reality of today, it was real yesterday and will be the reality of tomorrow and of all eternity. Point me the boundaries of infinity and eternity and I will believe that the soul can be lost or destroyed. If I exist at all in my waking hours, I could not cease to exist in sleep. That which calls itself "I" while in the body could not lose itself in a nonexistent "nowhere" after the body's dissolution.

Poets from time immemorial have apotheosized sleep. And in the great sleep, "What dreams may come!" It is in that sleep that all men hope for the beginning of a life more radiant than mortal mind can dream. From the womb of darkness is born the light, from the depths of the unseen emerges the manifested universe, out of the great white silence comes all music, color and form. How easy it is to believe that in the beautiful sleep which succeeds "life's fitful fever" man may discover himself to be the dreamer of all dreams, even of the dream of mortal life, and that from the glory of that everlasting Tomorrow his smile shall come to brighten every twilight of time!

Collected Old Clocks

A clock made by Thomas Tompion, the father of English watchmaking, has just been acquired by the trustees of the British Museum. It was made to the order of Sir Jonas Moore, for John Flamsteed, the first English astronomer royal, and a close friend of Sir Isaac Newton, whom he aided in many of his experiments. The clock is so divided that the twelve hours marked on the dial actually represent twenty-four.

Tompion was clockmaker to Charles II, and William III, and specimens of his art are eagerly sought for by collectors. Several of the masterpieces in the world-famous Wetherfield collection of clocks, recently sold in London for $30,000, were made by Tompion. Mr. D. E. F. Wetherfield, who was 83 when he died, spent the last thirty years of life in collecting picked specimens of the work of all the great English clockmakers. All the 222 clocks were kept in a house of moderate size in Southeast London.

Wildcats to Tangle With Notre Dame

TUCSON (Ariz.) Nov. 14. (AP)—The University of Arizona will mingle with Notre Dame the 27th-29th inst., when Rockne's eleven rests and practices here during a layover en route to the Coast where they are to meet the Trojans. A Notre Dame alumni special carrying 200 rooters will also stop here the 28th inst. Knute Rockne and his squad of fifty grid warriors will arrive in Tucson the evening of the 27th and leave for the coast city the 29th inst.

Squad of 35 Cougars En Route Here for Game

BY CRAVEN DYER

Marshall Duffield, Santa Monica's contribution to the Trojan varsity, will hold down the quarterback position when Howard Jones sends his athletes against Washington State at the Coliseum Saturday afternoon.

HOWARD JONES.

With Don Williams still confined to the hospital it is extremely unlikely that he will be of much use this week-end. Unless he shows sudden improvement, "Dynamic Don" will not get into a suit until tomorrow, which means that the ball-carrying burden falls on the shoulders of Duffield and Russ Saunders.

SAUNDERS READY

Jones has been running Saunders at quarterback along with Duffield, but prefers to start "Marsh" in order to avoid unnecessary changes. If Duffield fails to dent the Cougar line, Saunders will be ready to take charge of the Jones machine, and right here it might be said that Russ will probably do pretty well at the quarterback berth.

Williams is the original hard-luck guy of the Trojans. Last year it was an injury in the Washington State game that laid him low. Now he can't play against the Cougars, whom he helped thump, 28 to 0, last

TROJAN GOAL KICKERS SHOW BETTER RECORD THAN IRISH IN STANDINGS FOR SEASON

BY RALPH HUSTON

If the outcome of the Trojan-Notre Dame game depends on the successful completion of the point-after-touchdown, don't be shocked if the home talent pulls out with a victory. The two games between the teams played to date have been determined by that extra point, and on each occasion the Irish were successful, and the Trojans were not.

DON WILLIAMS.

Two years ago they battled in the Coliseum, and the Irish won, 13-12. Last year it was 7-6 at Chicago. Give the Irish .667 on their record and the Trojans .000 for theirs, as both teams scored three touchdowns, but the Irish kicked two goals.

BETTER RECORD

But to date this season, the Trojan record is considerably better than that of the Irish in the matter of points after touchdown. The Thundering Herd has registered twenty-eight touchdowns, no less, and on fourteen separate and distinct occasions, has gotten the extra digit by one means or another, sometimes placekicks, sometimes dropkicks and sometimes passes.

Notre Dame in seven games has scored twelve touchdowns, and has kicked but four goals. Give the Trojans a .500 average, and the Irish .333.

Against Loyola of New Orleans, Notre Dame scored twice and missed both goals. Against Wisconsin they scored once and missed. The lone touchdown against the Navy was converted, and they failed to score against Georgia Tech. Two chances out of five were successful against Drake, the lone try for point against Penn was good, but neither attempt worked against the Army.

For the Trojan record, they made four out of six against the Utah Aggies, one out of three in the Oregon State, St. Mary's and Occidental games, were held scoreless by California, made the one try good in the Stanford game, and against Arizona completed six out of twelve. In every game they have scored, the Trojans have kicked at

ROCKNE REFUSES TO PICK WINNER OF TECH CLASH; IRISH OUT FOR REVENGE

BY WALTER TRUMBULL
(Copyright, 1928, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—In talking to Knute Rockne at South Bend this morning, I asked him if he expected Notre Dame to beat Saturday's visitors from Carnegie Tech.

Mr. Rockne didn't act as if he thought that this was an exceedingly bright question. At least, he answered it by and large, or cautiously, as it were. he said:

"We shall certainly do our best to beat them, but Carnegie is a good team. I will say, however, that our boys are in good shape."

That wasn't so illuminating. It would have been possible to make all those statements as facts without consulting any coach. Notre Dame sure will do its prettiest to beat Carnegie and, as most of you know, there's a reason.

It was in 1926 that Notre Dame had been going over opposing teams like a rolling pin over chunks of dough. Finally, came the game scheduled with Carnegie at Pittsburgh. This, as I remember, was to be just a bit of practice for a game on the Coast. So lightly was it regarded that Knute Rockne left the squad in charge of Anderson and his other assistants and attended, in company with Tad Jones, the Army-Navy game on the Chicago lake front.

The battle between the service teams was thrilling, but that wasn't the only thrill Rockne got that day. As the dark shadows were falling a telegraph operator handed him a message. Mr. Rockne read it, and fell off his seat in the west press box. It was from Anderson and said in substance:

"We have met the enemy and we are theirs."

Carnegie the set-up had sat down on Notre Dame.

On Saturday, Carnegie comes to

SANTA ANA IN UPROAR OVER FORFEITURE OF TWO GAMES

GLENDALE, Nov. 14.—Definite orders were issued today that the Santa Ana High School must forfeit all football games in which Lloyd Nuzum participated, the announcement coming from John Alman, president of the Coast League as principal of the South Pasadena High School. By playing Nuzum Alman declared, Santa Ana has violated the order of the California Interscholastic Federation playing Nuzum ineligible and the school had also violated the order of the Coast League that it should not use him when to do so would be contrary to the rule that says that "any student ineligible to represent the school on an athletic team during the first half of a semester shall be ineligible during the second half of the semester."

Tex Alman, Santa Ana coach, is said by Alman to have declared early in the season that he would use Nuzum regardless of any rulings against him, and Alman states that he notified the principal of the Santa Ana High School yesterday that all games in which Nuzum took part will be forfeited and given to the school's opponents.

Officials on Santa Ana High School stated today that Nuzum's father had moved to that city on October 4, but it is pointed out that the Orange county officials asked for a ruling from the California Interscholastic Federation as late as last week, on Nuzum's case.

Santa Ana now threatens to withdraw from the federation and from the Coast League, if the ban on Nuzum is made to stick, and Santa Ana folks as a whole are taking sides with Nuzum and claiming that he has

OLYMPICS MAY PLAY HERE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14. (AP)—Percy P. Locey, Olympic Club football coach, said here today that negotiations were under way for a post-season game between the Olympics and the undefeated University of Detroit team, but that a scheduled game in Honolulu would make impossible a meeting December 8 as announced in Detroit today. The Olympics play in Honolulu December 1. If negotiations end in agreement a game will be played at the Coliseum at Los Angeles December 22, Locey asserted. Previous reports fixed the University of California stadium at Berkeley as the scene of the game.

BULLDOGS FACE TIGER ELEVEN

Last Year's Defeats Likely to be Avenged

Iowa Engages Wisconsin in Big Ten Struggle

Tilt Will Decide Laurels in Western Conference

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. (AP)—The dope would indicate that those who got slapped a year ago will do a little slapping on their own hook Saturday.

Yale's beatings by Army and Maryland have pushed Princeton into the favored position as Tiger and Bulldog prepare for their fifty-second clash at Princeton. Princeton's record is scarcely impressive, marred as it is by ties with Virginia and Ohio State, but at least the Tigers have avoided defeat. Last year Yale beat Princeton, 14-6.

INDIANS WEAK

Cornell has the memory of a 53-7 beating to take into its coming battle with Dartmouth and the odds are no worse than even money that Gil Dobie's squad can give the Indians their fourth successive defeat.

Williams, now leading in the race for the "Little Three" title, is the experts' choice to down Amherst and revenge a one-point defeat of last year. Lafayette is conceded at least an even chance of beating Penn State which trounced the Leopards, 40 to 6, in 1927. Nebraska's undefeated Cornhuskers will remember their 21-13 defeat at Pittsburgh last season when they take the field at Lincoln against the Panthers.

Georgetown, beaten for the first time by the smart and tricky Carnegie Tech eleven, has small hope of repeating the 25-0 victory scored over West Virginia, Bucknell will be favored to turn the tables on Washington and Jefferson, which won, 19-3 last year, and Wesleyan should have little trouble taking Bowdoin into camp a year after suffering a 30-12 defeat.

Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame did not meet last year, but Knute Rockne can tell his Hoosiers about a certain November afternoon in Pittsburgh two years ago when the Tartans trampled an unbeaten Rockne team into defeat, 19-0. Carnegie will be staking the undefeated record at Cartier Field, South Bend, this Saturday.

MAY REPEAT

On the other hand, Pennsylvania and Harvard are favored to repeat the victories they scored over Columbia and Holy Cross, respectively, in 1927. Colgate and Syracuse, renewing an ancient feud at Syracuse, have a 13-13 tie to play off. Navy, Brown and Boston College will be rather more than surprised if they don't account for Loyola of Maryland, New Hampshire and Canisius, respectively. The Rutgers-Lehigh battle looms as an extremely evenly contested struggle, as does that between Grove City and Villanova, both undefeated but tied.

In view of Missouri's unimpressive record in the Missouri Valley this season, New York University, generally conceded to be one of the best teams in the East, will be a decided favorite in this battle at the Yankee Stadium, but Fordham will be an equally decided underdog against undefeated Detroit. Army should have a romp against Carleton.

AERIAL ATTACKS TO BE FEATURED

BY ORLO L. ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 14. (AP)—The Western Conference gridiron atmosphere is apt to be strewn with flying footballs Saturday, but forward passes should do much to clarify the final 1928 standings.

Doubtless Wisconsin, deadlocked with Iowa for the Big Ten leadership, will look to the air for victory over Iowa at Iowa City. The Iowans are not adverse to passing if their running attack fails.

"Gloomy Glenn" Thistlethwaite, with a well-perfected overhead game, is asking for a dry field when he sends his light, speedy backs against the powerful Iowa forward wall. While depending largely on off-tackle smashes and end runs by McLain and Glassgow, the Hawkeyes are far from weak in the passing game. McLain, the Cherokee Indian, is equally adept at passing as he is at punting and carrying the ball. Iowa also has two reliable ends in Moore and Reedquist to receive McLain's heaves.

With an aerial game that has menaced every team met this year, Northwestern is expected to flip passes with the same degree of accuracy when the Wildcats meet Indiana at Bloomington. A passing-machine built around Capt. Walt Holmer has completed better than 50 per cent of its attempts.

Indiana, weak on the overhead game, will match Northwestern's varied attack with a running attack centered around one of the best set of backs in the conference. Offensive Capt. Chuck Bennett will be back in the line-up as will defensive Capt. Matthew.

Given only an outside chance of defeating Illinois, the Chicago Maroons are going about the task of building a passing game that will baffle the Illini defense.

Illinois has shown itself noticeably weak against passes all season.

ILLINI BETTER

For the first time this season Coach Robert Zuppke is pleased with the Illinois eleven. The Illini mentor all season has decried the fact that his 1928 eleven was not the team of 1927 despite the many veterans in the line-up. This week, however, Zuppke says he will throw a much-improved team against Chicago.

Four of the Big Ten teams, Ohio State, Purdue, Michigan and Minnesota, will entertain nonconference opponents.

Minnesota tangles with the Haskell Indians; Michigan renews its feud with Michigan State; Purdue takes on Wabash, while Ohio State rests up for Illinois with Muskingum.

BRUIN REGULARS TO APPEAR IN LA VERNE GAME SATURDAY

According to all dope available on the University of California at Los Angeles football game with La Verne College Saturday at Moore Field, the Bruins will feast royally on the meat of the La Verne Leopards. All indications point to a top-heavy score in Saturday's grid battle with the U.C.L.A. team sitting firmly atop the heap.

With only one man from the Bruin varsity slated to be out of the starting line-up Saturday, Coach Bill Spalding intends to open up the game with all of the first-string men, Ed Tandy being replaced by Don Jacobson. Tandy was generally upset and knocked about in the Washington State game last week, and he is being given a rest until the Oregon game on Thanksgiving. In the U.C.L.A. backfield, Capt. Joe Fleming will start at right half; Bert La Brucherie, star of the Pomona game a few weeks ago, at left half; Simpson, at the signal-calling position, and Earl Fields at fullback. Spaulding will probably give every one of his men a workout in the La Verne encounter, from Buddy Forster, quarterback flash, down to the lowliest "goof."

Because of the heavy rain yesterday, Moore Field was in no condition for the Bruins to practice on, so the team went through the paces on a sandy field next to the swimming pool on the U.C.L.A. campus. Fundamentals drill, scrimmaging, and the perfection of a defense against University of Oregon plays were the order of the day, since Spaulding is pointing his men for the Thanksgiving encounter with the Wedfooters and intends to take the La Verne pigskinners in his stride.

Ex-Lion Star on Club Team

Addition to the L. A. Town Club backfield of George Green, former Penn State fullback, who last year was named on the second All-American, was announced last night by Coach Bill (Lone Star) Dietz, who is strengthening his team preparatory to meeting the United States Fleet Base eleven from San Pedro at Wrigley Field next Sunday.

Greene's presence in the line-up will bolster an already strong backfield, which ripped through the Firemen last week, 14 to 0. Leo Fielding, former Carlisle star, was the big noise of last Sunday's clash, but Dietz says the Indian flash will have to step to outshine Greene.

The navy team is anxious to knock into a cocked hat the championship aspirations of the undefeated Town Club eleven, and is bringing a strong team to Wrigley Field for the game. More than 1000 uniformed sailors will be on hand Sunday to support their eleven.

Bear Seconds Meet Nevada

BERKELEY (Cal.) Nov. 14. (AP)—California's second-string football team will oppose the University of Nevada eleven here Saturday. This was revealed by Coach "Nibs" Price today in making known the starting line-up of the contest.

Playing behind the second-string line, the backfield will find Breakenridge at quarter; Ewing, the fastest man on the team, and Garrity at halves, and Gill at fullback.

Campus opinion today had it that Coach Price will take his first-string players down to Stanford University to watch the Cards tackle the Washington Huskies. Andy Smith did this in 1923, and the Nevada team held the Bear eleven, then in its "wonder team" days, to a scoreless tie.

OUTBOARDS TO RACE AT SANTA BARBARA

SANTA BARBARA, Nov. 14.—More than a score of the fastest outboard motorboats in Southern California will take part in the winter regatta of the Santa Barbara Outboard Motor Club here next Sunday.

Miss Loretta Turnbull, 17-year-old Monrovia lass, will enter four of her craft; Al Thompson will have his Black Maria III here, Commodore O. K. Hunsacker of the Southern California Association, A. Ashbridge and other race drivers from Long Beach, San Diego, Newport Harbor, Elsinore and Balboa will compete.

Among the Santa Barbara drivers who will compete are H. M. Hazard, who last year set a Coast record for open-water racing by driving from Santa Barbara to Redondo Beach in 4h. 55m in an outboard motorboat.

BRUIN SHARPSHOOTERS READY FOR NATIONALS

Practicing for intercollegiate rifle shooting meets to be held this winter, the rifle team at the University of California at Los Angeles is preparing to offer stiff competition, several members having turned in exceptionally high scores in practice shooting. Leading the Bruin riflemen, Dan Minock, also of the U.C.L.A. varsity wrestling team, has registered a score of 384 out of a possible 400 points, being closely followed by Ray Graham with a score of 382. Other high scores recorded are Atherton, 378; Roberts, 378; Fritz, 373; Jamontz, 372; Raybold, 371; Warner, 366; Lyon, 365, and Holl, 365.

Although no rifle meets have been scheduled for the U.C.L.A. team, Harry Rainy, recently elected manager of the Bruin riflemen, plans to schedule some in the near future.

HOUSE AND RAMOS TO MINGLE TONIGHT

Heading an exceptionally promising card at the Pasadena arena tonight will be a ten-round bout between Mack House, the "California Bear," and first-round kayo specialist, and Steve Ramos, a wise and sturdy veteran of the ring who is of the type likely to cause House plenty of trouble.

In the four-round semifinal, Jack Perry and Frank Pitrofski, a couple of middleweights, will mix. Other bouts follow:

EASTERN ICE HOCKEY SEASON ON TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The ten teams of the national professional hockey circuit will open their winter season tomorrow. Forty-four games for the ten teams are scheduled. Opening games will be played in New York, Philadelphia and Detroit, as well as above the Dominion border.

IRA DERN SIGNS TO MEET BILLY SHAW AT OLYMPIC

A special event that holds promise of supplying as much action while it lasts as the finish championship bout between Ed "Strangler" Lewis, mat king, and Paul Jones, popular lanky Texan, at the Olympic Wednesday night, was scheduled yesterday by Promoter Lou Daro when he signed Ira Dern, the Mormon flash, to meet Billy Shaw, the fiery red-headed youngster.

Both Dern and Shaw are fast and spectacular grapplers. In his last two starts here, Shaw kept going at top speed every second he was in the ring, and he gave the fans, as well as his opponents, all of the action either craved. Dern, former light heavyweight champion of the world, is the same type of grappler. He looked very clever and impressive in his former matches here. Each hopes to get more bouts here by a victory in this battle.

Despite the heavy rain yesterday, Lewis, who had been granted his request for an additional week in which to prepare for this match by the State Athletic Commissioner here, followed his training schedule closely, it was reported. He is working hard to take off some weight before he clashes with Jones, who is said to be in near-perfect condition. The trainers who have worked with the Texan in nearly all of his bouts here declared yesterday Jones is in for his biggest mat season. He is in as good shape now as he was when at his peak last year and defeated Nick Lutze, Jim Londos and John Pesek, the famous "Nebraska tigerman," among others.

The opening bout on this card will bring together Kazuo Yoshimi, a 150-pound jiu-jitsu expert, who recently arrived here from Japan, and Leo Ghilarducci, a young 220-pound Italian headlock exponent. These two will wrestle with the jackets.

Soccer Teams in Twin Bill

California cup competition will occupy the spotlight Sunday afternoon at Loyola Field when the Los Angeles Soccer League stages a double bill. In the first game on the program the Hollywood club meets the Richfield Oilers. Hollywood is now the league leader in the local soccer loop with six victories and no defeats. The second game on the card brings the Pasadena Athletic and Country Club team and the Sons of St. George together. The Sons should cop this battle if the advance dope is anywhere near right.

The games will be staged at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. The Hollywood-Richfield battle will be staged first and the Pasadena-Sons game on the latter part of the bill. Hollywood is eager to win over the Oilers as they are looking to get into the semifinal round of the cup play. While the Richfield team has not shown anything this season they intend to throw an entirely new outfit on the field in an effort to upset the Film City team Sunday.

Jaysees Clash in Final Round

Southern California junior colleges meet in the final round of conference play Saturday, when Long Beach meets Pasadena at the Rose Bowl in the feature game of the Western Division. Compton plays host to Glendale, in what should be a walk-away for Compton. Santa Ana and Fullerton encounter in a grudge scrap at Fullerton. In the eastern section, it appears that Chaffey has already copped the bunting, defeating Riverside, the most dangerous opponents, 28-7. However, San Bernardino still remains in the running.

JACK BRITTON WINS BATTLE WITH YOUTH

BOSTON, Nov. 14. (AP)—Jack Britton, 43 years of age, former world's welterweight champion, received an ovation here tonight when he decisively outpointed Larry Brignolia, rugged Cambridge youth, in ten rounds. Britton, who showed all his old-time ring skill except for fast footwork, took every round by a wide margin.

Brignola was seldom able to hit the old master. The youngster tried vainly to rush through Britton's guard and connect with a hook. In the third round Brignola caught Jack with a hard right hook and cut his lip, the force of the blow loosened some of Britton's bridge work and a second blow knocked a false tooth out of his mouth. Britton, anxious to recover the tooth, backed his youthful opponent to the ropes, where he held him helpless and shouted to the referee to pick up his tooth. Only when it was done did he release the amazed Brignola.

ARMY GRIDDERS WANT TILT WITH NAVY TEAM

A challenge for a holiday football game between the fleet team station at San Pedro and the West Coast Army eleven was received yesterday from San Francisco by Hap O'Connor, representative of the sailor outfit. The Army players, who performed before 55,000 people last Saturday in the Bay City, are eager to play the fleet team, the telegram indicated. It was signed by Capt. Eastwood, manager of the Army team. The Navy team at the present time is made up of officers and ex-members of Annapolis squads. The Army would like to play the Navy team in the Coliseum if it could be arranged.

KING TUT AND CELLO TO TANGLE UP AGAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 14. (AP)—King Tut of Minneapolis and Tommy Cello of San Francisco will engage in a ten-round return fight here next Tuesday night.

They met here last night but the referee stopped the bout in the fifth round because both boxers stalled. Their purses were held up by the Minnesota Boxing Commission.

The commission today ordered the return engagement and if it is satisfactory Tut and Cello will receive their money.

MARK KOENIG WEDS

RED BLUFF (Cal.) Nov. 14. (AP)—Dr. Ivan Tremaine announced here today that his daughter, Miss Katherine Tremaine, and Mark Koenig, shortstop for the New York Yankees, had been married in Reno, Nev., last Monday.

Pairings Made for Open Golf

PORTLAND, Nov. 14. (AP)—Pairings for eighty-four golfers who have entered the Oregon $5000 open tournament, which starts on the Waverley Country Club course here tomorrow morning, were drawn today, with practically every professional title-holder of note in the country represented. The line-up does not include, however, Leo Diegel, National Professional Golf Association champion. Heading the list of notables are Walter Hagen, British open champion, and Johnny Farrell, United States open king.

Other entrants are Tommy Armour, former national open champion, and present Oregon open title-holder; Harry Cooper, the Espinosa brothers, Al and Abe; Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo.; John Golden, Paterson, N. J.

The big threat from the south is Ed Dudley, young pro of Los Angeles, who already has won his spurs in open competition.

Sellman Back on Card Team

STANFORD UNIVERSITY (Cal.) Nov. 14. (AP)—The Stanford varsity gridders went back to fundamentals today, and the entire squad had a strenuous session with the tackling dummy and the bucking machine.

Tiny Sellman, tackle, who was suffering from a touch of the flu, was discharged from the hospital today and appeared at practice. He will probably start Saturday in the game with Washington.

Previous to the tackling drill, Coach "Pop" Warner has the teams running signals with Lewis at quarter and Smalling at fullback on the first team. Whether this change is permanent or not, Warner would not indicate.

REDLANDS FANS GET FULL FOOTBALL MENU

REDLANDS, Nov. 14.—Redlands is going to have a full menu of football for this week. Redlands High School plays Pomona High School in the final Citrus Belt League game on Friday. If Redlands can win the game then Redlands, San Bernardino and Pomona will all be tied for league honors. On Saturday the University of Redlands annual home-coming is to be played with two football games. The Bulldogs are to play Occidental and the freshmen teams are to play a preliminary game starting at 12:30. Occidental will be in no amiable mood after the game against Caltech and will come here top-heavy favorites, determined no doubt to run up as big a score as possible and make the Bulldogs suffer for what the Engineers did.

JONES VICTORIOUS IN NATIONAL SQUASH PLAY

Dan Jones of the Hollywood Athletic Club defending his national handball squash title last night at the Circle H Club defeated Bob Ackley of the L.A.A.C. Mercuries, 21-13, 21-20, in the second round of play. The results:

ARCHIE BELL LOSES ON FOUL TO SHAW

DETROIT, Nov. 14. (AP)—Archie Bell, New York bantamweight, lost on a foul to Billy Shaw, Detroit, in the eighth round of their ten-round bout here tonight. Bell was leading by a wide margin when a low blow dropped Shaw. It was necessary to carry the Detroit boxer to his dressing-room.

Jim O'Brien, Bridgeport, Ct., won the referee's decision over Chuck Minnella, Linton (Ind.) welterweight, in an eight-round bout.

LA SALLE VICTOR IN RING GO AT HARBOR

Bobby La Salle walked off with the decision in the ten-round main event with Jesse Holson at the Wilmington A.C. last night. Billy Blake beat Frankie Burs via the decision route in the six-round semifinal. Sammy Jackson stopped Bobby Washington in the fourth round of the special. Pansy Pallope won from Joe Hernandez. Joe Valarde beat El Cabrabro.

VALDEZ BEATS GIBBS IN OCEAN PARK RING

Jack Valdes won an eight-round decision over Jack Gibbs last night in the main event at Ocean Park. They are middleweights. In the semi-wind-up George Savage showed a knockout punch winning from Tiger Napoleon on a technical kayoe in the second round.

In the six-round special event Joe Barola took the nod over Bobby Hayden while in the two four-rounders Phil Baker defeated Raymond Montoya and Augustine Paranaque won from Bobby Payne.

SEATTLE TO HAVE BETTER BALL CLUB

SEATTLE, Nov. 14. (AP)—The Seattle Indians will have a 50 per cent better team next year than last season, Harry A. Williams, president of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, declared today. Williams predicted that Manager Middleton, who had a squad of recruits last season, would have the rough spots ironed out next spring.

Williams, who arrived in Seattle last night from the league meeting in Portland, will leave for Portland, and Los Angeles, today. He expects to arrive in Los Angeles Saturday morning.

Guest Sets New Record at Lakeside

Charley Guest hung up a couple of new records at Lakeside Monday, when he made an eagle 3 on the long thirteenth hole, better known as the "river" hole. Charley's 3 was the first registered on the hole since its opening last spring. Guest also had a 69 for a course record. He was playing with John T. Murray, Vivian Oakland and Mrs. Scoop Conlon. Charley managed to keep his accomplishment a secret until yesterday day.

tem or the 1928 system, i.e., one point to each match?

(7.) State on what day of the week you prefer to play your matches.

(8.) In your opinion how long should a member belong to a club before becoming eligible to play on a team; three months, six months or twelve months.

Last year's team matches, which resulted in a championship for the Los Angeles Country Club, were most successful, but Cline hopes to have a greater season than ever, which accounts for the early start.

The team matches chairman is in favor of large teams, but the majority of club answers will determine the number of men to go on a team. Cline prefers to maintain the spirit of goodfellowship and sociability which prevailed last year rather than make the matches more of a competative proposition.

Cline is anxious to get the questionnaires back as soon as possible, as a great mass of detail must be worked out in order to arrange schedules, groups, etc.

TROJANS AND BRUINS MEET

necessary evil in the task of putting a good football team on the field. The Trojan-Bruin game would be a natural right off the bat, despite the fact that the Trojans would be heavy favorites to win.

However, Spaulding has some corking material on this year's fresh team and it is argued that the Bruins might as well begin meeting the Trojans now as later, particularly when the rivalry is already there and a good gate seems a cinch.

It is also pointed out that Occidental emerged on the short end of a 19-to-0 count when sent against the Trojans and the Bruins feel that with a little luck they can do just as well as their former brothers of the Southern Conference.

LUCKY COAST LEAGUE

THE recent deadlock at Portland may not have pleased some of the Coast League baseball moguls, but it does strike a casual observer that the boys might have done a lot worse by themselves.

Keeping Harry Williams on the job as president even if the owners failed to give him the vote of confidence he was entitled to won't hurt the league one bit.

And at that I am not so sure the connivers who were so opposed to Bill McCarthy didn't put over their slate—just as they intended to all along.

In other words, I have a hunch the ballots of Hollywood, Oakland, Seattle and Portland that were returned time after time for Judge McCredie were simply a subterfuge.

Some of the conniving four didn't consider the judge a potent candidate before the election because of his age and declining health, and it looks as if they just made a show of electing somebody else, knowing all the time a deadlock would keep the man on the job under whom the league has had its greatest prosperity.

Bill McCarthy didn't have a chance with the conniving four—and never will. They call him a gangster, one who tracks only with his friends, and Lane of Hollywood, Ewing of Oakland, Klepper of Seattle, and Turner of Portland couldn't see him for dust. They opposed him too bitterly when he was president ever to expect any favors, and they don't propose to take a chance.

So Harry Williams sticks on the job, and as near as I can find out the only fault the boys can find with him is that he has been too meticulous on the job. Some of them crave a fire-eater.

DEMPSEY MAY REPENT

TEX RICKARD seems to have started his ballyhoo early enough for next summer's heavyweight campaign.

He has been conferring with the old Manassa Mauler again, and it will occasion no surprise if with Gene Tunney on the retired list Dempsey decides to make another comeback.

If for no other reason than that he craves action.

Dempsey never was a lollypop. He doesn't like to be idle. He wants to be up and doing.

The man is a bundle of nerves and energy. He has to let off steam some way, and it must take some form of physical expression.

He was interested in the stage until his play flopped and he became convinced he was not an actor.

It is only natural that he should turn again to the only channel in which he knows he has been a success.

It's hard to convince any fighter he's not what he used to be, particularly a man that has the sock of a mule.

Tunney probably has convinced Dempsey, but there's nobody else in the heavyweight ranks within miles of Tunney as a fighter. Dempsey knows that, and that's why he may listen to the fascinating urge of the ring and Tex Rickard's dollars again.

NEEDS THE SOCK

ARMAND EMANUEL has put on over ten pounds since he fought Matt Adgie here last April, but the San Francisco barrister still seems to lack that fighting characteristic expected of heavyweights—the devastating sock.

However, the boy is young in ring experience as a professional, and too much should not be expected of him. Heavyweights are the slowest of the lot to arrive, and it took the estimable Mr. Tunney several years to climb to the top.

When Dempsey, the champion, knocked out Georges Carpentier in four rounds in 1921 Tunney was just a punk preliminary fighter on the same card.

Five years later Tunney beat Dempsey in a rain-soaked ring at Philadelphia and won the title.

It was a long route for Tunney, and Emanuel has only traveled about two years along the professional trail. He can certainly box—and he may acquire the sock.

HEENEY BATTLE HERE PROPOSED

—the most he ever tipped for a bout.

Wadhams is also considering Neil Clisby, Mack House and Ernie Owens as candidates for an opponent for Heeney in case the New Zealander doesn't accept Emanuel.

Jack Willis did his first training here yesterday for his ten-round bout with Joe Anderson which is slated next Tuesday night for the Olympic.

Anderson is expected to check in today from the East. His manager, Jimmy Dougherty, will arrive here the last of the week from Philadelphia to take charge of the Kentuckian.

Information from Dougherty states that Anderson was outweighed fourteen pounds by Tuffy Griffiths in Detroit the other night when he lost on a technical knockout due to an eye injury. Griffiths scaled 174 and Anderson 160.

Matchmaker Wadhams also received word that Kid Francis, bantamweight champion of Europe, would be here Saturday noon. Francis boxes Young Nationalista the 27th inst.

The supporting card for Anderson and Willis shows Jackie Mandell and Huerta Evans in the semifinal. Bobby Fernandez and Sailor Kosky box the special. The two fours are Tony Portilla vs. Joe Noto and Teddy Palacios vs. Willie Fausto.

PANTHERS OFF FOR LINCOLN

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14. (AP)—The Golden Panthers of the University of Pittsburgh started west tonight to invade the realm of the Big Six, playing Nebraska at Lincoln on Saturday.

IRISH READY FOR TECH TILT

South Bend unbeaten and untied. Notre Dame has waited years—two of them—for this chance. Rockne has lost two games this season and that always has been his limit. He kept to the assertion today that those two defeats were chargeable largely to the fact that he didn't have a fullback. He has a couple of fullbacks now. One of them did pretty well in the Army game. Andy Collins is ready to start against Carnegie.

PRAISES MILLER

Rockne thinks highly of his captain and tackle, Miller. He believes that there are few more useful players in the pastime. Miller, by the way, is the only lineman Notre Dame loses next year, although the regular backfield will graduate. But Rockne always has a backfield growing up.

In spite of Carnegie's brilliant record the belief is prevalent that the team is going to have a tough job on its hands when it faces Notre Dame. If there is one team the fighting Irish would like to massacre that team is Carnegie. They will do the rest.

Rockne appears to have a lot of confidence in Notre Dame's defense. He pointed out to me that Georgia Tech had made only one first down and Wisconsin only two, while the first eleven was in the game. There is never much the matter with Notre Dame's attack, and the fullbacks now on hand will add their bit to the general offensive. Give the fighting Irish the ball and they generally take it somewhere.

If you doubt that, ask the Army.

been eligible all along, even though Nuzum's family moved to Santa Ana in October, as claimed. That would not make him eligible to play, as he was ineligible when he participated in the game against Long Beach early in the season, it is asserted.

SCHWEIZER BACK IN OCCIDENTAL LINE-UP

Jack Schweizer, demon Occidental quarterback and star distance punter, has somewhat recovered from injuries to his shoulder received in the Trojan Tiger fracas some weeks ago. The diminutive signal barker reported for practice yesterday afternoon with his team mates at Patterson Field. Though he ran through scrimmage drill, and kicked the pigskin about in usual fashion, Schweizer was unable to throw any passes through the air. Coach Eddie Kienholz states that his star gridman will be ready for service for the Pomona game on Thanksgiving Day.

season. The kick in the back last fall kept him out of the Notre Dame game in Chicago.

If Saunders has to replace Duffield at quarterback, Marger Apsit will be the new face in the Trojan backfield, Harry Edelson going from inside halfback to fullback and Apsit taking Harry's place. Lloyd Thomas will, of course, be found at his old station, doing business as usual.

RECALL 1927 GAME

Those who think the Trojans are going to dispose of their foes without too much trouble should recall the 1927 game. It was 7 to 0 at the half, Don Moses having crashed through for the lone score of the first two periods.

It was Williams who started the real fireworks. On the first play after the kickoff in the second half Don squirted through his own right tackle, cut back to the left and raced seventy-one yards to a touchdown. That took considerable starch out of the Cougars, but even then there was no more scoring until the fourth period when the heat—it was an unusually warm day—and Coach Hollingbery's lack of subs began to tell the tale.

Rocky Kemp wound up the game by dashing 53 yards through the weary Cougars, this being the final touchdown of the day, coming soon after Howard Elliott had crossed the Washington State goal following a jaunt of 11 yards.

Morley Drury and Williams had long since left the game, worn and weary from battering the Cougar line.

There is no Drury this year and Williams may not be able to play. Hollingbery has plenty of reserves and it is unlikely that his team will run into a hot day, at least present weather indications are to the contrary. Drury, Williams and Saunders played so hard against the Cougars last year that all went to the hospital after the game. Williams was at the peak of his 1927 form that day, gaining 154 yards from scrimmage and running his total to 226 on return of punts and passes.

WON CHAMPIONSHIP

Last year the Washington State frosh team won the championship of the Northwest. Hollingbery has many sophomores on his present varsity. That often makes for a fighting football team, one which is hard to beat. Such was the main personnel of the Trojans themselves last year and Jones's machine bowed only to Notre Dame.

The Trojans practiced on a heavy field last night and Jones had scrimmage for his regulars.

SQUAD OF THIRTY-FIVE COUGARS ON WAY TO L. A.

PULLMAN (Wash.) Nov. 14. (AP) Thirty-five Washington State College Cougars, the largest pack ever to be taken on a California trip, were en route today for Los Angeles, where they will meet the University of Southern California Saturday.

With the exception of "Brick" Graham, center, who was nursing an injured foot, every man was in good condition.

Centers, Graham, Mel Hein and Morgan; guards, Schwartz, E. Hansen, Fleichsig, Docka, Ward and Parkhurst; tackles, Dressel, Riley, Speidel, Ahlskog and Zane; ends, Sam Hansen, Maskell, Hill, Hurley, Chester, Curry and Yap; quarterbacks, Rohwer, Linden, Buckley, Tonkin and Luck; halfbacks and fullbacks, Horan, Lainhart, MacDonald, Jones, Johannes, Johnson, L. Hein, Smith and Soley.

With the team will be Coach Hollingbery, Trainer Wilbur (Doc) Bohm and Wendell Hitchcock, student manager.

NETMEN WORKING DAILY

Karl Kozeluh, the world's professional tennis champion, and Vincent Richards, ex-American Davis Cup star, are rapidly getting set for their exhibition net tilts this Saturday and Sunday afternoons to be staged at the Los Angeles Tennis Club in Hollywood.

Kozeluh and Richards have been working out on the cement courts of the club. Both found the service in great contrast to the asphalt play of the northern courts at Berkeley and San Francisco, where the pair performed last week-end. Harvey Snodgrass of Palomar, ex-national clay court national doubles champion, will be seen in action against this duo also.

OXY WOMEN'S TENNIS TOURNEY CALLED OFF

Finals of the Occidental women's tennis tournament, which was scheduled for yesterday afternoon on the varsity court, was postponed indefinitely, to be staged perhaps next week, if weather permits. Miss Betty Williamson, a frosh, and Miss Evelyn Maxon, a sophomore, are the two finalists for the girl's championship at the Eagle Rock institution. Preliminary matches were completed at an earlier period this semester.

SHERIDAN HAS EDGE ON RIVAL

Many Knockout Victories Make Him Favorite Over Moore at Hollywood

There is a slight margin in Homer Sheridan's favor to win the main event at the Hollywood American Legion Stadium tomorrow night because it has been learned that Sheridan has won twenty-one out of thirty-five fights by the knockout route and he has never failed to have his opponent on the floor at least once during the bout. That is a sensational bit of information to the Hollywood fans because they like a sock artist and want to see someone who can uncrown Bert Colima.

Roy Moore of Long Beach has many admirers who think he will coast to a win over Sheridan. Moore may be tougher than Mike Hector and he may uncover a weakness in Sheridan but if he gets his chin in the way of one of Sheridan's wallops he will go the way of the other twenty-one victims. Tom Kennedy claims that and Kennedy manages Sheridan.

Other shots on the card that ought to be interesting are the Frankie Forbes-Sandy Garrison semi-wind-up and the special event featuring Joe Salas and Leo Lomelli. Forbes is one of the best welters that could be sent against Garrison in the opinion of the fight men. Salas makes his comeback against a youngster who is improving with every start. Lomelli stands a good chance of beating Salas.

Redlands, along with the Aztecs, is among the strongest freshmen elevens in the circuit this year and is favorite over the invaders.

WILL CONTEST GOES OVER

Expected Struggle for $15,000 Elliott Estate May be Settled Out of Court

Contrary to expectations the three-cornered legal contest over the $15,000 estate of Emory A. Elliott, a suicide, set for yesterday before Superior Judge Desmond, failed to materialize and the case went over until Friday with the possibility of a settlement out of court.

Two petitions for letters of administration were filed, one by Myrtle D. Elliott, the second wife, asking that Attorney Howard Grace be named as administrator; the other by Attorney Albert E. Sherman for Emma Boll Elliott, Dallas, Tex., mother of Elliott. This petition asked that Frank Bryson, Public Administrator, be named to handle the affairs of the estate.

Grace Ellen Elliott, divorced wife of the decedent, who was named as one of the beneficiaries in the will, which was set aside by a jury, has filed a notice of appeal and was prepared, through her counsel, Attorney Roger Marchetti, to intervene in the probate proceedings. Attorney Marchetti was going to ask for a continuance of the hearing on the theory that Grace Ellen Elliott was the proper person to handle the estate until the appeal had been settled.

The will left by Elliott bequeathes all of his estate to Grace Ellen Elliott.

POLICE OPEN MYSTIC DOOR

Evidence that police vice-squad officers do not believe in signs was indicated yesterday morning, when they raided a bottle supply store at 6203 Santa Monica Boulevard and a restaurant at 330 Sunset Boulevard and arrested two men.

In the rear of the bottle store Sergt. Hudson and members of the Hollywood vice squad reported finding a unique liquor plant with an electrically operated door. Hudson said he noticed two nails sticking out of the rear wall of the establishment. When he made a contact between the two nails with a file a door swung open, he said. Within the plant he reported finding 217 quarts of wine, one ten-gallon bottle of liquor and forty-two pints of liquor. Guy Digiuro, 23 years of age, asserted proprietor of the store, was arrested for possession of liquor.

In the cafe Sergt. Rogers of the Central vice squad said he found a sign pasted on a linen closet stating, "Linen closet out of order." Opening it he found a pint of whisky, and arrested David Herrera, 36, as asserted proprietor of the restaurant.

FATE DESTROYS ART ANTIQUES

After escaping the plundering hands of vandals and Chinese revolutionists in the Orient, then making a safe sea voyage to Los Angeles, $90,000 worth of rare objects of art made during the Ming dynasty were destroyed by a fire when a truck carrying the collection left the quiet country highway near the Conejo bridge between here and Santa Barbara.

Such is the story being unfolded in the hearing of the lawsuit brought by Mrs. Mildred S. Wood against the Wilmington Transfer and Storage Company, which went to trial yesterday before Superior Judge Hazlett.

Mrs. Wood asserts that after the collection of antiques cleared the customs here the transfer company contracted with her to carry it by truck to Santa Barbara; that while in the course of transportation the truck left the highway and burst into flames, and the collection was destroyed.

The company asserts that spontaneous combustion was the cause of the disaster, therefore there is no liability on its part.

Don Fetters, truck driver, was the first witness called by Mrs. Wood. He was one of the drivers when the truck left the highway. He said the truck stalled and that the trailer left the highway and pulled the truck with it, and a fire broke out immediately.

The hearing will be continued today.

COST BILLS CONFIRMED BY COUNCIL

Assessments for Third Street Widening Project Formally Approved

The assessments to pay for land to be taken for the opening, straightening and widening of Third street as a through major traffic artery from Figueroa street to Vermont avenue were confirmed by the City Council yesterday. They total $2,264,123. The total assessments had been reduced by a contribution from general city funds of $164,033. The City Council has allocated $500,000 toward the improvement of the street.

The Third-street assessment matter has been before the Council for many weeks. It is not unlikely that a number of property owners in the district may join in litigation in the courts against the widening on account of their dissatisfication with the amounts assessed.

On the matter of confirming the assessments yesterday, Councilmen Hughes, Martin and Webster voted "No."

New Dishwasher Sent From East by Air Delivery

From now on when Lena or Yoshi demand an extra day off the mistress can adopt the chill stare and give the hired hand what is colloquially known as the air.

Yesterday a flying delivery of the first White Bear electric dishwasher to be installed in any California home emancipated the wealthy woman from the whims of kitchen help, and the woman of moderate means from the annoyance of splashing around in soapsuds after the evening meal.

Armour & Knight, Inc., of 2310 West Seventh street, distributors for the newly invented kitchen servant arranged the shipment of this machine as a test for future airplane deliveries. Mrs. J. L. Maddux, wife of the president of Maddux air lines, saw a demonstrator model and ordered one. It was sent by Maddux airplane from Chicago to Los Angeles.

The new machine, it is claimed, will wash, rinse and dry all the tableware of the average dinner for six in five minutes. Ten carloads of the machines are designed for early delivery in California, and several air shipments are planned.

JURY WILL HEAR CASE OF EX-WIFE

Breach of Promise Point in Suit Against Former Husband to be Decided

A jury will pass on the question of whether Walter Merchant is guilty of breach of promise by his failure to remarry his wife, Violet Marie Merchant, after he had obtained a divorce from her.

The case was called for trial yesterday in the court of Superior Judge McLucas and continued to December 4, next.

Mrs. Merchant asks $50,000 damages in her suit. She asserts she agreed not to contest Merchant's suit for divorce to permit him to get back some community property he said he had transferred to his sister, Addie L. Nolan. Mrs. Merchant further contends that Merchant promised to remarry her as soon as he had gotten back his property and obtained his final decree. Instead, he married Leah M. Kirby on February 12, last.

Merchant has filed an answer through his counsel, Attorney Joseph Spray, denying the accusations of his wife. His attorney holds that inasmuch as he already was married to Mrs. Merchant until a final decree was granted, he could not enter into another marraige contract, therefore is not guilty of breach of promise.

CHEMICALS PLANT ASKS HARBOR SITE

Large Area Requested in Surprise Petition Filed for Branch Location

Application for establishment at Los Angeles Harbor of a branch of a $10,000,000 chemical industry of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Tacoma, Wash., was made to the harbor board yesterday by the Hooker Electrochemical Company. It was referred to General Manager Edwards for investigation and a recommendation, after representatives had conferred with the Harbor Commissioners.

The application was made by A. H. Hooker of 701 South Mariposa avenue, head of the company, who asked lease of 13,604 square feet of harbor land north of the Union Oil Company loading plant and west of Berth 154, across Pier A street, Wilmington. A five-year lease is sought with option to renew.

It is proposed to place on the site structures for the distribution of the company's product from a new $500,000 Tacoma plant being completed, and which will be in operation January 1.

The local plant, Hooker explained, would be used for distribution of chemicals already contracted for in Southern California.

Liquor Arrests Made Close to Griffin School

Complaints reaching police that a bootlegging establishment was being operated near the Griffin-avenue school with the older children having knowledge of its existence early yesterday resulted in the arrest of Richard Zuniga, 28 years of age, of 3430 Pasadena avenue, and Walter William Baka of 3616 South San Pedro street, according to the report of Sergt. Tyson of the Lincoln Heights vice squad.

The arrest was made in the rear of 3340 Pasadena avenue, which is close to the school, the officers stated. Zuniga and Baka were found in an automobile registered to Laura Rudolph of 1276 South Windsor Boulevard, they said. In a trunk on the back of the car Tyson said he found four gallons of liquor.

Zuniga was booked at the Lincoln Heights station on charges of violation of the Wright Act and suspicion of grand theft of the automobile. Baka was held on the liquor charge.

Fish and Sweet Potatoes Ruin Home Felicity

Catfish and sweet potatoes broke up the happy home of Joe Vaughn, he told Superior Judge Guerin yesterday when asking for a legal separation from his wife, Lillian Vaughn.

Represented by Attorney Griffith Jones, the husband told the court that he liked catfish and sweet potatoes: that one day his wife got angry and told him she was sick and tired of cooking the dish and hurled a platter of it at his head. The food struck him in the face, then bounced back and spashed all over the hand-painted walls of the dining-room.

That was bad enough, the husband declared, but she grew more angry, gathered up an arm load of crockery and went through the house smashing out the windows.

The decree was granted.

Widow to Get Bulk of Estate of Dr. Bryson

The last will and testament of the late Dr. Charles W. Bryson, pioneer physician who died on the 2nd inst., was on file yesterday in the Probate Court. The value of the estate as named in the petition to probate the will is "that it will exceed $10,000." Friends of the late physician declare, however, that the estate left has a value around $50,000.

By the terms of the will on file the entire estate is left to the widow, Mrs. Myrtle F. Bryson, 234 West Adams street, except $10,000, which is left to a daughter by a former marriage. She is Mrs. Beryl B. Johnson, 1143 Laveta Terrace.

Attorney George L. Greer is representing the estate.

Michael G. Rouse

ROUSE WILL BE HARBOR SECRETARY

Confirmed Appointment Announced After Passing Civil Service Test

Michael G. Rouse, temporary secretary of the Board of Harbor Commissioners since former Secretary Jay G. Starr was appointed traffic manager at the harbor in place of Capt. S. S. Sandberg, when the latter became a member of the Shipping Board, yesterday was given the permanent appointment by the harbor board, after examination of applicants by President Allen.

Rouse was high man with a grade of 97.3 in the civil service list certified to the harbor board by the Civil Service Commission. Before becoming secretary to the board he was with the Santa Fe line as rate and tariff clerk, having had charge of the publication of Pacific Coast rates for the line. This work brought him in close contact with Los Angeles Harbor and its rates and made him familiar with the port's industrial activities.

He was born in Kentucky, is married, has two children and lives at 949 Vista street, Hollywood.

PORT BOARD GRANTS BUILDING PERMITS

Application for a permit to construct a transit shed extension at Berth 174, Mormon Island, to cost $68,000, made to the harbor board yesterday by Harbor Engineer Nicholson, was approved and specifications ordered. The board granted the E. K. Wood Lumber Company permission to erect a lumber storage building at the rear of Berth 79 on its lease from the Southern Pacific Railway Company at a cost of $6000. Permits for alterations to a loading platform at Berth 233, costing $400, sought by the California and Hawaiian Sugar Company, and for an addition to an old building at Berth 198 by Norton, Lilly & Co., costing $500, were granted.

WOMAN LEADS OFFICERS MAD CHASE THROUGH STORM FLOOD

While thousands of citizens were dodging raindrops yesterday morning, two deputy sheriffs were splashing through three feet of water on Hooper avenue, Florence, to capture Marguerite Florence, 27 years of age, wanted by the Sheriff's office on a charge of burglary.

The capture was effected after a long chase and several hand-to-hand encounters in which the rain was a minor factor, according to the report submitted by the officers, Deputy Sheriffs Moffett and Hurst.

The chase began at Miss Florence's home, where the officers called to arrest her. When they knocked on the door the girl answered dressed in bedroom attire and requested that they wait a moment while she changed to street clothes. The officers agreed, but Miss Florence suddenly slipped from her apartment and entered the one next door.

The deputies gave chase and found Miss Florence hidden behind the bath-room door. She came out with a rush attempting to kick the men in the stomach, the officers said, and escaped to the street fleeing through a pool of water three feet deep.

While rushing through the water in pursuit, Deputy Moffett fell in the deep water losing his revolver from its holster. Deputy Hurst continued the chase, however, and the woman was finally captured four blocks away after she had severely scratched Moffett's face.

Miss Florence is accused of burglarizing the home of John W. Bold, 7516 Hooper avenue.

Bandit Takes Garage Cash

Just as A. Tompkins, night attendant at an auto rental establishment at 513 West Sixth street, was about to step out at 8 a.m. yesterday for a cup of coffee, a lone bandit, on the pretext of renting a car, stepped into the garage, held him up and robbed him of $46, he reported to police.

The bandit, Tompkins said, carried a revolver and threatened to return to kill him if he followed him out of the garage within ten minutes.

Funeral services of Rev. Arthur Tobey, 27 years of age, minister of the Four Square Gospel Church at Fullerton and a resident of South Gate, will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. The Pyle Mortuary, 951 California avenue, will be in charge. Interment will be made in Inglewood Park Cemetery.

Mr. Tobey died Monday. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Opal Burt Tobey, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Tobey, and five brothers, Charles, Merril, Guy, George and John, all of 8616 Cypress avenue, South Gate.

CLASH OVER FILM HOUSE ADJUSTED

Mrs. Ferron Wins Nonsuit as Audit Shows Receipts Approximate Guarantee

Mrs. Audrey Ferron, wife of Maj. Paul Ferron, former army flyer, came near to losing a $17,000 damage suit brought against her, tried before Superior Judge Crawford.

Mrs. Ferron and her husband sold the Largo motion-picture Theater at Watts to the Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., for $40,000. Under terms of the sale the Ferrons guaranteed the buyers gross receipts amounting to $1100 per week.

Following the sale the company desired to rescind their contract. The Ferrons refused and the company brought suit asking that the contract be rescinded and that the Ferrons pay them $17,000 damages. Mrs. Ferron contended the receipts were $1100 per week when she and her husband disposed of the theater.

During the trial Judge Crawford ordered an audit of the receipts. The auditors reported an average of $1096.15 weekly.

"This is near enough to make the sale valid," the judge declared when he granted a motion of the defendant for a nonsuit.

SOCIETY

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

Cards are being received this morning from Mr. and Mrs. George Herbert Wigmore for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Katherine Wigmore, and Dean Atherton Eyre, the ceremony taking place at the family residence, 949 West Adams street, Wednesday afternoon, December 5, at 4:30 o'clock.

At Art Club

The president and board of directors of the California Art Club, on North Vermont avenue at Hollywood Boulevard, are giving a reception Sunday afternoon to meet Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Keeler, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

The famous Rembrandt painting recently acquired by Mr. and Mrs. Keeler will be on view.

Lovely Affair

Members of Chi Psi Omega, Beta chapter, were hostesses at a lovely affair at the Los Altos Apartments on Wilshire Boulevard Saturday afternoon, when a delicious luncheon was served.

The guests were seated at a long table, beautifully decorated in the autumn motif and, following luncheon, bridge formed the feature of the afternoon's entertainment, the games being played in the Tower Room.

Prizes were won by Miss Isabel Bone, Miss Josephine Butterly and Miss Dorothy Swanson.

Church Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Margaret Sampson Pope, daughter of Mrs. Clara Sampson Doyle, to Paul A. Schmidt, was solemnized the 9th inst. in the Little Church of the Flowers, Glendale, with Rev. Thomas M. Buley officiating.

Decorations were carried out effectively with banks of chyrsanthemums and the floral altar of large baskets of chyrsanthemums in the pastel shades and a profusion of greenery.

Preceding the ceremony La Mont Stetzer, cousin of the bride, sang several selections, accompanied at the organ by Vera Culp, who also played the wedding marches.

The bride more a becoming gown of honey beige chiffon with matching hat of silk lace and carried lilies of the valley and Mme. Butterfly roses, while Mrs. Howard A. La Dow assisted her sister as matron of honor and carried delphinium and Claudius Pernet rosebuds.

Margaret Elizabeth Doyle and Betty Meta Wilbur, nieces of the bride, in white georgette and lace and peach changeable taffeta, respectively, were dainty flower girls, carrying baskets of pink and white sweet peas, while Norman Kenneth Doyle and Claude Owen ushered.

After a honeymoon through the north by motor Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt will return to Los Angeles and make their home at 2134 Longwood avenue.

At Del Monte

J. F. Morrill, who has been at Del Monte for several weeks visiting his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Carpenter, sailed for his home in Honolulu aboard the Maui Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter are planning to remain at Del Monte for an indefinite period.

Bridge Party

Thursday evening the 8th inst. Misses Dorothy and Ludema Kreipke entertained with a bridge party at their home, 877 West Fortieth Place, assisted by their mother, Mrs. Alice G. Kreipke. The Armistice Day motif was carried out in the decorations and flowers. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lang, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eames, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Narmore, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Daniels, Miss Ludema Kreipke, Miss Merritt Smith, Miss Verona Fersch, Miss Dorothy Kreipke, Jimmie Boody, Vern Anis, Courtney Hackler and Russ Kimble.

Delightful Affair

Mrs. R. L. Pitcairn of 1207 West Third street entertained Tuesday at the Chapman Park with a delightful luncheon party for twenty-eight of her friends. The guests were seated around one long table which was exquisitely decorated with autumn colored flowers. During the afternoon the guests enjoyed bridge in the Green Room, prizes being given for high scores.

Round Table Luncheon

Mrs. Daisy Beldom of Hollywood was a recent Round Table luncheon hostess at the Deauville Beach Club, her guests including Mrs. Faroline Anderson, Mrs. Reatha Long, Mrs. E. Bayless Smith, Mrs. Bertha Mason, Mrs. R. W. Howell, Mrs. J. Lieb, Mrs. Alfred Ashby, Mrs. W. J. Porter, Mrs. W. D. Bailey and Mrs. C. A. Warner. Bridge games followed the luncheon.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Tiny Tips

Kerosene will remove rust from scissors.

Gasoline will remove chewing gum from clothing.

Clothes will last longer if mended before laundering.

Milk is the most perfect food. Include plenty of it in your menus.

Add the white of an egg to the mustard plaster and it will not burn.

There's no place so much like home for leftover vegetables as in vegetable soup.

Those Elusive Gloves

The knitted gloves or mittens for the small boy are constantly slipping off unless some drastic step is taken. Narrow elastic may be attached on the inside of the glove, tight enough that it will hold the glove firmly to the sleeve of his coat. If the glove is closely knitted at the wrist the elastic may be woven in and out.

"Five Dollars"

If you form the habit of mentioning the amount of any bill over one dollar, thereby attracting the attention of the person to whom you are giving it, you will never receive incorrect change, as both you and the recipient will be on the alert.

A Surprise for Hubby

If you will write down on a sheet of paper each thing that is needed in the staple grocery line and keep it handy, you can turn it over to friend husband when he starts out to buy his tobacco and save time and strength by not having to carry heavy boxed articles.

Better Wear

When making a handbag at home, make the lining for the handbag just a bit shorter than the outside of the bag so that the weight will not rest on the bag itself but on the lining.

Further Wear

If the hemstitching pulls apart on a good pillow-case or scarf, cut through the center of the stitching. Then insert a sturdy, narrow lace between the hem and the case. It will prolong the wear of the article for months.

Very Attractive

In the bowl with the growing bulbs, use the large glass beads like those used in kindergartens. You will find them a change from the ordinary stones, being so colorful.

MATRON LEAVES FOR ARIZONA

Luncheon Signalizes Her Departure

[Lansing Brown studios]

Mrs. Alphonse Burnand

AMONG the charming matrons who will be much missed this winter is Mrs. Alphonse Burnand, who left a few days ago to join Mr. Burnand in Nogales, Ariz., where they will pass the winter.

Just before leaving Mrs. Burnand entertained at the Women's Athletic Club in South Flower street with a beautifully appointed luncheon in honor of Mrs. Seeley Mudd and Mrs. Truman Dawes.

GUIDING YOUR CHILD

SECURITY

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

The most fundamental need of childhood is a sense of security. In his helplessness the child needs, above all, to be sure of his parents' love and protection. It is this which gives him the background for mental and emotional growth.

He must feel without ever thinking about it that his parents love each other and are happy in each other's society. The child who senses a lack of love between his parents, or witnesses open contention is more disturbed than we are likely to realize. He may be too young to put his distress into words, but his peace of mind is nevertheless deeply affected.

He needs a sense of stability about his house, his room, his possessions. Frequent movings and economic vicissitudes register in the young child's life as confusion, and a lack of dependability in the people and things which make up his world.

The child who sees his own parents unhappy with each other, worried about money, wracked by angers, hatreds, doubts or fears, receives an abiding sense of insecurity. Children can look to no one if not to their parents for the strength, courage and wisdom on which they must rely.

The proper concerns of childhood are with growing in knowledge of the environment and with increased power over it. The home must give the child a steady sense of well being and a natural faith in the goodness of life, so that his early years can lay the foundations for active and satisfactory ones later on.

It is most unfortunately true that many of us become parents in the midst of our own immaturities. With the struggles of our own youth scarcely put behind us, we find ourselves in the awe-inspiring role of parents. Inevitably our children suffer. But we can minimize the extent of harm we do by trying to appear in the eyes of our children, poised, happy, affectionate and secure.

16 and 40 No Excess Fat

It's easy to avoid

Everybody knows that excess fat is nowhere near so common as it was. Mothers look like daughters. Slender figures are the rule. You should know how scientific research has brought this change about.

Science has discovered that a great cause of excess fat lies in a deficient gland. No starvation, no over-work can cure it. The cause must be corrected, and that lies in a gland which largely controls nutrition.

Modern physicians, in treating obesity, attack that cause. They supply the lack. That is why excess fat has so fast disappeared in late years. Slender figures are the vogue.

A great medical laboratory, years ago, embodied this new method in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for over 20 years—millions of boxes of them. You see the results wherever you look. There is new youth and beauty, new health and vitality. Excess fat is nowhere near as common as it was.

Do what these people have done—multitudes of them, for 21 years. They have seen the fat go, seen new youth and vigor come back. Friends all about you will testify to that.

Every box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reasons for results. You will know exactly why these good effects appear. Get back to normal weight in this scientific way. Fat is a disease. You will benefit in many ways when the cause is ended. Start now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

san, he can produce intricate results with small means.

Cooks can be among the greatest helpers of mankind, if they will really learn dietetic principles as well as the science and art of cookery.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

TEMPERATURE AT NIGHT

Question: Mrs. J. H. writes: "Kindly tell me the cause of a boy 7 years of age running a temperature every night. He is underweight and of a very nervous temperament."

Answer: You should have your boy examined by a competent diagnostician. He may be suffering from tuberculosis in some part of the body, or from pyelitis or some other disease where there is a degeneration of tissues going on.

STARCH IN MELBA TOAST

Q.: M. H. writes: "I have heard that you claim that Melba toast contains no starch—that toasting white bread removes the starch."

A.: My claim was that starch becomes dextrinized by the heat so that it is not liable to cause fermentation in the intestines.

REDUCING MEDICINES

Q.: M. M. asks: "Will you, if possible, tell me what you think of this new product called ——— that has recently been put on the market? Do you consider it harmless and does it really reduce? Don't you think it a good deal to lose four pounds in a few minutes? I do not understand its action."

A.: I never recommend remedies for reducing. It is only necessary for you to diet and exercise properly and you can surely bring your weight to the normal. The principle of all reducing remedies is wrong. Stop the cause—too much food and insufficient exercise—and you have the only sensible cure for obesity.

CHEST MEASUREMENT

Q.: M. L. H. asks: "What is the chest measurement for a person 21 years of age, five feet eight inches tall?"

A.: Your chest measurement would depend upon your type of build, and would vary all the way from thirty-six to forty-two inches.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

BY MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope, forwarded to this office, will bring a personal reply.

This department offers leaflets on weaning and feeding the child from 6 weeks to 6 years, prenatal care and diet for the nursing mother, constipation, eczema, outfits for the new baby, sleeping, walking, teething, thumb sucking, ammoniacal urine, bed wetting, training in cleanly habits, periods of nursing, cod liver oil, orange juice, hives, worms, vomiting, refractory children, prune juice, lime water, rupture, styes and boils and cradle cap. Before asking a personal question about one of these subjects, it is better to send a self-addressed stamped envelope for the leaflet you need. If your particular problem is not covered in the above list, Mrs. Eldred will be glad to give you a personal reply.

MILK A PART OF THE MEAL, NOT AN EXTRA

There is a general disposition to look upon milk as "something to drink," perhaps analagous to tea or coffee, which emphatically it is not. With this idea in mind children are fed their solid food at regular meal times and then in between are given glasses of milk.

Some small babies who are just being offered milk for the first time in addition to the breast have this given them between the regular breast feedings. That is all wrong. If the mother nurses a baby at 7 o'clock and then gives him even a little milk at 9 o'clock, she is feeding him every two hours, which every mother knows is not correct for the baby, with the possible exception of the premature who weighs less than six pounds when born. Food given oftener than once in three hours is ruinous to the digestion and unnecessary beside, and milk must be looked upon as a complete food, which takes three hours for digestion.

In many cases when a child is suffering from a loss of appetite and a refusal to take all of his bottle at a meal the mother writes me that she is giving it to him "between" meals so that he won't lose weight.

LENGTHEN INTERVALS BETWEEN MEALS

When there is loss of appetite the meal intervals should be lengthened instead of shortened or there will be little chance that the child will ever have the opportunity to develop the good and rousing appetite which is his best spur to eating sufficient nourishing food.

If the child can't manage to drink a glassful of milk along with the other solid foods given him, it is probable that he is being forced to eat too large a quantity of solid foods. It may be necessary to cut down on the amount of those and offer less milk to drink, using the rest of the milk in the cooking of the foods. It never rights matters to offer the milk in between meals and is destructive not only to a good appetite but to the regular, widely spaced meals which are essential to good digestion.

This eating between meals holds good for other foods besides milk, though milk is most often misused in this regard. The idea that to give a child one or two cookies, or crackers, or pieces of candy or cake is offering him nothing to eat and needn't be counted in his daily intake of foods, is erroneous. It is the overlooking of the nutritive elements of these foods which leads to consternation at the children's refusal to eat regular food at regular meal times.

Sweets are a perfectly legitimate part of the child's diet, but they should be part of the meal and counted as dessert, and not given in between times as treats.

WAFFLES

Three cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two cupfuls of milk, one-half cupful of melted butter, four eggs; sift the dry ingredients, add the milk and the yolks well beaten alternately. Then add the melted butter, and lastly fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Do not beat the mixture too much or the waffles will be tough.

LAMB LOAF, GREEN PEAS

Four cupfuls of cold cooked lamb, one cupful of rice, one cupful of cream sauce, one tablespoonful of grated onion, one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped green pepper, or pimientoes, seasoning of salt and paprika.

Boil the rice, put the meat through a food chopper, add the sauce and seasonings and combine with the rice. Place in a baking dish that has been brushed heavily with melter butter, dot with bits of butter, and bake for forty minutes. Garnish with green peas and serve.

RHUBARB FLUFF

One pound of rhubarb, one cupful of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a half a cupful of milk, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, and about two cupfuls of sugar; wash, clean and cut the rhubarb in small pieces, place in a saucepan that has a tight fitting cover with half a cupful of water, and simmer until the rhubarb is soft. Sprinkle with the required amount of sugar, make a batter by sifting one cupful of flour with the baking powder, salt and milk. Spread over the top of the rhubarb, place the cover on and allow to cook for twenty minutes without removing the cover. Turn out and serve.

HALIBUT PUDDING

Cut two pounds of halibut or any firm fish freed from skin and bones into small pieces, run through the food chopper, then pound to a paste. Beat the whites of three eggs stiff, and whip one cupful of cream, season the fish pulp with salt, cayenne pepper, and a teaspoonful of onion juice, and add a cupful of finely chopped blanched almonds, and four tablespoonfuls of capers, fold in the egg and cream to the fish mixture and pour into a well oiled mold. Cover tightly, set in a pan of hot water and bake for forty minutes in a medium hot oven.

STILL SUSPECT HELD DUE TO FINGERPRINTS

Fingerprints on a liquor still identified by Sergt. Barlow, police fingerprint expert, as those of John Zanotti, were sufficient for Municipal Judge Baird to order Zanotti held for trial by Superior Court yesterday on charges of operating the still. The latter was found by Police Officers H. W. Holman and L. E. Tyson at 3001 Gilroy street. Bail was set at $1000. Dep. Dist.-Atty. Kearney introduced testimony by the arresting officers that they found the still deserted and arrested Zanotti when he appeared some time later. Clarence B. Conlin, defense attorney, contended that his client did not own the still, and merely had gone there to visit friends.

DEATH ATTEMPTS CHARGED

Mrs. Erma B. Hutchinson was granted a divorce from Roy L. Hutchinson yesterday by Superior Judge Frederickson after the wife testified that her husband threatened to choke and kill her. The couple were married at Santa Ana on May 20, 1926.

Fountain May Honor 'Friend of Fishermen'

Erection of a public drinking fountain on city property in East San Pedro to honor the memory of the late George Hannam, for years adviser and friend of San Pedro fishermen, was referred to General Manager Edwards for attention yesterday by the harbor board.

Request for the use of harbor property for the memorial, to be contributed by the fishermen, came from Dr. A. W. Warnock of San Pedro, with the indorsement of the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce.

Hannam, who died October 24 while under care of the Los Angeles public health service, was educated in Ohio as a geologist, according to Dr. Warnock, and came to the harbor six years ago as a compass adjuster and general adviser to the fishermen, who got into the habit of going to him with all their troubles.

Holy Name Body Will Hold Rally for 1929 Drive

Under the auspices of the Diocesan Holy Name Union, a meeting of the Catholic parish societies of Los Angeles county will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the Knights of Columbus Auditorium 612 South Flower street. The rally will inaugurate plans for intensive parish organization preparatory to the series of missions scheduled for all Catholic churches of the diocese during the Lenten season of 1929. The plans call for a complete census of the Catholic populations and a thorough canvass of all districts.

Bishop Cantwell will officially open the campaign with an address at the meeting tonight. Other speakers include P. H. O'Neil, diocesan Holy Name president; Superior Judge Aggeler and Edward C. Purpus, Grand Knight of Council 621, Knights of Columbus.

HE KEPT HER WAITING

That's Over Now, for Mrs. H. R. King Wins Divorce Decree

H. Ross King was inconsiderate of the rights, feeling and comfort of his wife, Mrs. Pauline C. King, being only thoughtful of his own pleasures and desires, she said when she appeared in the court of Superior Judge Price yesterday asking for a divorce.

Mrs. King testified that King had a habit of keeping her waiting for dinner, or on a street corner, or in their automobile. Also, she said, he often belittled her before their friends.

The decree was granted.

WELCOME PLANNED

General Manager Edwards of the harbor department yesterday was directed by the harbor board to arrange the usual courtesies at the port for the visit of the French armored cruiser, Edgar Quinet, which will call at the harbor December 14, next. Notice of the war vessel's proposed visit came from Mayor Cryer.

Coroner Nance Investigates 3765 Fatalities

Traffic Accidents Cause of Most Activity

Annual Report on Homicide Makes Total 101

The report of County Coroner Nance for the fiscal year which ended June 30, last, issued yesterday, reveals that the total number of deaths in the county during the fiscal year which necessitated investigation by his office was 3765. In 2549 cases an autopsy was performed and it was necessary to hold 868 inquests.

Traffic accidents were the leading cause of fatalities which were investigated by the Coroner, having been responsible for 649 deaths, of which 599 were caused by motor vehicles. In a resume of the causes of such accidents, the greatest single factor was reported to be incompetent driving, with eighty-nine deaths being attributed to that cause. Motorists' negligence at railroad crossings was responsible for fifty-eight deaths, while an equal number were attributed to pedestrians crossing streets between intersections and seventy-six were charged to crossing streets carelessly.

The number of suicides during the year was 399, and in 137 cases the method chosen for bringing death was shooting, 107 suicides took various forms of poison and forty-three asphyxiated themselves by inhaling illuminating gas. Ill health was responsible for 124 of the suicides, while the greatest other single cause was given as mental derangement, forty-four suicides being thus classified.

Homicides during the year numbered 101 and of the victims seventy-eight were male and twenty-three female. The causes for these murders are listed under more than twenty-five separate heads.

FIESTA ANNOUNCED

FARIS FIGHTS WIFE'S SUIT

Denials that he struck his wife or was cruel to her are made in a cross-complaint filed yesterday in the Superior Court by Derrick W. Faris in answer to the suit recently brought by his wife, Mrs. Isabel W. Faris, daughter of the late John D. Works, former United States Senator, who accused him of acts of cruelty.

Mrs. Faris in her complaint asserted that Faris became intoxicated almost daily and threatened on one occasion to kill her. She further asserted that he frequently struck her.

Faris, in his cross-complaint, denies that he frequently struck his wife. He admits that he slapped her once, but holds he was justified in doing so because of her acting indiscreetly with a man.

The husband also contends that before his marriage he suggested to Miss Works that they wait until he was financially able to marry, but she insisted on being married at once, telling him that they could live with her father to save expense. As soon as they were wed expenses began piling up, he declares.

Faris also asserts that his bride refused to stop teaching and even attended a university, giving him very little of her time. He also says she was extravagant.

He then goes on to recite that after he had spent all of his money on Mrs. Faris and a daughter by a former marriage she complained that she was forced to support herself and that he was spending his money for intoxicants.

In the petition filed in her action Mrs. Faris says that once her husband became so loud that the police took him in custody.

Bicycle Helps in Capture of Auto Suspects

If it hadn't been for the bicycle of Pete Renter, 17 years of age, of 112 South Midwick street, Belvedere, the driver of the automobile which ran over Pete yesterday morning possibly would never have been found.

Pete was riding the bicycle at Spring street and Sunset Boulevard when an automobile ran over him, according to police. Pete escaped injury, but when he scrambled to his feet the automobile was gone and so was his bicycle.

Several blocks up the street Officers Burch and Kesterson observed a car dragging the bicycle underneath. They placed the two occupants, Barnardo Rodriguez, 36, of 453 Ducommon street, and Antonio Lugo, 28, of 836 Cleveland street, in custody.

Rodrigues was booked on charges of possession of liquor and failing to stop after an accident. Lugo was held only on the latter charge.

JAZZ AND RAZZ LOCK HORNS

Comparative Merits of Cacophonous Contraption Cause Controversy in Court, But Judge Balks at Plea for Contest of Motor Trumpets Before Him

It turned out to be a comparatively quiet session of Judge Gates's court, despite the outlook.

Attorneys Austin Sherman and I. B. Kornblum debated furiously, as is the custom of counsel, but no one tooted a horn, which, under the circumstances, was considered quite a triumph for the sid of peace and order in the courts.

Horns might have been tooted with a show of cause, for the matter before the court was "Jazzbird vs. Razzoo." The Jazzbird Company, a corporation, was there by Counsellor Kornblum, seeking an order to restrain certain persons doing business under the fictitious firm name of "Razzoo" from selling "Razzoos" in packages that look a lot like those "Jazzbirds" come in. This much was explained to Judge Gates by the attorneys in their opening remarks.

"But what is a 'Razzoo' and what is a 'Jazzbird?'" the court in a daze demanded.

"The 'Jazzbird' is an automobile signal horn or noise-making device, and the 'Razzoo' is a contemptible imitation thereof," Attorney Kornblum explained unctuously. To this Attorney Sherman took exception.

"No imitation at all," he declared. "The 'Jazzbird' makes a certain kind of a noise—possibly a highly meritorious noise. The 'Razzoo' makes another kind of noise, and I am sure counsel will permit me to indulge myself to the opinion that the 'Razzoo's' noise is cacophony of a superior character. That, of, course, is a matter of opinion, and 'de gustibus non disputandum.' If Your Honor cares to go into that I challenge my opponent to a test of our clients' devices in open court."

Judge Gates hastily denied the necessity for any such demonstration and, after listening to further argument by counsel, took the application under submission.

"It has been very pleasant to hear you gentlemen discuss your clients' wares. Probably the wares themselves would not sound so pleasant," he observed.

GIRL AUTOIST FREED AS RECKLESS DRIVER

Dorothy Nelson

Dorothy Nelson, 22 years of age, of 2757 San Marino street, was freed of charges of reckless driving yesterday when the prosecution was unable to prove to the satisfaction of Traffic Judge Swain that she was at fault in the collision between her sedan and a taxicab driven by W. G. Leonard at Sixth and Hope streets August 28, last. Judge Swain dismissed the charge on motion of Elmer R. Guy, defense attorney, after the prosecution had completed its case.

A motion to dismiss similar charges against Leonard, made by his attorney, Lee Heath, was denied. Leonard's trial was set for the 21st inst.

Eight-Year Term for Presidents Urged in Speech

Contending that the President of the United States should be elected for an eight-year term and thereafter be ineligible for re-election, and Representatives should be elected for a minimum term of four years, J. F. T. O'Connor, speaker yesterday at the Breakfast Club, delivered a plea for the "modernizing" of the Constitution.

"Under our present system," he pointed out, "a President has but two years' contact with Congress, and a Congressman has but three months' actual service in the House, when each is faced with a campaign for re-election."

SPEAKER WILL FLY

An invitation to be the chief guest speaker at an aviation meeting of the Salt Lake City Chamber of Commerce was received yesterday by Prof. Earl W. Hill, instructor at metropolitan college of the University of Southern California. The meeting is to be held on the 27th inst., and Prof. Hill will depart the day previous on a plane of Western Air Express, of which he is educational director.

ROARING FLOOD HITS BURBANK

Parts of Glendale Also Get Mud and Debris Bath

High Sierras Covered With Generous Snowfall

Many Basements Deluged and Traffic Delayed

the flood and was seriously threatened when a telephone pole was plunged through a window, opening a way for mud and water to pour into the house.

Similar floods came from Stough Canyon and other similar ravines along Eleventh street. Orange and Angeleno avenues were parallel streams of mud, rocks, debris and water with Olive avenue. The three streets poured their floods into the Burbank business district, leaving in their wake mud-covered lawns and rock-strewn streets.

The flood subsided quickly, however, and work was started immediately to clear the streets. Gangs of men were thrown into the affected district, but hours afterward there were blocks of silt-buried streets still almost impassable. Traffic was diverted from San Fernando Road in the city proper, while the streets were cleared. Several store buildings and one bank had to dig their ways out through several feet of mud and debris.

Near the Glendale-Burbank line, the ravines poured walls of water three feet high at time into the streets and for blocks along San Fernando Road intersecting streets were piled high with mud and flood wreckage.

ONLY ONE CASUALTY

Only one casualty was reported in the flooded area, R. H. Nelson, 974 Elmwood avenue, suffering a crushed foot when he attempted to stop his automobile from being washed down the street. He was treated at the Emergency Hospital and returned to his home.

Many automobiles in Sunset Canyon were washed from garages and several such structures fell. Boulders the size of a large automobile were hurled through the canyon and littered the road after the waters had swept through.

Approximately three square miles of the northwest section of Glendale was overrun to a greater or lesser degree by the Verdugo cloudburst waters. Ten thousand dollars of damage is estimated to have occurred in Brand Park alone.

PAVING RIPPED OUT

Long sections of cement paving on Western avenue and Winchester avenue were ripped out by the flood, which carried huge boulders with it to destroy trees and shrubs in the yards of many homes. The mud was carried as far south as San Fernando Road, blocking automobile traffic on the east and west streets and also halting the Pacific Electric cars on Glen Oaks Boulevard, with two feet of mud deposited on the street for a distance of about eight blocks. A near-panic was aroused by the fear that the reservoir on Western avenue had given way during the cloudburst. It was undamaged.

Flooding in various parts of Los Angeles, from Seventh and Spring streets to outlying sections, kept aid squads from the fire department busy pumping water out of basements, pulling swamped automobiles out of flooded streets, and rescuing the marooned occupants during the downpour. Traffic generally was much delayed.

One of the first calls from flood water in basements was sent in from the Walter P. Story Building at Sixth street and Broadway, where water was reported two feet deep. A few moments later water was reported doing considerable damage in the basement of the Stock Exchange Building at 647 South Spring street and a pumping squad was dispatched there.

CURB EXCHANGE FLOODED

The Curb Exchange, in the basement of the Stock Exchange Building, was completely flooded at 9:05 a.m. It is believed the storm drain in the tunnel that lies between the Exchange Building and Story Building broke. The engineroom in the Exchange Building filled up completely and the wall gave way. The Curb board room was deluged, water reaching a four and one-half foot level, above the tops of desks.

The damage was estimated at $25,000. It was covered by insurance. Stocks on curb were moved upstairs and put on the board of the Los Angeles exchange.

The curb ticker was out of commission as were all phones leading to the stock exchange.

Ticker quotations of the San Francisco Stock Exchange could not be received on the local market, but arrangements were made with the Western Union and quotations came over a direct wire and were posted on the bulletin board.

The curb will be operated today and the curb's records were saved.

OVERFLOWS NUMEROUS

Distressed property owners kept Ralph W. Stewart, chief deputy City Engineer, almost constantly on the telephone receiving reports of overflows of storm waters.

Complaints came from the neighborhood of Myra street and Sunset Boulevard and the streets in the immediate vicinity where a shallow but rushing torrent interfered with traffic and threatened damage to the foundation of the new Myra-street viaduct which is being constructed at a cost of $105,000 to separate the grades of Myra and Sunset.

Possibly the most frightened persons in Los Angeles yesterday were the home owners in the block between Clyde and Thurman avenues and from Ballona Creek to Washington street. Ballona Creek overflowed its banks near where Washington and Adams come together and a sheet of water a block wide traveled south from the creek to Washington street, flooding all the territory and in some cases washing over the first floors of the houses. But when the flood subsided nothing more serious had happened than mussed-up lawns.

SEWAGE BACKS UP

Places where Fire Department aid squads were sent to help because of water in basements include several stores on Sunset Boulevard, near Gardner Junction; 751 South Normandie avenue, Beverly Boulevard and Western avenue and 1417 Georgia street. At Eighth street and Normandie avenue considerable damage was done by sewage backing into several apartment-houses on account of storm-water leakage into the sewage system, Battalion Chief Notley said.

Pacific Electric Railways incurred a few minor tieups. At Mar Vista on the Venice Short Line high water on the inbound track made it necessary to confine the service to one track at this point between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The cloudburst at Burbank washed so much mud over the tracks there that an emergency bus service was installed between that point and the end of the line.

The wind blew down five trolley poles at Belmont Shore on the Seal Beach line and it was two hours before the poles were raised and service resumed

BEGINS AT 6:40 A.M.

The storm began in Los Angeles at 6:40 a.m. and rain continued in a steady fall until 10:02 a.m. It was the second of the week, one occurring Monday and Tuesday when .34 of an inch of water fell. The first storm of the season was October 12.

Santa Anita Dam received the heaviest precipitation of the mountain points where rain gauges are kept by the Los Angeles Flood Control District, according to figures released by the county organization last night. At the dam 3.05 inches fell in twenty-four hours, it was recorded. Sturtevant Camp, with 2.25 inches, Crags Country Club, with 2.15 inches, Bel Air Estates, with 2.16 inches, and Topango Ranger Station with 1.83 inches were other points where heavy rains fell.

Rain gauge readings at other places were as follows: Alta Canada, 1.13 inches; Switzer's Camp 1.32 inches; Oak Wylde, 1.20 inches; Mt. Wilson, 1.25 inches; Santa Anita Ranger Station, 1.52 inches; Azusa Foothill Ranch, 1.27 inches; Claremont Fire Station, .75 of an inch, and Big Pine Park, 1.14 inches.

Three windstorms were reported in yesterday's storm, one at Compton, one four miles south of Anaheim and one at Orange. The Compton wind was at about 10 a.m. It blew into the J. O. MacDonald ranch at Artesia and Long Beach boulevards, tore most of the roof from the barn, snapped off most of a row of eucalyptus trees with trunks from fifteen to twenty inches thick, and broke off most of the trees in a cherry orchard said to be thirty-five years old. It took some of the roof off the Searcy service station and blew a Ford across the street where the car was turned over. The rainfall was so heavy in that district that the water piled up behind a dyke built across Compton Creek and marooned three Mexican families who had to be taken to safety.

The Anaheim wind blew down trees and unroofed a garage and was accompanied by a heavy rainfall. The Orange wind was at about 10:30 a.m. and did considerable damage to roofs, trees and less substantial structures. It stripped the cover off the roof of the home of Capt. Henry Meehan of the State traffic police.

In the last two days, the Southern California Edison Company, hydroelectric power producer, reported, 2.50 inches of water has fallen in the Big Creek country of the high Sierras which is the great electric source for the Southland. Everything above the 5000-foot level is under snow, sixteen inches at Shaver Lake, and twelve inches at Florence Lake.

About the same amount of rainfall was reported in the company's Kern River area, but the rain has stopped, although the weather continues to appear favorable to more. Similarly 2.50 inches were reported in the Kaweah and Tule rivers areas in the San Joaquin Valley.

SNOW PLENTIFUL

Snow covers everything above the 4000 to 5000-foot line in the company's east-end area, which includes the San Bernardino mountain area. The station there reported 1.75 inches of rain. At Big Pine Park the county park department reported, seven inches of snow has fallen and it was still snowing in the forenoon. This is in the San Bernardino area. It was the second snow of the season there but the first, in October, disappeared shortly.

Mt. Wilson reported about 5 inches of snow. Yosemite Park reported 3 inches of snow on the valley floor with the f ll still in progress. Fresno reported a 21-inch snowfall in the high Sierras nearest that city.

"The rain prepared the ground splendidly for spring planting," County Horticultural Commissioner Ryan said, "and it did nothing to hurt anything except that if it continues longer it might do late walnuts some harm."

SAN DIEGO GETS RAIN WITH PROSPECTS OF MORE

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 14. (Exclusive) Sweeping in over Point Loma in the form of a light mist, rain began falling here shortly before noon today. Small craft warnings were ordered hoisted at 10:15 a.m. by Dean Blake, meteorologist.

Chances for a thorough drenching of San Diego county appeared favorable, and Blake issued a county forecast of cloudy weather, with rains for tomorrow with increasing south winds, becoming westerly.

At altitudes more than a mile above San Diego, strong winds prevailed today. At an elevation of 8000 feet, Blake said, the wind velocity was forty-three miles an hour, at 9000 feet forty-seven miles an hour and at 10,000 feet fifty-two miles an hour, the wind direction being principally from the west-southwest.

Since 5 a.m. yesterday two county stations reported rain, El Cajon receiving .11 of an inch and Escondido .04 of an inch, boosting the seasonal precipitation total at each station to 1.48 inches and 1.11 inches, respectively.

San Diego received .19 of an inch in the rain which fell here the night before last and early yesterday.

At 6 a.m. today San Diego experienced the coolest weather of the present season. The thermometer at that time stood at 49 deg., the lowest reading since the beginning of the season on July 1. Temperatures ranging from 3 to 10 deg. lower were reported from back country stations. Tonight's minimum temperature will not be so low, Blake declared.

KERN COUNTY GENEROUSLY SOAKED

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 14. (Exclusive)—Lowering clouds that gathered after a day of sunshine late last night and this morning soaked Bakersfield and vicinity with .45 of an inch of rain and drenched other sections of Kern county with even more generous falls.

The rain was falling in torrents in Glennville district today. A total of 1.21 inches had fallen during the last twenty-four hours, with 1.66 inches reported for the preceding twenty-four hours. There was no break in the storm clouds and the total was expected to go well over 3 inches before night.

Bakersfield's rain last night and this morning brought the storm total to .81 of an inch as compared with 2.45 inches at this date last year.

Snow still covered the mountaintops down as low as Glennville and the rain in the mountain areas was reported to be an extremely cold one.

STORM BLAMED FOR DEATH IN NORTH

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14. (Exclusive)—Northern and Central California took stock tonight as the storm of the last three days passed eastward and found that it had suffered nominal damage but had greatly enhanced the productivity of its soil. Rainfall was general and heavy last night and early today but stopped during the day. More than two feet of snow has fallen in the watersheds of the Sierras, Shastas and Siskiyous.

The factor of life entered the storm situation for consideration.

Gordon McKeown, clerk in a stock broker's office, was killed in the sight of his wife when an automobile turned over after skidding on a slippery street. Mrs. McKeown, bride of only two weeks, had married McKeown after nursing him back to health from a previous automobile accident.

Four University of California students are missing since the storm. They are Anna Rampsperger, senior in physical education, Logan, Utah; Minna Rampsperger, her sister; John Dempster, graduate student and fiance of Anna Rampsperger, and Robert H. Keeler, senior in engineering, Berkeley. They were last heard from at Upper Lake when they pushed on toward Snow Mountain, near the Mendocino county line, afoot, last Friday night. Searching parties started into the district tonight. The hikers were to have come out Monday. The students are thought to have been marooned by high waters in the canyons of the hills.

Three residents of Albany, Alameda county, were rescued from a small boat which had gone adrift in the bay in comber-swept water. They are Ralph Luey, 30 years of age; Kenneth Nickerson, 24, and Robert Bancer, 26.

The effects of the vicious waves at sea off the California coast became evident when the British steamer General Smuts limped into port from Puget Sound with a heavy list due to a cargo shift and with her flag at half mast for a sailor who succumbed on the passage.

Eighteen inches of snow fell in the mountains in the last twenty-four hours. The gauge at Summit, in the Sierras, registered twenty-seven inches at 3 p.m. today. The Weather Bureau predicts continued low temperatures in the upper levels. There have been previous snows this fall, but not under conditions or in sufficient quantity to pack.

The rainfall in inches reported by northern stations to 5 p.m. today is as follows:

	Last 24 hrs.	Seasonal to date	Seasonal last year

NEW PLANE FLYING HERE

The first of the ten new model Fokker trimotored, twelve-passenger cabin monoplanes purchased by Western Air Express, Inc., departed from New York yesterday noon, according to word received here.

Charles "Jimmy" James of Pasadena was at the controls and the mechanics are Drinkwater and Kramer. The passengers are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bebaun and Mr. and Mrs. Wing, friends of Mrs. Anthony Fokker, wife of the builder of the craft.

No effort will be made by James to make fast time to the Coast. He flew to Washington yesterday and probably will not arrive at Vail Field until Saturday.

Former Teller's Hearing Delayed

Because of the illness of Assistant United States Attorney Layng, hearing on a complaint against Arthur V. Dudley, 24 years of age, former teller of the National Bank of Commerce, was continued yesterday by United States Commissioner Head for two weeks.

It is charged by the Federal officials that the young man is $22,000 short in his accounts, due, it is said, to plunging in Julian Petroleum stock. Dudley, who is said to be a nephew of T. H. Dudley, former Mayor of Santa Monica and head of a bank there, lives in that city.

MRS. LOWE GETS TERM IN PRISON

Judge Denies Plea for New Trial for Woman

Defendant Held Guilty in Fraud Charges

Asserted Bridge-Party Theft Aide Faces Jury

Mrs. Ollie Lowe, convicted of attempting to defraud an insurance company in connection with the hold-up last year of a bridge party at the home of Mrs. J. M. Cummings, yesterday was sentenced by Judge Aggeler of Superior Court to serve from one to ten years in San Quentin.

Sentence was imposed after the court had decided Mrs. Lowe's motion for a new trial. Her attorneys immediately served notice of appeal, and Judge Aggeler fixed her bond at $25,000.

Mrs. Lowe originally was charged with robbery, burglary and attempting to defraud an insurance company, but the jury convicted her only on the latter count. On the former counts the jury disagreed. Dep. Dist.-Atty. Menzies and Judge Fricke decided yesterday that she must be retried on those charges December 6.

Mrs. Lowe, a guest at Mrs. Cummings's party, was asserted to have conspired with Evan B. Seitz to rob the women attending the party.

Seitz is now on trial before Judge Aggeler on six counts in connection with the hold-up.

OIL COMPANY GETS LEASE

The Hancock Oil Company, which is planning an oil loading plant on the west bank of Terminal Island, where it holds a lease from the Harbor Department, yesterday was granted a lease by the department of an additional 84,000 square feet adjoining its present holdings, for the erection of tanks. The lease rate is at 5 cents a square foot and will bring in $4243 annually to the Harbor Department.

JONES HEARING POSTPONED

Commission, Attorneys and Witnesses in Wrangle; Case Will Be Started Tonight

Hearing of the appeal of Acting Captain J. J. Jones against his dismissal from the police department for displaying poor judgment in incarcerating Mrs. Christine Collins in the County Psychopathic Ward for her failure to accept a youthful impostor as her missing son was continued yesterday by the Police Commission until 7:30 p.m. tonight. Night sessions were decided when Attorney Paul Schenck, representing Jones, presented an affidavit dclaring he was in the midst of a jury trial in the Superior Court and could not be present at the hearing in the daytime.

Efforts of the commission to handle the proceedings calmly were disrupted when Rev. Gustav Briegleb and Attorney S. S. Hahn hurled charges of prejudice against the commission. Arguments followed back and forth, with Councilman Jacobson, sitting at the desk of the commissioners, adding suggestions. Commissioner Thorpe continued to urge "more speed."

WRANGLE STILLED

At the height of the wrangle President Schweitzer threatened to have Briegleb removed from the room until he was needed as a witness unless he kept quiet. Hahn was informed he was "out of order" and instructed to keep still. At one point Attorney Schenck arose and took a step toward Jacobson, demanding to know if the Councilman intimated that he, Schenck, "had perjured himself" in asking for a continuance.

In presenting his request for a continuance Schenck explained under oath that he was appearing in a criminal case, and that his presence in court was necessary. He expressed a willingness to attend night hearings in order not to delay the Jones case.

Attorney Hahn jumped up and declared he had advised Mrs. Collins not to testify in the Jones hearing, "because the commissioners were disqualified, unfit and prejudiced." He said further that Mrs. Collins's testimony might incriminate her, and csause her to be "thrown in the madhouse."

HAHN REBUKED

He was taken to task by President Schweitzer for the term "madhouse." Schweitzer asserted that Mrs. Collins had not been thrown in the madhouse, but had been placed in the psychopathic ward for observation.

"You, as an attorney," said Schweitzer to Hahn, "know that in court you would be checked up for using the term madhouse instead of psychopathic ward."

Rev. Mr. Briegleb expressed a belief that the commission is prejudiced. He said that he had been subpoenaed as a witness, but was not going to testify on the ground the commission was prejudiced, and also because he had announced he would talk over the radio tonight.

Councilman Jacobson urged that "all co-operate in the hearing," and insisted the commission take the transcript of the Council hearing as the testimony for Mrs. Collins and her witnesses.

"That testimony taken at the Council hearing was incompetent, not legal and has no official standing," asserted Schweitzer.

WILL RUSH HEARING

Thorpe made a motion for quick action and Schweitzer and the other commissioners said they were agreed on that point. In the midst of more arguments Schweitzer considered a motion to adjourn until 7:30 o'clock tonight, which carried.

Following the Police Commission meeting Attorney Hahn, Mrs. Collins and Rev. Mr. Briegleb called on Mayor Cryer and complained of the attitude of President Schweitzer at the board meeting. Hahn and Briegleb asserted President Schweitzer showed strong feeling in the case of Capt. Jones, and contended that the Police Commission president was thus disqualified to preside at tonight's hearing. They suggested the Mayor preside at the meeting in Schweitzer's place.

Cryer replied that there was no occasion for feeling or irritation in the handling of the Jones case, and said he will look into the matter before the evening meeting.

MIGHTY SHIP TESTS SPEED

Sponsors of U.S.S. Lexington Hope to Reach 180,000 Horsepower and Thirty-four Knots

The sea's mightiest ship, U.S.S. Lexington, put to sea at midnight last night for the final rigorous tests which, her designers and builders hope, will prove her worth the seven years' effort and $45,000,000 that she cost.

The early hours of daylight this morning will be spent at sea in working the Lexington's huge turbo-electric power plant up to full power and then she will rush coastward, where, over the Point Vicente measured mile, every ounce of her 180,000 horsepower will be loosened simultaneously in an effort to drive her at her designed speed of thirty-four knots, or forty statute miles an hour.

On board the great aircraft carrier are more than a score of the world's foremost naval architects and marine engineers, for on the outcome of today's acceptance trials rests largely the future of electric-drive as propulsive power for projected merchant liners and men-of-war. Also watching the trials is the Naval Board of Inspection and Survey, headed by Capt. Franklin D. Karns, senior member, and representatives of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, builder of the Lexington; together with engineers of the General Electric Company, who made her machinery, and that of her sister, the U.S.S. Saratoga.

MADRAS PICTURE EXECUTIVE TO STUDY HOLLYWOOD IDEAS

A. Narayanan of Madras, India, executive of the Exhibitors' Film Service of Bombay, arrived in Hollywood yesterday to make a survey of the motion-picture industry and to take back to his native land plans for a modern film plant for the studio with which he is associated.

India produces more pictures than does England, and at a cost far below that of English and American-made pictures, he said. This is due to the fact that labor is cheap in India, as are materials, and to the fact that the producing companies of India do not construct elaborate sets, but use natural scenery.

There are six companies producing in India, according to Narayanan, which have specialized on religious and mythological plays in the past, but which now are filming more modern dramas of society life and comedies. In spite of the fact that these concerns produce many pictures Narayanan is of the opinion that there always will be a market in India for productions made in Hollywood. The big drawback, he pointed out, is the scarcity of theaters in India.

As an example of the low cost of producing pictures, Narayanan said the leading female star in India is paid $400 a month while the leading man gets a salary of $100 a month. This, he said, is a large salary in India.

BAN PLACED ON MARCO'S CAFE VISITS

County Jail Inmate, Found "Dining Out" Downtown, Placed Under Strict Rule

Albert Marco, confined in the County Jail awaiting appeal following his conviction on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon in a shooting affair in the Ship Cafe, hereafter must take all of his meals in the County Jail.

The order was issued more than a month ago by E. W. Biscailuz, Undersheriff, it was revealed yesterday, when the Undersheriff discovered that Marco, accompanied by two deputy sheriffs, had eaten luncheon in a popular downtown cafe.

The Marco episode was discovered by Biscailuz himself, who happened to be eating luncheon in the same cafe. An investigation was ordered at once and the two officers called upon to explain their actions.

The explanation was that Marco had obtained permission to leave the jail in their custody to attend to his personal affairs at a downtown bank. Failing to complete this business before the noon hour, Marco suggested that they eat at a near-by cafe and finish the business later. The officers agreed.

In the future, Undersheriff Biscailuz said last night, Marco or any other prisoner must take his meals in the County Jail regardless of his business engagements. The jail serves two meals daily, one early in the morning and the other at 4:30 in the afternoon.

Fruit Company Auditor Charged With Forgeries

Investigation of a long series of raised checks which are asserted to have resulted in the loss of more than $20,000 to the Malkan Fruit Company of 722 Market Court, led to the arrest last night of Farrell McKeen, 38 years of age, of 1105 North Louise street, Glendale, bookkeeper and auditor of the company. He is charged with suspicion of forgery.

The arrest was made by Detective Lieutenants Koehn and Faber of the Newton division on complaint of B. O. Marshall, an official of the fruit concern. He told the police that McKeen has been in the employ of his company for eighteen months.

Within the past seven months, he said, more than seventy-five checks issued by the company were found to have been raised when presented to the bank for collection.

German Poet Will be Topic

This series of lectures, which has so far attracted large attendance, is under the direction of Prof. William Diamond of U.C.L.A., and is being contributed to by professors from various Southern California universities and colleges. The lecture will be given in the lecture room of the library at 8 p.m.

RAW FOOD EXPONENT WILL GIVE LECTURES

Rules for health, the efficacy of which he declares he has demonstrated himself, will be expounded in a series of seven lectures beginning tonight, by Dr. St. Louis Estes, founder of the raw-food movement, of which he is the head. The lectures will be given at Trinity Auditorium nightly for seven nights.

TWO SHOT, ONE KILLED IN QUARREL

Husband Wounds Wife and Man, Then Ends Life With Gun

After shooting his wife and a man last night, Robert Johnson, 23 years of age, turned his revolver on himself and shot himself through the temple. He died, but his wife, Mrs. Iva Johnson, 19, and the other man, Bernard May, 36, were not seriously wounded. They are at the General Hospital, Mrs. Johnson with a wound in her jaw and May with a superficial chest wound.

The shooting took place at the home of Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Bowman, at 1525 Armacost street, Sawtelle.

Johnson, who was a laborer in the employ of the Edison Company, had been living with his wife and their 16-months-old child at 1543 Euclid avenue, Santa Monica. Quarrels had resulted in several temporary separations of the couple but recently they had been living together.

Last night the couple drove to the Bowman home, where Mrs. Johnson alighted from their automobile while Johnson went on alone. About ten minutes later he returned to the Bowman house and entered the living-room. He saw that Mrs. Johnson was smoking a cigarette and reproached her for doing so. Then he turned to May, who was also in the room, and asked angrily whether May had given his wife the cigarette.

Before May could reply, Johnson whipped out a large-caliber revolver and began to fire, first at his wife and then, when he saw her fall to the floor, at May. A bullet struck May a glancing blow in the chest, but he was able to flee with Johnson in pursuit still firing. About a block from the house, May fell to the ground and Johnson, apparently believing he had killed May, turned his revolver on himself.

SCHOMER TO GIVE PAPER HITTING WAR

Playwright and Scientist to Make First Appearance Here at Hotel Banquet

Presentation of a paper, "The Scientific Way to Control and Prevent War," will be presented by Abraham S. Schomer, playwright and scientist, at a banquet and entertainment to be conducted in the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel at 6:30 p.m. on the 21st inst., under the auspices of the Root Cause-of-War Society.

Dr. Schomer has studied war and its causes for more than twenty-five years and this will mark his first personal appearance here.

Professors of the University of Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles have approved Dr. Schomer's researches and papers and many educators and civic leaders will be present at the meeting.

Ather speakers on the program include Karl T. Waugh, dean of the Trojan college of liberal arts; Aaron J. Rosanoff, Trojan psychologist; J. Harold Williams, associate professor of education at U.C.L.A.; Rev. Edward F. Evemeyer, First Reformed Church; Mrs. K. DeJusth, associate president of the Federation of Hungarian Women; Dyonis S. Morandini, professor from Prince Joseph Institute, Budapest; Frederick W. Roman, executive member of the League of Nations Association. Earnest W. Tiegs, dean of university college, will act as toastmaster.

The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace also has passed a favorable opinion on the thesis of Dr. Schomer and declared it to be scientifically valid.

In an effort to convince American women that they should own and fly their own airplanes, Lady Mary Heath, British sportswoman and air enthusiast, who recently established a 24,700 foot altitude record for women with her airplanes, is coming to the United States in the near future.

ENDURING AS MOUNT BAKER

Put new CYCOL on trial in your motor; prove its "endurance beyond belief"

Stability The new Cycol will stand the hardest kind of usage. It is refined to meet the severer conditions of heat and pressure developed by the modern high compression engines, assuring you an unbroken oil film where heat, pressure and friction are greatest.

No Acids The new Cycol refining process eliminates the use of acids, though most refiners use them. While acids clear the "crude oil" they chemically change its structure and composition, thus seriously cutting its lubricating value.

Such oils break down under engine temperatures. They distill off and escape as vapor through the breather exhaust.

The new refining process of Cycol selects from the "crude" those elements of greatest lubricating value and stability in performance, rejecting those elements which readily break down under engine heat and cause excessive carbon deposits.

So Cycol gives a protective oil film on cylinder walls and moving parts, not vapor at the breather pipe.

Less Carbon As to carbon, Cycol like all oils deposits some carbon. But it deposits less carbon than any other oil. The most exhaustive tests have proven that statement.

Even more important, the carbon that is deposited by Cycol is soft and easily removable. It is not hard or sticky and cannot scratch a cylinder.

Prove it yourself Cycol gives you the finest results you have ever known—more perfect lubrication, "endurance beyond belief" and the elimination of carbon troubles.

So fill your crank case with Cycol. You can identify it by the new transparent green-gold color. Sold wherever the Associated Gasoline and Cycol Motor Oil signs are shown. ASSOCIATED OIL COMPANY, Refiners of

YOUTHFUL ORGANIST TRIUMPHS

Fernando Germani of Rome is Positive Genius of Difficult Instrument

BY ISABEL MORSE JONES

Los Angeles missed one of the great treats of music when it let Hollywood have the only concert given in this vicinity by the boy-organist, Fernando Germani. This young protege of Bernardino Molinari's, who is the official organist of the Augusteum concerts in Rome, is a marvelous musician. He would be that, no matter what the instrument he played. Like Segovia of the guitar, Germani has selected an instrument not too favorably known by concert audiences and he has taught the world its possibilities.

He is but 21 and has come to America unheralded. Hollywood High School was fortunate enough to secure him for one morning concert yesterday and the Memorial Auditorium was filled with wildly enthusiastic people, when he had finished a short hour of superlative organ-playing. Many of the Los Angeles organists were in attendance. He has come to the Coast directly from New York, only playing at Ann Arbor on the way.

Of course the concert began with Bach, but this time it was Bach with a youthful flair for rhythm and the tenderness of melody. "A Noel," by Claude D'Aquin, the ancient composer of "Le Coucou" in which pianists have delighted, was a joyous ripple of clear organ tone. The Cesar Franck Chorale demonstrated Germani's power. He knows exactly how to cut organ notes to the best advantage, leaving a clean outline in phrases and proving that organ playing can be as delightful to listen to and as intelligible to the ear, as that of a piano.

His phenomenal technic enables Germani to do stunts if he cares to, but the amazing things he does with ordinary stops and his astounding pedaling are not tricks, they are legitimate efforts to enhance the music. His playing has universal appeal.

Germani included his teachers, M. E. Bossi, who taught him piano, and R. Manari, with whom he studied organ in his native city of Rome, on his program. The Siciliana and Giga of M. Bossi, which was in manuscript, might have been written as a flute concerto with orchestral accompaniment. Germani was a flute virtuoso and orchestral conductor in one, only his instrument was the organ.

Studio Sinfonico, by the same composer, was a miniature symphony of merit under Germani's fingers.

His teacher's versatility was apparent in the last number, a "Golloquio con le Rondin," which was a model of modern originality. Overtones and unusual harmonic relationships proved the organ (when played by such a genius) to be the ideal instrument for modern writing.

Germani's own Gigue, composed when he was 16, was an amiable bit of rhythmic, classic writing displaying the resources of organ color. E. Torres's Saetas was a study of bells and overtones and the concert ended all too soon with a concert etude written for this American tour of Germani's by his teacher, R. Manari. It was a pedal study in which the youthful virtuoso laughed at enormous difficulties and played runs with his toes that would have been commendable from a Rachmaninoff on the piano.

Eugene, Or., is this young Italian's next stop, but it is hoped that he will return for a longer stay next year.

Men's Chorus Opens Season of Singing

The Ellis Club began its forty-first season auspiciously with a concert at the Philharmonic Auditorium last night. Conductor J. B. Poulin presented an interestingly varied program and was assisted by the Boy's Choir of St. Paul's Cathedral and Leona Mourton, contralto.

The club was in a festive mood and sang with contagious enthusiasm. Good tone work distinguishes this men's organization and refinement of phrasing is ever characteristic of Mr. Poulin's direction. Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson not only contributed a large share to the success of the evening with her accompaniments, but was represented as a composer in the attractive Spanish choral, "Manuela," for which she received much applause.

The small boys from St. Paul's who had been admirably trained by W. W. Fitch, sang Gretchaninoff's "Cherubic Hymn" and the negro spiritual, "Listen to the Lambs," by Nathaniel Dett, with the club. Their fresh, clear, young voices soared above those of the older men and blended delightfully with them. The touch of sentiment added by these children in musical association with their elders made an interesting episode in the evening's enjoyment.

Miss Mourton sang two groups. She was introduced to Los Angeles by Gluck's "O Del Mio Dolce Ardor." The subsequent numbers by Horsman, Tonnele and Henschel were unfamiliar and did not take so readily with her audience. Her stage presence was not ingratiating and she seemed constrained in her singing although she posseses a naturally good voice.

The next Ellis Club concert takes place in January.

COLLEGIANS STAGE SHOW

A big college vaudeville show will be staged by students of Compton Junior College at the school auditorium tomorrow evening. Some bright and unusual novelties are promised. There will be four large choruses, among them the Tartar Amazonian chorus and the Varsity Drag group. Two one-act plays, "Gentlemen, the King" and "French Without a Master," some comedy skits, instrumental numbers and other novelties make up the balance of the program.

WALLACE REPLACES D'ARRAST

M.-G.-M. and Universal Make Elaborate Christmas Films; Robert Armstrong Borrowed by Fox to be Featured; May McAvoy Likely to Leave Warner Brothers

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

While Harry D'Arrast is making up his mind what to do—whether to sign a contract with another company or take a trip to Europe — Paramount is going right ahead with preparations for Maurice Chevalier's initial American-made picture, "The Innocents of Paris," by selecting a new director.

MAURICE CHEVALIER

Richard Wallace is the man chosen to guide the French star's artistic footsteps through the film, in which Chevalier is to sing some of his celebrated French songs. Wallace has not yet signed his contract at this writing, but it is understood that he is doing so today.

CHRISTMAS FEATURES WILL BE ABUNDANT

From the outlook, many Christmas pictures will be made by the various companies.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Gus Edwards are working on a revue to be called "The Christmas Party," and Universal has hired Tom Terriss to film a sound version of Dickens's "Christmas Carol."

Gus Edwards himself will appear in the M.-G.-M. film, which will be for the most part otherwise a kid revue. He will sing a song which he has just composed, called "Lon Chaney Will Get You if You Don't Watch Out."

In "The Christmas Carol" Tom Terriss is to play the role of Scrooge himself, while supporting parts will be played by a number of stage actors, and typical London Christmas sounds of Dickens's day, including the carols, the various cries of street vendors, etc., will be included in the picture, which is also to have dialogue.

Fox Borrows Armstrong

Having given the field of actors of Robert Armstrong's type the once over, and finding nobody the organization felt to be as good as he for the part, Fox films have borrowed Robert Armstrong from Pathe to be featured in an all-talking picture, "Big Time," which Howard Hawks will direct and in which Marian Nixon will have the leading feminine role.

ROBERT ARMSTRONG

Armstrong recently completed "Leathernecks," and among his lately made films not yet released, are Pathe's "Ned McCobb's Daughter" and "Shady Lady."

May McAvoy's Contract

While nothing at all has yet been decided, we understand that May McAvoy will very likely leave Warner Brothers at the end of her present contract, which expires in January. The Warners hold an option on Miss McAvoy's services, and she has received a number of offers from other companies. One of these companies is First National, which company, it is known, has long desired to annex the little star.

MAY McAVOY

In the meantime, Miss McAvoy has completed her quota of pictures for the Warners for the current year, and is to have a vacation until the expiration of her contract, unless the Warners decide to loan her to some other company.

She will leave within a few days for Palm Springs, where she will spend the next two weeks, always, of course, provided the Warners do not let another company have her. She has been suffering from a severe cold, and feels the need of a change, she says.

Dolores Del Rio Tomorrow

After having traveled more than half way around this old world, Dolores Del Rio comes home tomorrow to start work in Edwin Carewe's talking version of Longfellow's "Evangeline."

Notables Will Turn Out for "Silver Cord"

Seldom, in Los Angeles, has such a representative audience been assembled as will greet the opening of the Los Angeles Repertory Theater Monday evening, according to announcement. The sponsors of this new movement in theatricals are emphasizing the fact that the general public will be admitted to all performances, including the first. An erroneous impression has been created that only patrons and subscribers to the play-season will be favored at the doors, but such is not the case.

Outstanding civic representatives and leaders of society, financial world, stage celebrities and motion-picture stars, in a glittering array of gowns and jewels, will assemble at the Figueroa Playhouse to inaugurate the opening season. The advance sale of seats has been extremely heavy for the entire engagement of four weeks, for which "The Silver Cord" will be presented.

Air Picture to Replace 'March'

Last-minute patronage for Erich Von Stroheim's "The Wedding March" is resulting in crowded houses at the Criterion Theater. "The Wedding March" will be on view only today and tomorrow. Saturday the Criterion will present Colleen Moore in "Lilac Time" for the first time popularly.

Plans for a gala premiere of "Lilac Time" at the Criterion Saturday night are now reaching fruition. From present indications nearly the entire cast will be present. Early next week a special aviation night will be held to which more than 400 aviators now in the Los Angeles district have been invited.

The Criterion is building up a clientele of steady patrons who have come to realize that only the so-called super-specials are presented at the Seventh and Grand playhouse. "Wings," "The King of Kings," "Sunrise," "The Wedding March," "Lilac Time" and the forthcoming premiere of "Abie's Irish Rose" all have contributed to the building up of this discriminating patronage.

'BIG-TOP' EXHIBIT PLEASES

Two-Ring Circus at Shrine Proves Boon to Kiddies; "Slide for Life" Seen

BY MURIEL BABCOCK

A two-ring circus with clowns, ponies, acrobats, kicking mules and last, but far from least in importance, the Cossacks, famed Russian horsemen, invaded the great stage of the Shrine Auditorium yesterday and evoked joy in the hearts of scores of young folk and not a few older folk who made up an enthusiastic audience at two evening shows.

It is surprising how admirably adapted the huge stage, which has served as a magnificent setting for grand opera on numerous occasions, is for the needs of the circus troupe holding forth there now.

On either side have been erected the rings around which trot the trained horses. In the center is acrobatic and tight-rope apparatus. Circling the whole is a space wide enough to permit a miniature pony chariot race upon part of which the Russian Cossacks gallop swiftly.

These Cossacks in daring feats of horsemanship are a feature of the circus. Racing their steeds across the stage, they slide off and on the horses' backs, picking up handkerchiefs with their teeth, riding backward, forward and every which way.

Another colorful note of the show is furnished in the "slide for life." One Alfred Adele, formerly a performer at the Madison Square Garden, balancing on his head, slides down a tight rope stretched from the balcony, over the heads of the audience, to the stage.

Adele, who has been sick, insisted upon "going on" for this stunt last night. Three times he started his slide during the first show and three times, while the audience held its breath, he slipped, fell and saved himself from crashing downward by catching the tight rope with his hands. After the third fall, the organ boomed out the music for the next act, a clown band, and Adele retired to the wings, seemingly defeated. Undaunted, however, two hours later, during the second show, he again attempted his slide and this time made it to the accompaniment of ringing cheers and whistles from the audience.

A pony which kicks rubber balls far out into the audience, a mule who walks on his two hind feet a distance of twenty yards, tumblers, a dancing clown on startling tall stilts, dancing horses and bareback riders, comprise some of the other "big-top" atractions.

The circus takes the better part of an hour. Preceding it is the feature picture, "Through the Breakers," from a story by Owen Davis, with a South Sea locale. There are some beautiful pictorial glimpses, and the story, although not unusual, has been developed with fair interest. Holmes Herbert and Margaret Livingston are seen in the leading roles and are capable.

JOE BROWN SOUGHT BY THEATER

United Artists' Negotiates for Comedian to Appear With "Hit of Show"

If negotiations now under way are successfully terminated, the United Artists Theater will have a theatrical plum to offer audiences with its next picture, "Hit of the Show," which will open Wednesday. The United Artists is negotiating with John Considine, Jr., of United Artists productions, who is in New York, for the services of Joe E. Brown, star of "Hit of the Show," and known for his comic talents on the musical comedy stage. Brown signed a contract with Considine recently to go to New York immediately for a featured role in a new talking picture. The United Artists Theater is endeavoring to have this role postponed so that Brown can be secured as the feature attraction of a stage show to accompany the new picture.

"Hit of the Show" is the first R.C.A. Photophone talking picture to play locally. The entire film industry will be interested in the debut of this latest device. The picture has a score made up of the popular show hits of the past five years, as well as several effective talking sequences.

ALVARADO'S DREAMS

While still going to school and riding the ranch owned by his father, Don Alvarado, who is featured with Lya De Putti and Warner Oland in Columbia's picture, "The Scarlet Lady," this week at Pantages Theater, had dreams of making a name for himself in the motion-picture world. This he has done. From a small role given him in a Warner production he has climbed the ladder to success. In "The Scarlet Lady" Alvarado portrays a Russian prince. He will appear in person tomorrow night at the theater.

MIDNIGHT BRINGS JOLSON

Tonight at Warner Brothers Theater there will be a special midnight showing of "The Singing Fool," with Al Jolson himself on hand to show the folks how he looks as a newlywed. This will be the first time that the "world's greatest entertainer" makes a personal appearance in Los Angeles since he officiated as master of ceremonies at Warner's when it opened last April.

He will, of course, sing "Sonny Boy" and "Rainbow Round My Shoulders," his song hits from the picture, and others in addition. This special showing of "The Singing Fool" was arranged to take care of the thousands who are unable to see the picture during its regular run, which positively ends Sunday night.

TEMPERATURES WILL GO ON AIR

Minimums Hereafter to Be Broadcast

Don Lee Station Resumes Former Custom

Federal Meteorologist Makes Address

BY DR. RALPH L. POWER

The Don Lee station, KHJ, will once more broadcast the minimum-temperature reports as a special service to citrus growers at 7:55 p.m. every day in the week.

As a preliminary to the service Floyd D. Young, government meteorologist in charge of the weather forecast service for the Southern California division, gave a brief talk over KHJ earlier this week.

He sketched briefly how the Federal government, in co-operation with orange, lemon and grapefruit growers, gathers advance data regarding weather conditions and how a relay system accumulates the information accurately and speedily a half-hour before it is broadcast via radio.

Hundreds of thermometers in the various groves are checked by a large band of volunteer "night riders" before the composite information is broadcast.

The minimum-temperature forecast was given for four winters by The Times when it was the owner of KHJ. Last year Don Lee, new owner of the station, continued the service, and again for 1928-'29.

TWO PLEAD GUILTY IN RUM CASE

Warehouse Liquor Plot Suspects to be Sentenced in January

With the entry of two pleas in the court of United States District Judge James the so-called "warehouse liquor cases" virtually were concluded yesterday. Maj. Donald M. McRae, former West Point man and once a close adviser to Col. Robert E. Frith, then Federal dry administrator, pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. A. M. Morrison, newspaper man, also pleaded guilty. The case was continued until the January calendar for passing of sentence.

About a dozen others had previously pleaded guilty or pleaded nolle contendre, and have been sentenced or are waiting for a hearing on sentence in January.

It was charged that more than 700 cases of whisky were stolen from a Federal warehouse and converted to private use.

Calories Face Expert's Fire

In his lecture this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Southwest Building, 130 South Broadway, Dr. Philip M. Lovell will simplify the basic principles of the study of dietetics, the first of which, he maintains, is freedom from the multitude of refining and denaturing processes which characterize modern food preparation.

In this connection the dietitian will uproot the hypothesis of calories which, he asserts, "is one of the most pernicious of food dogmas, and has done more damage in its over-feeding results than any other known theory of nutrition."

PUPILS TO OBSERVE SCHOLARSHIP DAY

Roosevelt High School today will celebrate scholarship day by a double program, to be presented by the Aldeberan Honor Society, in an afternoon assembly in the auditorium for the student body, and a banquet at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria for the Aldeberan club members. Hugh H. Pomeroy, executive secretary of parks, playgrounds and beaches, will be the speaker on the mid-day program, and Dr. W. D. Moriarty will speak at the banquet. Percy Solotoy, Roosevelt alumnus, will act as master of ceremonies.

SYNDICATE WILL TAKE OVER HOTEL

Beverly Hills Hostelry to Become Part of Chain Now Operating in Nation

The Beverly Hills Hotel will pass under control and operation of The Interstate Company of New York "next month or about the first of next year," it was announced yesterday.

Papers consummating the deal, negotiations for which have been going on for some time, were signed Tuesday night by Mrs. Margaret J. Anderson, owner, and Hugh C. Leighton of New York, president of the company. The consideration is announced as "about $1,500,000."

The hotel was built for Mrs. Anderson and opened by her in 1912. She has operated it continuously ever since. Formerly she operated the Hollywood Hotel, under lease, for about ten years.

The Interstate Company operates a nation-wide chain of hotels, tobacco and news stands. Its only California hotel heretofore has been the Feather Inn, Northern California. It has several tobacco and news stands in Los Angeles. The principal ones are in the Pacific Electric Railway's main station and in its subway terminal.

Mrs. Anderson, it was announced, retires at least temporarily from business. She continues ownership of properties adjoining the hotel on the north.

SEARS, ROEBUCK PLANS ADDITION

President of Company Here for Short Visit

Ninth Street Building Will Receive New Unit

Gen. Wood Asserts Business Outlook Pleasing

Announcing plans for the construction of an addition costing possibly $500,000 to the Ninth-street and Boyle-avenue store, Gen. R. E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., arrived here yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Wood and by G. E. Humphrey, construction manager.

"Recommendations providing for this enlargement were submitted three months ago by C. R. Cook, manager of the southwest section of our business, and the purpose of my visit is to decide the extent of the development," said Gen. Wood at the Biltmore.

BUSINESS GROWS

"The splendid development of business in California, Utah, Nevada and Arizona since the plant was established has justified the additional investment. We have been renting warehouse facilities and the development will be largely to take care of this part of the business. The addition will conform in architecture and individuality to the present structure and will equip us for the era of prosperity which business appears to anticipate quite generally throughout the nation.

"I congratulate California on the selection of Herbert Hoover and personally feel that he is fully equipped to give America a sound, progressive, business-like administration."

HERE FOR FIVE DAYS

Gen. Wood arrived from San Francisco, where the new retail store of the company is to open March 1, next. He will be here five days.

Gen. Wood was quartermaster-general of the United States Army during the World War and for ten years was chief quartermaster on the construction of the Panama Canal.

"I do not believe America will need a second canal in the Panama zone for at least a generation," he said.

Funeral Rites Conducted for Naval Officer

Funeral services were conducted at Forest Lawn Cemetery yesterday for Lieut. Walter W. Siegrist, formerly attached to the torpedo school at North Island, who was killed as the result of an explosion last Friday night in San Diego.

He was the son of Mrs. Carl Siegrist of 2968 Eleventh avenue, this city. The entire staff of naval officers from the torpedo school attended the funeral. Burial took place at Forest Lawn.

Lieut. Siegrist, Ensign Joseph B. Danhoff and Harry McArthur, son of a Los Angeles attorney, the latter also dead as a result of burns received in the explosion, were together in an apartment in San Diego, when a kerosene lamp set fire to a lace curtain. The explosion followed. Ensign Danhoff, who attended the services, denied that he had told San Diego police that the explosion was caused by a can of alcohol, and attributed the blast to a quantity of gasoline. A naval board of inquest also discounted the alcohol theory.

RITES SET FOR TODAY

Mrs. Cox's Body to Be Taken to Kansas City for Burial

The funeral of Mrs. Maude E. Cox, who died on Tuesday at the California Lutheran Hospital, will be conducted this morning at her home, 803 North Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills. Mrs. Cox, who was 58 years of age, will be buried in the family cemetery at Kansas City. She was a direct descendant of Thomas Paine.

Mrs. Cox leaves three daughters and one son, Mrs. Jack Alfred Rameson and Mrs. William Gutsch of this city and Mrs. Walter R. Hilker and Fred M. Cox of Beverly Hills. She also leaves a sister, Mrs. Clara Owens, of Council Grove, Kan., and four brothers, Claude E. Vrooman of St. Louis and Clarence, Carl and Howard Vrooman of Kansas City.

NORTH DAKOTANS TO RALLY

Former residents of Casselton, N. D., will hold their sixth annual reunion the 18th inst., in the picnic grounds of Exposition Park, Los Angeles.

PROTEST DOCKETED

ESTATE SEEKS HUGE LOAN

Huntington Executors Get Court's Permission to Borrow $9,500,000 to Pay Bills

Probate Judge Desmond yesterday granted the petition of the executors of the estate of Henry E. Huntington, traction magnate, asking permission to borrow $9,500,000, pledging all the assets of the esate as security for the loan. The executors were represented in court by Attorneys Gibson, Dunn and Crucher.

According to the petitioners the loan will be secured by five notes, each running five years at 6 per cent.

The notes, the court was informed, have been sold to the Harris Trust and Savings Bank and E. H. Rollins & Son, Chicago bankers, at 96 per cent of their face value plus accrued interest.

The loan is being negotiated, according to the petitioners, to raise money in paying off obligations, after which the balance of the estate will be distributed among the heirs.

The estate was recently appraised at $42,481,663.09, the petition says. It also points out that there is cash on hand amounting to $1,206,074.46.

The money raised by the loan will go toward paying off claims against the estate totaling $3,626,461.07, also others which are not specifically set down. One, however, is the inheritance tax amounting to $6,872,497.54. Of this amount the estate already has paid $673,421.05, the petition says.

SHIPPING NEWS

AND ACTIVITIES AT LOS ANGELES HARBOR

SWEDISH LINER IN MAIDEN BOW

Johnson Line's New Carrier Premier of Fleet

Craft Held Equal to Finest Calling at Port

Local Business Group Given Reception Aboard

Sweden sent another smart ship to Los Angeles yesterday which might well say that when great continental lines enter greater ships in the Pacific run, she will match them. In the arrival of the Margaret Johnson yesterday, she has matched them, according to two parties of fifty steamship and business men each, who were guests for luncheon or dinner aboard her yesterday.

She is larger and faster than any of the Johnson Line's fleet of fast, new motorships, and carries sixty outside accommodations for cabin and intermediate passengers, aside from bountiful refrigeration and general cargo holds. All were almost filled, fifty-one travelers arriving, of whom many denied they even got sick in a ninety-mile wind on the North Sea, so seaworthy was the ship.

SCHEDULE BROKEN

Rated at thirteen and one-half knots scheduled speed, Capt. David Liljequist, her master and line commodore, reported she eclipsed that mark materially on the latter half of her run from Gothenborg, her first trip since commissioning September 22. That record was made without entirely opening her twin screw, 4800 horsepower Burmeister-Wain motors to capacity.

Among her passengers were Dr. and Mrs. Gunnar Nycander of Stockholm on a round-trip honeymoon; Mrs. Eloise Norton Van Norn, New York globe-trotter; Mrs. Charles Scotto Wilson of Hollywood, and Miss Magno Soderberg, who was greeted at the gangplank by her fiance, Oscar Engelbrecht, Riverside engineer, who preceded her to prepare a new home in America.

Gottlieb Eckdahl & Son, general passenger agents for the line at Los Angeles, were hosts at luncheon, among the guests being Clay Hutchison, general agent, Panama Mail Line; Jack Cruickshank, general agent Union Pacific and Santa Fe; Howard Bowen, general agent, Canadian National Railways; Thomas Hall of Thomas Cook & Sons; D. M. Ferguson, travel bureau; Arthur Frieberger, passenger agent, General Steamship Corporation; S. J. Murphy of C. J. Lehman's offices, and G. Hausman and C. M. Leeds, special representative of the president of the American Express Company.

GROUP FETED

"Hap" McLaurin, freight agent for the line, entertained three score last night, including William Salter, deputy customs collector; M. M. Mullen, chief appraiser; C. G. Gatley, port immigration chief; A. P. Messenger, local head of plant quarantine; V. Valdez, consul for Chile; J. Baum, representing The Times; Dan Ingram of Ingram Paper Company; E. J. Chapin, Fruit Dispatch Company; Capt. C. P. Wright, San Pedro postmaster; M. C. Casey, E. G. Early, Mutual Orange Growers, and R. N. Wohlwend of Sunkist Orange Growers' Association.

The liner was harassed by rain in discharging her cargo of Scandinavian newsprint and Central American coffee, and it was uncertain whether she would depart for North Pacific ports until this morning.

GRACE LINE PLANS TO REFRIGERATE FLEET

First of the fleet of W. R. Grace & Co. ships to be refrigerated, the Capac will leave this port early in December with Pacific Coast perishables for Central America and the west coast of South America, according to H. R. McLaurin, local agent, yesterday.

Refrigeration is a departure for the line, coming about through experimental shipments made by McLaurin personally, of oranges to Chile within the last year, results proving so gratifying as to prompt installation of refrigeration in every ship of the line. Seven will be so equipped as they arrive from the southern hemisphere. Artisans will board the ships here, install the wooden and cork tanks, and the machinery will be supplied when the ships reach San Francisco.

Every ship, according to prospects, will go south with her refrigerated capacity of apples and oranges in season, and in turn will bring north Chilean grapes and whatever other Chilean fruits are permitted by American plant quarantine laws.

Instructions are expected momentarily from Washington authorizinz the removal of the tanker Washtenaw from the main channel, where she sank two months ago after receiving repairs at a local shipyard. Estimates on the probable cost already have gone forward through the offices of Maj. C. P. Gross, United States Army district engineer at Los Angeles.

President Johnson, formerly of the Manchuria, definitely has been scheduled to take the President Harrison's run out of New York in the globe-circling service of the Dollar Line, January 31, according to George Neil, district passenger agent. The new liner is due at Los Angeles February 18. The President Harrison will be taken out of her schedule and placed in dry dock for reconditioning of passenger accommodations, similar to that of the President Polk. The President Johnson already is on dry dock at Newport News receiving a complete reconditioning for the new service.

American Hawaiian docks were handling three ships yesterday. The chartered freighter Maliko came in from the east coast to drop 2300 tons of pianos, radios, autos, cranberry sauce and chocolates, while the Virginian is loading to sail tomorrow for the east coast. The Golden Sun will sail for China Saturday after taking on 85,000 cases of gasoline, 500 bales of cotton and canned fish.

Losing an anchor overboard in the main channel inbound, the Levant Arrow received it back again yesterday afternoon. It was recovered by a derrick barge of Merritt, Chapman & Scott after four hours of dragging.

Tom Mosich's fishing boat Eight Brothers was towed to Los Angeles shipyards yesterday from Turtle Bay by the Jeannette R., after damaging her rudder, drifting in a storm.

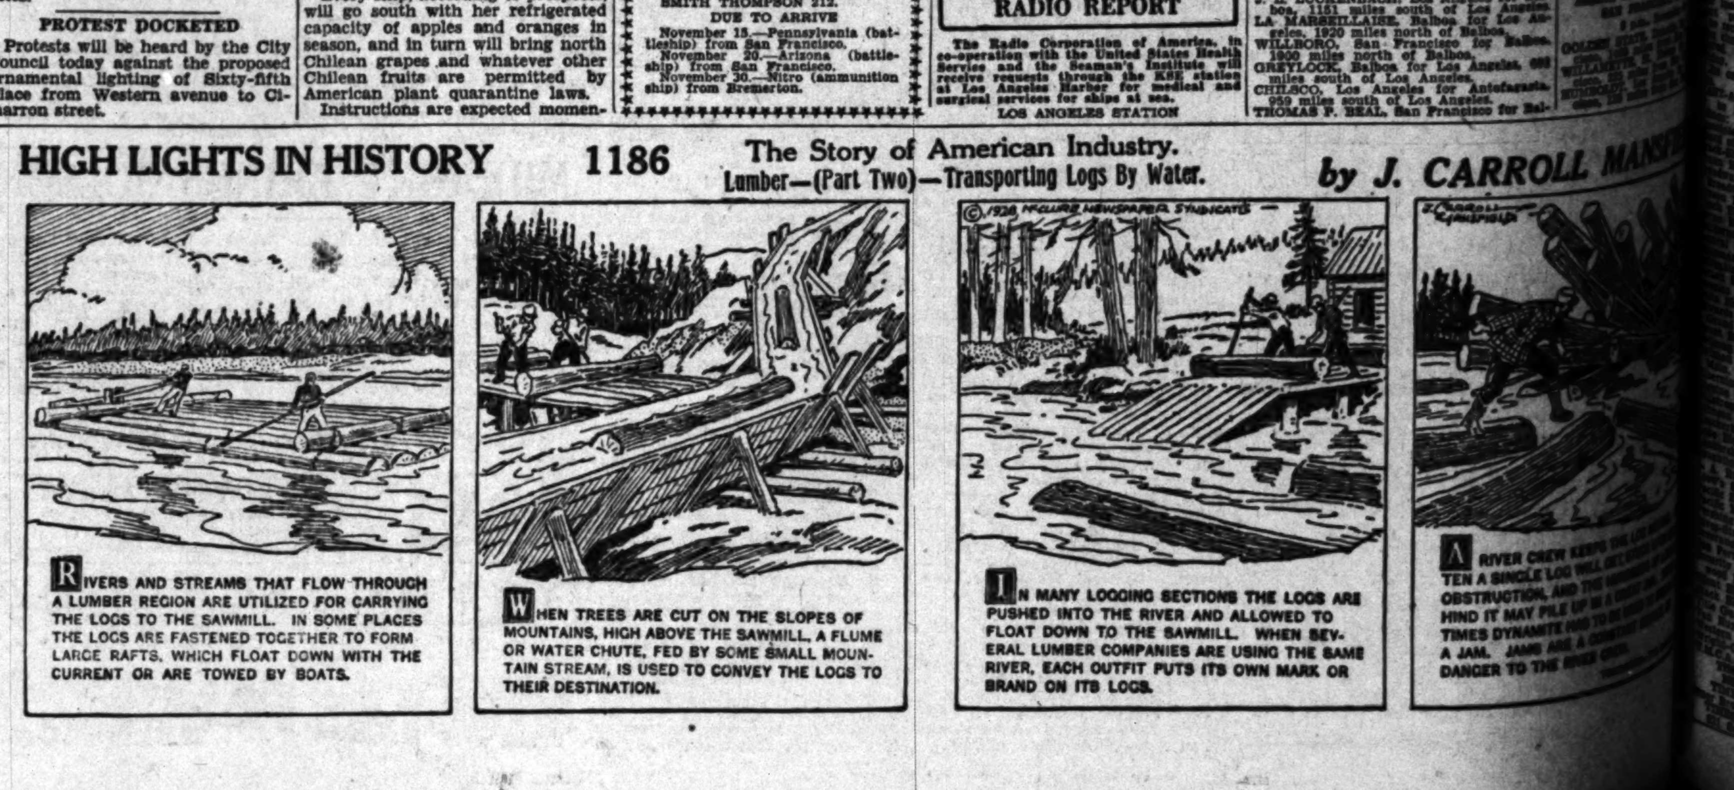
HIGH LIGHTS IN HISTORY 1186

The Story of American Industry.
Lumber—(Part Two)—Transporting Logs By Water.
by J. CARROLL MANSF



RIVERS AND STREAMS THAT FLOW THROUGH A LUMBER REGION ARE UTILIZED FOR CARRYING THE LOGS TO THE SAWMILL. IN SOME PLACES THE LOGS ARE FASTENED TOGETHER TO FORM LARGE RAFTS, WHICH FLOAT DOWN WITH THE CURRENT OR ARE TOWED BY BOATS.
WHEN TREES ARE CUT ON THE SLOPES OF MOUNTAINS, HIGH ABOVE THE SAWMILL, A FLUME OR WATER CHUTE, FED BY SOME SMALL MOUNTAIN STREAM, IS USED TO CONVEY THE LOGS TO THEIR DESTINATION.
IN MANY LOGGING SECTIONS THE LOGS ARE PUSHED INTO THE RIVER AND ALLOWED TO FLOAT DOWN TO THE SAWMILL. WHEN SEVERAL LUMBER COMPANIES ARE USING THE SAME RIVER, EACH OUTFIT PUTS ITS OWN MARK OR BRAND ON ITS LOGS.
A RIVER CREW KEEPS THE LOGS MOVING

CARROLL MANSFIEL
A RIVER CREW KEEPS THE LOG MOVING. OFTEN A SINGLE LOG WILL GET STUCK UPON SOME OBSTRUCTION, AND THE HUNDREDS OF LOGS BEHIND IT MAY PILE UP IN A GREAT JAM. SOMETIMES DYNAMITE HAS TO BE USED TO BREAK UP A JAM. JAMS ARE A CONSTANT SOURCE OF DANGER TO THE RIVER CREW.
